PLUMBING ECONOMICS

Installing an additional bathroom or even a sink can be an expensive proposition if there are not existing pipes, drains and vents in the location you have selected. Why?

Putting in long new runs of pipe, knocking out and later patching holes in walls and ceiling, involves considerable work. You can make life easier - and less costly - if you locate new outlets so the fixtures can be tied into existing supply pipes, drains and vents.

The ideal way to do this is to place a new bathroom or sink back-to-back with an existing bathroom. This way, both sets of fixtures can be connected to the same pipes by short spurs. The next best solution is to place the new bathroom beside an old one or directly above or below it.

Wait! This expansionist thinking indicates your family is outgrowing its present home. It might be wiser to consider buying a larger home and save yourself the money and inconvenience.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Cerasoli Keeps Seat, 57.3% Turnout Here

Harold Upsets Tobin, Donnelly Wins

By TOM HENSHAW

Paul Harold turned the single issue of two jobs into a stunning victory over Sen. Arthur H. Tobin Tuesday in the Democratic primary fight for the state senate seat that Tobin has occupied for the past seven years.

Harold won by a margin of nearly 2,000 votes, 17,106 to 15,348, in the district that includes Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon. It was Harold 11,626, Tobin 10,645 in Quincy.

In other races:

Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Boston] captured the Democratic nomination for the 11th Congressional District seat being vacated by longtime Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy] successfully fought off a challenge by Mrs. Dolores Nourse of Weymouth for the 3rd Norfolk District post carved out of Quincy and Weymouth by redistricting.

The congressional figures in Quincy were: Margaret Dinneen 1,750, Donnelly 6,134, Sabina Kavanagh 611, Patrick H. McCarthy 3,321, Patrick F. McDonough 1,292, James A. Sheets 9,057.

Cerasoli overwhelmed Mrs. Nourse, 5,508 to 2,585 by scoring in Quincy at a rate of almost six to one. The Quincy tally was Cerasoli 3,620, Nourse 680. The unofficial Weymouth figure was Nourse 1,905 and Cerasoli, 1,888.

Patrick J. [Sonny] McDonough won nomination to a 17th term on the governor's council by a 2-1 margin over William Golden of Quincy. Golden captured Quincy 11,312 to 8,740.

The total vote in Quincy was 27,875, an unusually high 57.3 per cent of the 48,504 total registration. City Clerk John Gillis called it the biggest primary turnout in at least 20 years.

Harold, whose campaign struck hard at the fact that Tobin held two jobs as mayor and state senator, said he plans to resign his at-large seat on the City Council in January "and serve full time in the senate."

"I feel that the Mayor and I can work together for the good of the city of Quincy," said Harold. "Our relations are good because we both avoided personalities during the campaign and stuck to issues."

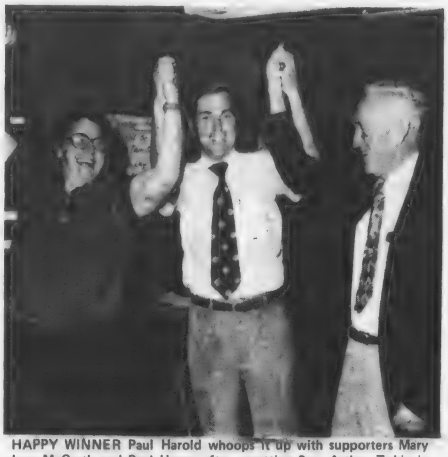
He said he hopes to confer with the Mayor sometime before the general election in November, when Harold faces token opposition from Republican Jens Thornton of Squantum.

BRIAN DONNELLY

ROBERT CERASOLI

"It was a campaign we can all be proud of," said Harold, surrounded by jubilant workers in Maxwell's Parrot, a restaurant downstairs from his headquarters on Maple St.

"We can be proud of it not because we won but because we ran on the issue of a fulltime job."



Harold said he will also resign from his law practice in Braintree.

Tobin virtually conceded defeat at 11:40 p.m. when he told his workers at Montello's that "it does not look promising." He said he was preparing to call Harold.

"Every man in politics expects this to happen someday," said Tobin. "I'm going to treat this occasion just Big Question: Who Will Get Harold's Council Seat?

Senator-elect Paul Harold says he will resign from his City Council at-large seat in January.

The big questions: Who will succeed him? And, how?

City Clerk John Gillis wasn't sure what the procedure would be when the final figures were in Wednesday morning.

He said it might mean a special election to fill the seat until the end of 1979. But he wasn't sure.

"We'll have to check the city charter on that," he said.

Ward 5 Councillor Steve McGrath said he had already done some checking and believes the seat will be filled by a vote of the City Council.

Merchants Angry Over Little Info On Downtown Redevelopment

Some Quincy Center businessmen are becoming restless to the point of anger as D-Day nears for the construction of the cross-town connector highway between Granite St. and Revere Rd., the first phase in the revitalization of downtown Quincy.

They say they don't think the city has been open with them in the matter of giving out information, particularly dates, on the road, which will cut through the Hancock St. business district at Kincaide's Furniture Store, 1609 Hancock St.

"The city doesn't really tell you anything," said Burt Cook, proprietor of Tag's Sleep and Lounge Shop, 1568 Hancock St., "All you get is bits and pieces. This is going to go and that's going to go. They draw you maps that don't help you a helluva lot.

"I'll tell you, I'm damned confused."

Cook and other merchants are so confused that they've called a meeting tonight [Thursday] for 6 p.m. in the South Shore Bank Conference Room on Chestnut St., to make their plans for a public hearing scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock School.

"No one from the Planning Department has been invited," said Jack London, owner of the Quincy Furniture Co., 1604 Hancock St. "I don't want them there."

Cook is particularly upset because his lease is up in 16 months and he wants to remodel his store.

"I'm not going to remodel the store if they're going to take it away," he said. "And I can't get a straight answer out of the EXCHANGE STUDENTS from Gettysburg, Pa., receive honorary City of Quincy citizenship certificates from Mayor Arthur Tobin on visit to City Hall. Seated, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mallock, [standing from left], Scott Miller, Mayor Tobin, Danny Mallock and Michael Locher. Miller and Locher, were guests of the Mallocks during a week long stay to the area to visit historic sites. Danny had previously spent a week with the boys in their hometown of Gettysburg, Pa. as part of an informal exchange program.

Americana Exchange Program

Young Quincy Civil War Buff Visits Gettysburg

By PETER BARNICLE

Student exchange programs have become very popular, with young people dashing off to Europe and their counterparts in foreign lands flying to this country for a slice of Americana.

But what of the youngster who wants to see a part of his own country and learn a little of its history at first hand?

Mrs. Melvin Mallock of 39 Whitney Rd, Quincy, faced that problem last spring when her son, Danny, 14, a Quincy Sun carrier and a Civil War buff, expressed a desire to see Gettysburg, scene of the turning point in the war between the states.

"I had heard a lot about all the foreign exchange programs, but I don't remember ever hearing of any similar programs within this country," she said.

Mrs. Mallock wrote to the superintendent of schools in Gettysburg. He put her in touch with Phillip Monteith, the junior high school counselor in Gettysburg, and she explained that Danny, going into the ninth grade at Central Junior High School in Quincy, would like to see the Little Round Top, Seminary Ridge, the Devil's Den and other places familiar to Civil War students.

Monteith got into the spirit of things and lined up not one, but two families interested in showing Danny the sights in their historic community.

Scott Miller and Michael Locher, both 15 and both entering the 10th grade at Gettysburg High School, were Danny's hosts.

"I spent half the week with the Millers and half with the Lochers," Danny said. "They not only showed me all of Gettysburg, but also Antietam and Harper's Ferry."

In addition the boys went on a trip to Washington to see the nation's capital and the sights in the area.

When the week was over the three boys boarded a bus for Boston and Quincy.

Miller and Locher spent the following week with the Mallock family who proudly showed them the Adams Birthplaces, the Church of the Presidents, Squantum and Wollaston Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallock took them to Boston to follow the Freedom Trail and see Fanueil Hall, the Quincy Market, the Old State House and the Public Garden.

Harvard Yard was interesting but both Pennsylvanians wanted to see M.I.T.

"I hope they have something on solar engineering," Scott said during a visit to The Sun. "I would like to study there when I get through high school."

Michael also was looking forward to seeing the big technical institute on the Charles. His interest is physics.

Highlight of their visit to Quincy was a meeting at City Hall with Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. The Mayor welcomed them to the city and praised their desire to see the historic sites at first hand.

He presented them with certificates making them honorary citizens of the city.

Mrs. Mallock was delighted with the success of her "exchange program". It may, she said, lead to a more structured program in the future.

Student Union Provides Communication With School Committee

Fourteen members of the Student Union, comprising students from Quincy High School, North Quincy High and Vocational Technical School, were introduced to the School Committee at its last meeting to explain their role in student affairs.

When fully constituted the Union will be made up of six members from the student advisory boards of each of the three schools. As yet students entering from junior high schools have not been elected.

Each advisory board elects a chairman who will sit as an associate member of the school committee. These members may take part in discussions of the school committee, but do not have a vote.

The Student Union meets a day or two before each scheduled school committee meeting and goes over the agenda for the meeting. The group decides which articles on the agenda should have student input, and instructs its representatives to inform the committee of student opinion.

"The associate members provide a vehicle of communication between the students and the school committee," according to John Harrington, coordinator of social studies and faculty advisor to the Student Union.

The associate members repoprt back to the Student Councils of each school following the meeting.

In addition to the representatives from the three secondary schools Quincy Junior College also has an associate member on the school committee. This year she is Elizabeth Kosianowicz, a second year student from Hanover.

Members of the Student Union presented at the school committee meeting were: From Quincy High School, Elan Ezickson, 35 Miller Stile Rd., Linda Gale, 425 Quarry St., Peggy Rugg, 22 Narragansett Rd., and Cindi Staples, 10 Samem St.; from North Quincy High School, Laurie Adams, 95 Bayside Rd., Ann Conroy, 272 Billings St., Michael Mariano, 302 Billings Rd., Stephen Morrissey, 88 Colby Rd., Irene Stevens, 15 Estabrook Rd.; from Vocational Technical, William Dever, 545 Newport Ave., Kerry Kirk and Peggy Kirk, both of 78 Crescent St., Gary Leone, 19 Pray St., Laurel Peterson, 52 River St., and Denise Walsh, 34 Bennington St.

Demand For Services Overwhelming

DOVE Seeking Volunteers To Assist In Domestic Violence Problems

DOVE [Domestic Violence Ended] is seeking volunteers willing to assist in dealing with the problem of domestic violence on the South Shore.

The organization is composed of representatives from various organizations including the Quincy Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, Quincy Community Action, Quincy Police Department, South Shore Mental Health, Survival and the District Attorney's office.

DOVE was set up last spring under the auspices of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women to provide direct services for battered women and their children.

The organization has made significant progress in establishing a hot line and a temporary shelter for persons facing the problems of domestic violence, according to Anne Keating, chairwoman of DOVE.

"However," she said, "the demand for services has been overwhelming and the number of staff and volunteer personnel is currently very limited. Even if a person can devote only a few hours a week, we can use the help."

Volunteers are needed to assist at the shelter, provide emergency transportation, and advocacy work for legal, housing and financial assistance. Clerical and housekeeping assistance are also needed.

The project critically needs people who are willing to be on call for shelter services in the event of an emergency.

All volunteers will receive proper training before being assigned to service at the shelter. A special training session is presently being conducted for hot line volunteers with the assistance of the district attorney's domestic violence unit and the Germantown Service Center.

People can volunteer by contacting DOVE at 471-5087 or by writing P. O. Box 287, Quincy, 02269.

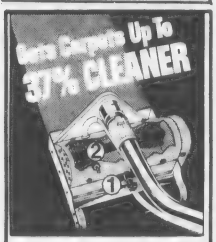
Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

WHO - ME ALLERGIC?

An estimated 31 million Americans - one in every 7 - have an allergy, yet many are unaware that they do. Allergy symptoms include repeated sneezing, stuffy or runny nose, nasal and sinus congestion and watery, itchy eyes. Difficulty in breathing at night may be experienced due to nasal congestion. An allergy can be caused by many plant's pollens, animal hairs, furniture stuffing, cosmetics, feathers, metals, dust, foods, drugs and chemicals.



An Allergist can usually identify the cause of your allergy. If it's something you can't avoid, he may recommend a series of desensitizing injections or medication.

Pollen, which causes many allergies, is somewhere in the air all over the United States from February through December. You can help keep stray pollen out of your eyes by use of air conditioning. Avoid any intake of alcohol, and try to prevent fatigue and tension.

People who have allergies can tell you that relief is nothing to sneeze at!

YMCA Indian Guides Program Enrollment Starts Sept. 25

The Quincy YMCA's Indian Guide Program will hold enrollment meetings Monday, Sept. 25 and Wednesday, Sept. 27 at 7 p.m. at the "Y".

Indian Guides is a program for fathers and sons ages six to eight. Together they participate as big and little braves in small units consisting of four to eight fathers and sons known as tribes. Its purpose is to multiply the number of things that fathers and sons can do together.

The program is based upon the lore of the American Indians. Tribal meetings are held bimonthly in rotation in the homes of the braves. The tribes are given maximum freedom giving boys full opportunity to develop their initiative under the guidance of their dads. Some of the activities included in the program are: trips, handicrafts, story-telling, study of Indian culture, songs, games, picnics, and camping.

The Massachusett nation invites all fathers and sons to its organizational meeting at the Quincy YMCA. Members of the Massachusett nation will be on hand to discuss and answer questions.

After the meeting both fathers and sons are invited to attend the tribal meeting nearest them. This enables new enrollees to view an individual tribe in action.

For further information contact Bill Johnson at the Quincy YMCA at 479-8500.

Harold's Victory Raises A Few Mayoral Questions

Paul Harold's smashing victory in the State Senate Democratic primary Tuesday leaves a lot of people wondering about a lot of things.

First of all, how did he do it?

There is no doubt he worked hard, campaigned hard. And there is no doubt the two-job issue was a major factor.

Many peopel sincerely believe two hats on a political figure is one too many. The issue was there in last year's city election but it was overshadowed by a bigger issue: corruption in Mayor Joseph LaRaia's administration.

LaRaia, it appears, was an ingredient in Harold's big win Tuesday. LaRaia, according to City Hall on-lookers actually campaigned for Harold. And the LaRaia people came out and voted for Harold.

Observers took note with interest the periodic appearance at City Hall Tuesday night of Sarah Saccone, budget director in the LaRaia administration, checking on the Harold-Tobin returns.

Harold won it and he won it big. And in doing so, he did a big favor for LaRaia and the latter's followers.

Immediate speculation is that LaRaia will run for the City Council at-large seat Harold will give up to be the full-time state senator he built his campaign on.

And if he doesn't run for that, observers think he will make a run for mayor against Tobin next year.

One problem for LaRaia if he should seek a return to the mayor's office is the fact that thanks to Harold, there will be no two-hats issue next year because Tobin will only be wearing one. Harold has made him a full-time mayor.

Tobin must be tremendously disappointed in his defeat Tuesday. He believes he has done a good job as both mayor and senator. And he thinks he carried enough clout on Beacon Hill to get things for Quincy that a freshman senator will be unable to do. Many people agree with him. But, obviously, not enough.

A big question to be answered sometime next year: will Tobin really seek re-election as mayor?

He may just say the heck with it and return to his private law practice.

Who would succeed him then? One man, for sure, won't. That's Paul Harold. He has to be the full-time senator he promised to be.

Meanwhile, Harold is sitting on top of the political pile. From up there, the view must be pretty nice for him.

Koch Club Honored By Historical Society

The Koch Club of Quincy was recently honored by the Quincy Historical Society in recognition of the 30th anniversary of the organization.

William A. O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society, presented the citation to Richard J. Koch, executive director and founder of the Koch Club.

The framed citation, with a picture of Adams Academy in 1872 at the top, reads "Presented to the Koch Club in Recognition of Thirty Years of Outstanding Service to the Local Community."

During the 30th year of the Koch Club, outstanding mementos of the organization were presented to the historical society and the Thomas Crane Public Library for retention as permanent record of the organization's existence and success.

McCauley Loses, 5-4

Tobin's Veto Stands On Tax Rate Ordinance

"Every king is served by lords," said Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington. "One can suggest to the king and one can instruct the lords and the assessors are lords who are deemed untouchable by elected officials."

Thus armed with Harrington's Old English logic, the City Council Monday night refused by a 5-4 vote to overturn Mayor Tobin's veto of an ordinance that would have required the assessors, the Mayor and the treasurer to appear before the Council to explain the tax rate.

Debate over the veto recalled to the minds of Councillors John J. Lydon Jr. and James A. Sheets unpleasant memories of two years ago when Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and the City Council fought bitterly over the Mayor's $35 tax increase.

"Mayor Tobin does not disagree with the idea of the ordinance," said Harrington, "but he believes that, in the opinion of the City Solicitor, it is beyond the scope of this Council.

"It requires assessors to appear and explain their actions. It would appear that it looks for more than information since this forum allows members to indicate public disapproval. Once appointed, assessors hold a position governed only by state law so they cannot be intimidated.

"You are mandating that the assessor do something. He has volunteered but the moment you mandate the assessor to appear you have changed the situation to a point where the possibility of intimidation exists.

"There is not one of the nine people sitting here who would not try to change the tax rate if they thought they were right.

"The assessors office is protected by statute from interference. The division of authority between the Mayor and the Council is quite clear. You cannot direct the Mayor relative to his duties. The treasurer stands in a different category. You may have some control over him."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who filed the original ordinance back in June and led the fight to override the veto, didn't think it was interfering with or adding to the duties of the assessors "for them to come up from downstairs and stand before the Council and explain the figures."

"With all due respect to these television extravaganzas we sit through, the Council finds out about these things as soon as the press and the TV cameras find out," he said. "We should have a little advance notice."

McCauley apparently was referring to the fact that Mayor Tobin called a news conference, including Channel 5 cameras, and invited various city dignitaries to hear him announce a 60-cent decrease in the tax rate.

The ordinance and the veto upset both Councillors Lydon and Sheets, but for different reasons.

"We're setting a tone here that I don't like to see," said Lydon. "It's a tone of 'who's right and who's wrong.' We went through all that a couple of years ago. I wouldn't want to see us go through it again.

"I don't like to see these department heads mandated to come before the Council on an annual basis, on guard, to discuss what their figures are."

Sheets too recalled the confrontation days of the LaRaia administration.

"The implication," he said, "is that since the current assessors, mayor and treasurer would not refuse to come before the Council, then why force them. How quickly we forget.

"Three years ago we had one of the biggest battles over the tax rate that I've ever seen. The Mayor said $35 and the Council President said $8.50. I question whether the individuals in those offices at that time would have come before the Council.

"There is no crisis now but that doesn't mean there won't be in two years, four years or six years."

"The crux of the question," said Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, "is just a legal opinion. It comes down to whether or not having the assessors appear before the Council is adding to their duties. Everything else is superfluous."

McCauley could muster only four votes in his bid to override the veto. He needed six. In his corner were Councillors Sheets, McGrath and Paul D. Harold.

city as to whether the place is going and, if it is, when? They could be talking 10 years from now."

Cook said he spoke to Planning Director Walter J. Hannon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, and "they said don't remodel the store. But they wouldn't advise that I do anything."

"What way to run?" he asked. "They talk about relocating you if they take the building. But where? On Washington St.? I don't know what the hell way to run. I really don't want to leave Hancock St. I want to remodel and modernize the store. It's a problem."

"I've been here 31 years," said Bernie Reisberg of Bernie's Modern Formal Shop, 1586 Hancock St., "and my father before me was here for 25. I was contemplating enlarging the building but because of all this talk I've kinda held up on it.

"They said before any such road is considered they're going to relocate us. That's fine but I haven't heard a damn thing about relocating. What are they going to do?

"Are they going to put all these people out and maybe two or three years later they're going to look for some means of relocating them? By that time a lot of them will have lost their shirts. It's a messy thing, really.

"They're just interested in getting this project done and probably naming this square here 'Hannon Park' or naming some highway after a politician. If they want to do that, fine, but first where are we going to relocate?

"Most of these people have their life's savings tied up in their businesses. Some consideration should be given to them before they go ahead with the road."

Hannon was not available for comment at press time.

Next Tuesday's meeting in the Lincoln-Hancock Cafetorium is being held by the State Public Works Department to give the public a chance to become acquainted with plans for location of the Upland Rd. Extension and the Granite St.-Revere Rd. connector.

"Our first inkling that anything was actually going on was picking up the legal notice of the hearing in the Patriot Ledger," said Jack London.

"No one has contacted anyone, the involved merchants or the involved landlords. No one has done a single thing about it. And still Rev. Baharian told me that I got a year and a half. We have no plans to relocate. There is no place to relocate.

"There are 34 stores down here and the livelihood of over 100 people.

"Believe me, down here they're wild. There is so much talk going on and no solid information. These fellows are upset. They're doing things willy nilly. It's ridiculous."

like the first time I ever won an election as state representative.

"Two years ago people advised me not to get into this two job thing. I did what had to be done. It was an honor to be both senator and mayor.

"Don't feel bad. Don't be bitter. Be glad that we could do for the city what we have done. Let us now get behind the man that the majority of the voters said they want to represent them."

It was the first defeat at the polls for Tobin after 12 straight victories in races for state senate, state rep, city council and mayor dating back to 1967. In 1963, he lost a bid for the council from Ward 1.

It was the first time that Harold has won an election in which he faced an opponent one-on-one. He lost previous bids for state rep and Ward 1 councillor but twice won an at-large council seat.

It was not immediately determined just how the vacancy on the City Council caused by Harold's coming resignation would be filled. City Clerk John Gillis said it could mean a special election.

Donnelly won the congressional nomination with strong showings in Brockton and the Boston wards while James A. Sheets, the apparent runnerup in the race, captured overwhelmingly his home city of Quincy.

"No one likes to lose," said Sheets, who conducted his campaign on a door-to-door basis, estimating that he and his wife, Joann, visited 35,000 homes in the district in search of votes.

"But when the time comes, lose with honor, dignity and integrity and continue to serve the public in whatever capacity God gives us to do it."

Sheets said his bid to overtake Donnelly was hurt "when the bottom fell out of McCarthy's campaign."

Patrick H. McCarthy, the Randolph attorney who got 43 per cent of the primary vote in a race against Burke in 1976, and was expected to battle Donnelly to the wire, appeared to be headed for a third place finish.

Donnelly's campaign received a boost the Saturday before election when Burke, who had previously refused to endorse a successor, announced that he was going to vote for the Boston rep.

Donnelly still has to face H. Graham Lowry, the U.S. Labor Party candidate, and possibly

MONEY TALKS

It doesn't take calculus to find the price of a loan

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

This young man was quite bright, and he had managed calculus in his high-school honors math. But, arithmetically speaking, he was a dullard.

He was buying his first car, a used one from a dealer he knew to be trustworthy. He was especially pleased because the dealer offered to lend him $2,000 toward the purchase at a cost of $2,140 for one year. That 7% interest charge wasn't bad at all!

It took patient explaining to get him to realize that the credit charge was closer to 14% than to 7% because by making equal monthly payments the average amount of the loan over the twelve-month period was approximately $1,000 rather than $2,000.

While we might have welcomed the $2,000 in his savings account with us, we felt obligated to contribute to his sense of financial management by pointing out that he would be financing his car at much less cost by dipping into these savings. This was one of the reasons he had established an account in the first place.

Merchandisers encourage the use of installment credit; many belabor the false notion of "very easy payments." As many a family has learned to its grief, there is no such thing as an easy payment. The "easier" the payments become, the more costly they make the new car or whatever else was purchased.

The 1½% monthly charge that retail dealers impose on the unpaid balance in revolving or "budget" charge accounts means an 18% annual addition to the price of what people buy.

It takes only elementary-school arithmetic to realize that there is a whale of a difference between merchandise purchased on the installment plan and products acquired with money that has been saved. One approach adds substantially to the price tag; the other reduces it by the amount the money has earned while on deposit.

This prompts the consideration of whether a family wants to get into this method of money management at all. Valid questions that might be asked are, can we pay cash without using up too much of our savings? Is having it now worth the extra cost of buying it "on time"? Can we handle this much debt?

It helps to explain why some families are thriving while others are constantly on the brink of bankruptcy.

Alertness, Cooperation Safety Keys For Students, Motorists

By ANTHONY R. POLLARA
Quincy School Safety Officer

Autumn has come and with it nearly 15,000 Quincy youngsters are moving through the city's streets going to and from school.

Alertness at all times is required of motorists if we are to complete the school year without accidents. Many of the exuberant kids cross streets in droves, others sometimes race out unexpectedly. It is the adult driver who must be alert.

The citizens of Quincy - the school department, police, parents, youngsters and motorists - must all cooperate to avoid accidents.

In an effort to protect the students, from pre-kindergarten pupils to college men and women a major safety force will be on hand.

The main streets and intersections will be monitored by 45 women traffic supervisors and regular police officers. They will be assisted by nearly 1,000 pupils serving on safety patrols.

Every citizen can help to make the miles traveled between home and school a pleasure and not a hazardous trip by encouraging children to follow these rules:

* Always walk on the sidewalk.
* Cross only at corners, looking both ways before crossing.
* Use crosswalk whenever possible.
* Don't cross from behind parked cars.
* When crossing at a traffic light, wait for the light to change and for traffic to stop before crossing.
* Obey your school traffic supervisor and patrol.
* Watch for turning cars.
* Never dart out into the street.
* Walk defensively; be especially alert for careless drivers.

Additional safety rules for school bus riders are:

* Wait for the bus in an orderly line.
* When boarding or leaving the bus, do not run.
* Place books or bundles where they cannot slide or fall.
* Keep arms and legs out of aisles.
* Your head, arms and bundles are safest inside the bus.
* Don't talk to the bus driver except in an emergency.
* Don't open windows without permission.

Remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Know When To Stop For A School Bus

School buses are rolling again and motorists are cautioned to be extra vigilant whenever they are in sight.

Motorists - and truck drivers - are reminded that the Commonwealtn of Massachusetts has specific laws to protect the buses and the youngsters they are transporting.

Drivers must re-acquaint themselves with the school bus law which is easy to understand because it is so precise as to the alertness demanded of drivers.

The Massachusetts law provides:

"When approaching a vehicle which displays a sign bearing the words "SCHOOL BUS" and is equipped with front and rear alternating flashing signal lamps which are flashing, as provided in section 7B, and which has been stopped to allow passengers to alight from or board same, a person operating a motor vehicle shall, except when approaching from the opposite direction on a divided highway, bring his vehicle to a full stop before reaching said school bus and shall not thereafter proceed until such school bus resumes motion or until such person is signaled by the driver of the school bus to proceed or the said signal lamps are no longer flashing."

Quincy Granite Going To Illinois For 'Roller Skating Wall'

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mrs. Florence Olson, of 15 Rogers Lane, Houghs Neck, began roller skating in 1926 at the old Taylor's Ballroom, in Houghs Neck, and has seen it grow from a sport with limited popularity to one which will be included in the Panama Games next summer and the summer Olympics in 1980.

She and several other Quincy residents belong to the east coast local of the Universal Roller Skating Sticker Exchange, begun over 25 years ago to help promote roller skating. The club travels to different skating competions throughout the country, holds monthly meetings and annual conventions.

At the recent American Roller Skating Championships, in Lincoln, Nebraska, Mrs. Olson, with her husband, Harry, met a 17 year old competitive skater, Brian Smith, and his mother, June. Instead of collecting emblems from the different states he skates, Brian is engaged in collecting small stones which he will polish and engrave with the name of the originating state. He plans to build a wall with the stones outside the new Smith family home in Collinsville, Illinois.

Mrs. Olson has offered to supply the stones from the New England area. She plans to send Brian some Quincy granite, and with the help of neighboring friends and relatives, stones from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Connecticut. She hopes to visit the Smiths when the wall is completed.

The entire Olson family, including son Harry, who lives in Quincy and teaches skating in Weymouth, and his wife, Janet, who recently won a gold medal in the American roller skating dance competition, have found roller skating a healthy activity and interesting spectator sport.

Cheryl Barnes At Carlton House

Cheryl Barnes whose pop and contemporary jazz singing has made her a favorite in top night spots across the country, is appearing this week through Saturday in the Lounge at The Carlton House, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Cheryl began singing with a rock and roll group in Montana when she was 14. By the time she entered University of Denver as an education major she had switched to opera as a mezzo-soprano.

It was back to rock and roll and pop music during her college years and she appeared in a number of night clubs with various bands. Her career zoomed when Billy Davis Jr., of the Fifth Dimension took an interest.

The 29-year-old singer has been likened to Barbara Streisand "but with a touch of soul". Although she sings a lot of jazz she says of herself that she "has melted into the mainstream of pop."

License Granted For Discotheque In Parkingway

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a common victualer-all alcoholic license for a new discotheque at 79 Parking Way but declined to act on a request for a 2 a.m. closing.

Board members indicated they wanted to encourage the introduction of new business in the downtown district and were satisfied with the general presentation by Atty. David Trainor, counsel for James P. Kearney, manager of the entertainment center to be known as LeDisco.

Police Chief Francis Finn, Fire Chief Edward Barry and Dr. Samuel Solomon all concurred on issuance of the license. City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the board, and Allan MacDonald were unable to attend the session.

Acting chairman Finn said a full board should be present for discussions on the 2 a.m. closing. Atty. Trainor was allowed to withdraw the request without prejudice.

In his presentation he defended the $3 cover charge which LeDisco plans to ask of patrons. He said the cost of operating a disco, with all its sophisticated sound equipment, is comparable with the cost of live bands. He also noted that the cover charge would help attract the type of clientele being sought.

It was pointed out that LeDisco plans to maintain a strict dress code and seek to attract the 25-45 age group. It is hoped most of the customers will be drawn from the Quincy area.

LeDisco is scheduled to open Oct. 16, with a 4 to 8 p.m. cocktail hour and the disco starting at 9 p.m. It is also planned to have a brunch on Sundays. On Saturdays, 1 to 5 p.m., the establishment will be turned over to teen-agers, but no liquor will be sold.

The board also noted that a proposed game room must wait for further action.

In issuing the license the board stipulated that the operators must work closely with the fire, health and building departments to avoid any violation of regulations.

Austin Wickens, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, told the board that the businessmen of the area have voted approval of the discotheque.

The only objection to the license came from the United Presbyterian Church, Pleasant St., South Quincy. The church was not represented at the hearing, however.

Chief Barry, before voting, questioned the downtown location of the discotheque and said he was not sure it was the proper place for such an operation. However, he seconded the motion for approval.

Programs At Salvation Army

Captain Charles Waddington, commanding officer of The Salvation Army in Quincy, announces the beginning of several new Community Center programs at Salvation Army headquarters, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, under the direction of David Galbraith, B.S., center director.

On Tuesday mornings from 10 until noon and Wednesday afternoons from noon until 2 p.m., a pre-school enrichment program will be available for children from three to five years of age.

Purpose of the program is two-fold, to allow mothers of young children time for shopping, doctors appointments and other personal business and to allow young children the opportunity for social development among their own peer group and structured activity. The program will be conducted by Christine Galbraith, B.S.

Also scheduled for Wednesday afternoons will be a wood-working, furniture refinishing class for women, noon to 2 p.m.

Numerous other programs are also scheduled daily. For further information on these and other programs as well as fee schedules, call The Salvation Army Headquarters at 472-2345.

United Auto Repair Offers New Concept In Car Care Service

United Auto Repair, 720 Bridge St. [Route 3A] North Weymouth, offers an entirely new concept in the care and repair of automobiles.

Membership is required to avail yourself of the services offered by United Auto Repair, but substantial savings are guaranteed in services and parts costs. The North Weymouth unit is the first in a projected nationwide chain of repair shops.

"At United Auto Repair we hope to bring auto repair prices down to where they should be and bring service up to a standard that should be extended to the paying customer," Robert E. Minichelli, United's president, said.

Eight months of marketing research preceded the opening of the first unit. The most modern equipment available was obtained to insure the best service possible.

Minichelli said membership will be limited on a per-station basis so service can be offered with the least amount of inconvenience possible.

He said that one of the services being offered members is the free rental of a car should a car be in the shop more than 24-hours. The customer pays only for the gas.

Whenever a customer's car is in a United shop for repairs a rental car is available at $7 per day, plus gas.

United offers free towing and low cost road service within 15 miles of any United Station.

In addition members are entitled to 15 percent discount on all parts supplied by United for repair work. The company contends a member will save an average of $8 per hour on labor on all work from changing a muffler to major engine overhaul, and all work is guaranteed in writing.

Minichelli contends that customers will save 35 percent and more on all repair work at United.

In its efforts to attract customers United is canvassing various professional and business groups to explain the membership and how it can save on auto repairs.

The firm is marking the opening of the North Weymouth station with a drawing for a new 1978 Mercury Bobcat with a custom AM/FM Stereo, courtesy of South Shore Sound.

Entry blanks may be obtained at the North Weymouth station. The drawing will be held Thursday, Oct. 12.

They are intended to be model campaigns using all available educational informational materials such as films, speakers, tours of agencies, brochures and other printed matter.

The pacesetter campaigns are designed to demonstrate that significant campaign increases can be obtained by applying proper solicitation procedures.

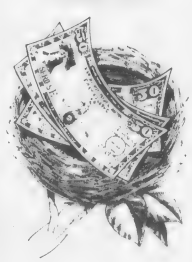
MORTGAGE INTEREST VS EQUITY

It is true that owning a home builds a dollar-value equity for you as you pay off the mortgage. How much of your monthly payment goes to paying off the principal and how much goes to pay off the interest is another story. The outcome depends on how long you have been making payments.

Inasmuch as most mortgages are self-liquidating loans, you will pay a level amount each month toward paying off the interest and reduction of principal. However, remember that the interest is first computed on the balance due and therefore the first payment is practically all interest and last payment is practically all principal. About mid-way during the term of the mortgage, the interest and principal payments are about equal.



The one saving grace in the early years of high interest payments, is that all of this interest is tax deductible which can be a hefty deduction indeed.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

ENC Soccer, X-Country Teams Off To Good Start

The Eastern Nazarene College soccer and cross country teams got underway last week with the soccer team edging Boston State, 3-2, and playing to a scoreless tie with Northeastern Bible College in a game played at New Jersey.

ENC had to overcome a 2-0 deficit to top Boston State. The Crusader defense was weakened by the loss of veteran Fullback Bob Brown of Quincy. ENC rallied for two quick goals in the second half, freshman Dave Corbin scoring the first on a pass from sophomore Bobby Hooper. Two minutes later on a sideline throw by freshman Sidney Steelman, freshman Jim Weslow netted the tying goal. The rookies continued to shine as Corbin scored the clincher. Goalie Kurt Hulteen of South Weymouth played well and had eight saves.

The Crusaders played two overtimes in New Jersey but neither team could break up the great defensive battle. ENC outshot Northeastern by 14 shots but it was all for naught.

The ENC booters travel to Nyack, N.Y., Saturday to face the Parsons of Nyack at 2 o'clock.

The cross country team won its opener, 19-36, over New England College of Henniker, N.H.

Freshman Steve Noftle won the 5.2-mile race in 28.02, missing the course record by only six seconds. Tim Woodbridge was second and Dave Slobuszewski placed third.

The ENC harriers will meet Nyack College Saturday at 2:30.

Tilley has several returnees including forwards Susan Cahill, Denise Chase, Christine Tedeschi and Lisa Venezia, fullbacks Jean Doherty and Carol Watt and halfbacks Paula Kearney and Eileen Mackey. Denise Galewski is in goal.

New prospects include goalie Cheryl Ayles, halfbacks Lori Ryan and Jean Zdankowski and forwards Kim Alberti and Toni LeBlanc.

Raiders Seek Offensive Spark At Brockton

By TOM SULLIVAN

Hockey has its penalty killers and football has its penalties that kill as North Quincy's football team found out last Saturday.

North's defense, especially in the second half, did a fine job but the offense, with the penalties taking their toll, sputtered badly and this is what Coach Dave Burke is working hard on this week as the Raiders prepare for their Suburban League opener at Brockton's Marciano Stadium Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

North dropped a 7-6 heartbreaker to non-league rival Milton last week at Veterans Memorial Stadium and the attack left much to be desired.

"We just couldn't move the ball and we have to work hard on the offense," Burke said. "When we did start, rolling penalties really killed us. We have a lot of work to do.

"I thought the defense, which we considered our major problem due to lack of experience, did a fine job."

The penalty which hurt North most came late in the game when Kevin Cobban hit Tom Quinn with a pass which brought the Raiders close to Milton's 30 only to have the penalty wipe it out.

On fourth down Cobban hit Quinn again but Milton took over on its 40 and, although Milton was forced to punt, North didn't have time to launch another drive.

North had only 100 net yards on the ground and this included an 89-yard run by Quinn for the Raider touchdown. Seven times North backs were stopped for losses and the longest gain other than Quinn's run was eight yards by Jim Holleran on the last play of the game.

Defensive coaches Ken McPhee and Jack Raymer were pleased with the second half performance and praised Leo Graham, Tom Malloy, who suffered a knee injury; Matt Hemphill, John Hernon, Joe Cremin, Glen Healy, John White, Paul McNamara, Joe Venezia, Pat Ennis, Brian McGilvray, John Lothrop, Brian Hewitt and Larry Baker, a first year man.

Offensively Burke had good words for Quinn, McGilvray, Paul White, Dan McIntyre, Jim Holleran and Cobban, who showed signs of being a capable passer.

Quinn's electrifying run came midway in the first period after North had been penalized 15 yards back to the 11. He broke through the left side and raced down the left sideline, outrunning several pursuers.

Mike Spinale's kick for the extra point was blocked.

Milton, coached by former North assistant Jack Bowes, scored early in the second period when John Bibinski passed to Brian Chrisom for 35 yards. Chrisom fumbled at the goal line but the ball bounced into the hands of John Andon, who scored. Pat Greeley then kicked the winning point.

Milton didn't present too much of a running game with a net gain of 104 yards and didn't have a run of more than eight yards.

The winners picked up 62 yards through the air on four for seven, while North had 89 yards on five for 12, but two of Cobban's passes were intercepted. Milton had nine first downs, North six.

Ted Sadowski's North sophomores got off to a great start with a 22-0 win over Milton.

Presidents Sharpen Up For Weymouth S.

Tom Fitzgerald's debut as Quincy's football coach was a disappointment as the Presidents dropped a 7-6 squeaker to Cambridge Rindge and Latin last Saturday in a Suburban League openeer, but Tom expects a lot of improvement this Saturday.

"We learned a lot in our opener and we will work hard all week on what we found to be our weaknesses," Fitzgerald said as Quincy prepped for its home opener Saturday against Weymouth South in a 1:30 p.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Weymouth, which had been a tough nut for the presidents to crack while playing an independent schedule, is in the Suburban League for the first time as is Cambridge.

"We found our punting game is weak and we had a lot of trouble on kickoffs," Fitzgerald said. "We will work hard to improve these spots and also will work on our passing game, which was spotty.

"Another thing that hurt us was missing signals on some key plays. We were hurt badly a couple of times when plays fouled out because players missed the signals."

Quincy's outstanding two-way player, Ralph Pickering, suffered a leg injury midway in the final period and Fitzgerald is hoping he will be ready for Weymouth. At press time his status was still questionable.

"Ralph was just superb both ways and was one of our brightest spots at Cambridge," the new coach said. "He ran very well and sparked an excellent 70-yard drive which gave us our only touchdown, and he also was outstanding backing up the line."

Defensively Fitzgerald singled out George McCarron for a fine two-way game, John Nichols, Vin Harte, Pickering, Jeff Giordani and Steve Venturelli.

On Offense Geoff Caflisch, McCarron and Harte in the line and backs Pickering, Tom Brennan, Dan McGoldrick and quarterback Dave Austin were praised. McGoldrick also backed up the line well.

"Brennan ran well and scored the touchdown and Austin did a fine job in his first varsity game," Fitzie said. "His passing game was a little off but this will come along with experience. He ran the club very well."

Quincy drove 70 yards in the first period with Brennan scoring from two yards out. The Presidents were penalized five yards on the conversion try and missed a rush for two points.

"We missed the vital two points because of someone missing the signal," Fitzgerald said. "This was a perfect drive and it looked like we might blow them off the field, but after that penalties hurt us badly and those missed signals on key plays also were costly."

Cambridge won it in the second period when Don Samuels raced 33 years for the touchdown and Sophomore Dennis Brown kicked the winning point.

Saturday's game with Weymouth will highlight the fourth annual Quincy Public Schools Olympic Day which will begin at 11 a.m. and will also feature Quincy-North Quincy boys and girls' cross country meets. All high school and junior high athletes and cheerleaders will take part in the event.

● Soccer

Quincy Looks For Offense, North Puts Accent On Defense

Although his team lost to a strong Brockton team, 3-0, in its Suburban League opener, Coach Jim McGuire is hopeful his Quincy soccer team, with 13 veterans, will do more scoring than a year ago.

"Scoring was our problem last year but we have a fine group of juniors who should be more proficient at that now," he said.

McGuire has two fine goalies in senior Pat Clifford and sophomore Bill Concannon. Concannon played an excellent game against Brockton with 17 saves and stopped a penalty kick.

Returning backs incluue Marc LaFleur, John Cotter, Dario DiBona, Peter Tautvaisas and Dave Giglio. Newcomers are Dave Elsmore and Tom Roche.

Back at forward are Gary Wilcox, Bill Joyce, Ron DiCesare, Neil Arnold, Vin Lorenzano, Dave Hamburgh and Bob Paterno.

Sophomores Geoff McGhee, Joe Norton and Steve Priscella also will see considerable action. McGhee sparkled in the Brockton game.

Meanwhile, North Quincy's new coach, Paul Bregoli, sees defense as his major concern. This was borne out when the Raiders dropped a 5-1 decision to Brookline in its opener. He expects North to score its share of goals this fall.

Bregoli lacks an experienced goalie but in the opener Arunas Kleinus and Rick Forest combined for 20 saves and with some experience should do well. Sophomores Paul Mallory and Steve Belcastro are other goalie possibilities.

Tommy Reney, Mark Will and Chris Sullivan are good looking backs and Joe Flynn, Dave Donovan, John Sullivan, Tom Geary, Bill Harrow and Ron Holland are doing well at forward.

Sullivan scored the only goal against Brookline, taking a fine pass from Geary.

North looked good in the second half, holding Brookline to one goal after dropping behind, 4-1, in the first half.

Quincy and North will face each other for the first time Friday at 3:30 at the field behind Veterans Memorial Stadium. Tuesday Quincy will play at Newton.

Hennessey Wins Youth Road Race

Jeff Hennessey, Quincy Track Club coach, won the second annual Quincy Youth Road Race with a time of 11:44 for the two-mile course.

Quincy Track Club was well-represented in the race as Cliff Burgess placed first in the Bantam Division (11:23), Mary Crehan took first in the Girls A Division (13:30), Harry Morash won in the Squirts (14:38) and Georgia Traficante won in Girls C (15:02).

Other winners were Alan Svensen, Pee Wees (13:37), Mary Lou Sadowski, Senior Women (17:26) and Sean Barry, first Quincy Youth Hockey finisher in 14:51.

George Donovan, the Quincy attorney who was seeking the Republican nomination as a ticker candidate, in the November election.

Cerasoli won the 3rd Norfolk District nomination, which is tantamount to election, by holding Mrs. Nourse just about even in the Weymouth voting and overwhelming her in Quincy.

Unofficial returns from Weymouth gave Mrs. Nourse 1,905 votes to 1,888 for Cerasoli.

The Quincy rep, however, rolled up a 692 to 114 margin in the first precinct of Quincy's Ward 2 and a 491 to 78 bulge in the third precinct.

Reps. Michael W. Morrissey in the 1st Norfolk District and Thomas F. Brownell in the 2nd Norfolk District were unopposed.

In the closest Norfolk County race, incumbent Register of Probate Paul C. Gay of Walpole and Quincy's Thomas P. Hughes were neck-and-neck at 8 a.m. Wednesday with the town of Weymouth apparently holding the key votes.

With all but Weymouth counted, unofficial county-wide returns gave Hughes a slim 63-vote margin over Gay, 39,389 to 39,326.

The Weymouth vote was still unknown at Quincy Sun press time after computers to count the ballots broke down early Wednesday morning. Weymouth was to renew its tallying around 8 a.m.

In other county races, these Democratic candidates appear to have prevailed:

Treasurer James F. Collins of Milton, seeking a second term. The Quincy totals were Collins 16,384, Norman B. Cohen of Brookline 3,074.

Commissioner: David C. Ahearn of Norwood, who was named to the post after the death of Thomas McManus earlier this year. In Quincy, Harold Davis 8,466, Ahearn 3,381, Edmund Harrington 3,258, Francis W. O'Brien 2,689, Paul Hartnett 916, Thomas F. Egan 707.

William D. Delahunt was unopposed for Norfolk district attorney.

The statewide contests in November line up like this:

U.S. Senator: Edward W. Brooke, Republican, and Paul E. Tsongas, Democrat. Quincy Republicans gave their vote to Avi Nelson over Brooke, 2,474 to 2,337. City Democrats picked Paul Guzzi.

Governor: Edward J. King, Democrat, and Francis W. Hatch, Republican. In Quincy, the Republican Edward F. King won over Hatch. The Democratic King was Quincy's choice.

Lieutenant Governor: Thomas P. O'Neill III, Democrat, and William L. Cowin, Republican. Cowin won in Quincy while O'Neill was unopposed.

Attorney General: Francis X. Bellotti, Democrat, and William Weld, Republican. Both were unopposed.

Treasurer: Robert Q. Crane, Democrat, and Lewis S. W. Crampton, Republican. Crane was Quincy's choice; Crampton unopposed.

Auditor: Thaddeus Buczko, Democrat, and William A. Carey, Republican. Quincy Democrats went for Buczko, while Carey had no opposition.

The seven-man, one-woman race for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state was still up in the air in the early morning hours with Lois G. Pines and Michael J. Connolly running in front. Quincy gave Connolly its votes.

Republican John W. Sears was unopposed.

Chamber Obtains 2,300 Names For Tax Limitation Referendum

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has presented to the Committee for Guaranteed Property Tax Relief more than 1,800 certified signatures to place the Tax Limitation Referendum on the ballot in the Norfolk Senatorial District.

David Priestly, Chamber Vice President for Public Affairs, noted that several months ago the Chamber's Board of Directors endorsed the proposal and undertook the responsibility for obtaining the signatures in the Norfolk District.

He said that in addition to the 1,800 plus signatures—which was 600 more than required—the Chamber also turned in 500 signatures for the Norfolk and Plymouth Senatorial District.

Priestly said that while people enthusiastically supported the proposal, they felt it was not strong enough and that much more drastic measures should be taken. He said, however, that the Chamber's Board and its Taxation Committee felt that the "Conway Tax Limitation Proposal" objectives were among the most saleable, because they weren't extreme or drastic, which the people of Massachusetts more than likely would not buy.

He said they were designed to force increased efficiency in all levels of government and eliminate further expansion of government into areas where the taxpayers felt it shouldn't be, while cutting and holding the line on real estate taxes.

Priestly noted the referendum question is advisory in nature, but said an overwhelming vote in its favor "will provide the legislators with a mandate from their constituents, which cannot be ignored, and will be very measurable come election time."

2 Quincy Point Men Promoted To Sergeants At Jail

Abraham Abdallah of 48 Silver St., and John Burrows, 24 Moore St., both of Quincy Point, have been promoted to sergeants at the Norfolk County House of Correction and Jail.

Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall said both officers were recognized for their leadership efforts, as well as their high level of conscientiousness and concern with the correctional system.

Sgt. Abdallah recently completed Quincy City Hospital's emergency medical training course and will serve as the EMT officer on the evening shift. He joined the department in 1975.

Sgt. Burrows is an instructor in the vocational welding program, offering a learning opportunity to inmates who are interested.

Both men have successfully completed training courses offered by the Massachusetts County Correctional Training Academy. Burrows is a graduate of Quincy Junior College where he majored in law enforcement.

Who Will Get Harold's Council Seat?

by on-lookers at City Hall was that the seat would [or should] go to the runner-up in the at-large race in 1977. That was Dennis Harrington, who is now an assistant city solicitor. Speculation was that he probably would pass it up and keep his job in the solicitor's office.

Joseph Brett, former city councillor and state representative, finished behind Harrington and would be next in line if that method of filling the seat is followed.

Brett, who watched the returns come in at City Hall until early Wednesday morning, indicated he would be interested in succeeding Harold.

A Decade

FAITHFUL FAN -- Vin Contrino [right], South Quincy barber, must be The Quincy Sun's No. 1 reader. He has bought, read and kept every issue of The Sun since it first appeared Sept. 26, 1968. Here he displays tower of Suns for Sun publisher Henry Bosworth. Contrino is presenting Bosworth with all the copies for The Sun's files. All but the first issue which he is keeping because it is now a collector's item.

Sun Marks 10th Anniversary With Special Supplement

The Quincy Sun is 10 years old with today's issue.

We are celebrating this milestone with a special 24-page supplement: "The Decade That Really Changed Quincy."

It's a nostalgic recap in stories and photos of the big news events in Quincy from our first issue of Sept. 26, 1968 to today.

Such events as the coming of State Street South and the MBTA to Quincy, the turbulent "LaRaia Years", the ups and downs of General Dynamics Shipyard and the men and women who work there, the North Quincy High School controversy, the new political figures that have risen to prominence. And many more stories and photos.

This week you're getting two newspapers in one. The regular issue of The Sun and this fascinating 24-page supplement. We hope you like it.

It's our birthday present to you.

The Sun was established in September, 1968 as "Quincy's Own Weekly Newspaper"—a community oriented publication concentrating on Quincy news and Quincy people.

We have expanded our news coverage these past 10 years and will continue to do so in the future. We want to bring to you the best weekly newspaper we possibly can.

The Sun's weekly circulation is now over the 10,000 mark.

This week we are distributing 11,600 copies of The Sun.

A newspaper has a responsibility to its community and to its readers to report the goings on fairly and accurately.

We have tried to do that—giving those on both sides of an issue the opportunity in The Sun's news columns to present their side of that issue.

Editorially we have taken strong stands on issues. Perhaps too strong some political partisans might feel. But we have tried to tell it "like it is". In good conscience we cannot sit back and let things go unsaid that need to be said.

We will continue to offer both sides the opportunity to air their side of any issue affecting Quincy and its people and we will continue to speak out editorially — loud and clear.

Has Private Business Offers

Tobin Planning Bid For Second Term

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin, who lost his seat in the State Senate to Paul D. Harold last week on the two-job issue, is ready to campaign for another two-year term in City Hall.

"Right now," he said, "I'm contemplating running for re-election.

"If the people feel I'm doing a good job as mayor and they want to re-elect me to solve their problems, fine. If not, then I'd accept that also."

The Mayor, who is a lawyer by profession, said he is also "mulling over two lucrative offers" in private business that presumably would start when his term as Mayor is over 15 months hence.

Tobin lost the Senate seat that he held since 1971 to City Councillor Harold by a margin of nearly 2,000 votes, 17,106 to 15,348 in the district. Harold took Quincy, 11,626 to 10,645.

Prefacing his remarks with the words, "I don't want this to sound like sour grapes. The election is over and I accept it. This is just conversation," he analyzed his loss like this:

"It's quite obvious that the people listened to the two-job issue.

"If the people in the surrounding towns [Braintree, Holbrook, Avon] were concerned over the fact that I held two jobs, I could accept their thinking.

"The sad part is that the very people who put me into the office that created the two-job issue turned against me. That is the part that is sad.

"I sacrificed my Senate seat to help turn the city around and that's the thing that hurts."

Tobin said an analysis of the Quincy vote indicated to him that he was partly a victim of the cross-currents stirred up by the 11th Congressional District race, won by Rep. Brian Donnelly.

"I didn't get involved in that campaign," he said, "but it was obvious when the ballots were counted in West Quincy that those who supported Jim Sheets for Congress voted for Paul Harold.

"And they voted that way because people who supported me were voting for Donnelly."

Tobin lost Ward 4, which included West Quincy, by 1,973 to 1,564.

Upland Rd. Extension Backed

City Agrees To Wait For Merchants Go-Ahead On Downtown Connector

The Quincy Planning Department went into Tuesday night's environmental hearing on the Upland Rd. Extension with the full support of the downtown business community.

But the support was pledged only after the city had agreed, in writing, signed, on official stationery, that it would not promote the Granite St.-Revere Rd. Connector until merchants and residents have been dealt with to their satisfaction.

The controversy erupted last week when The Quincy Sun disclosed that many Quincy Center businessmen were upset because they felt they had not been given adequate information on the cross-town highway, which is planned to bisect Hancock St. at the Kincaide Building.

Both Planning Director Walter J. Hannon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, conceded that communication had been lacking between the city and the downtown businessmen.

"We made a mistake on this one as far as communication goes," said Hannon, who appeared with Baharian at a hastily called meeting with the businessmen and some residents of Revere Rd. Friday morning.

"The thing we did wrong was not talk it over with you people," said Baharian. "But it is not too late."

Baharian explained that Tuesday night's hearing involved environment reports only on the Upland Rd. Extension and the Granite St.-Revere Rd. Connector and that further hearings on the design stage are four or five months away.

"Walter and I speak for the Mayor," he said. "The Mayor's office will guarantee that we will not put the section under Hancock St. in design or under construction if it is not wanted. If you do not want it, it is dead."

Hannon said it was important to get the environmental reports out of the way quickly so that design and construction can start on the Upland Rd. Extension, which will connect downtown Quincy to the Southeast Expressway on the south for the first time.

"It would take us 18 months to write another Environment Impact Statement if we have to delete the Connector from this one," he said.

"We have sold developers that this is what Upland Rd. will look like. If this is overwhelmingly defeated on Tuesday, it will set us back three years. You will make

Barry To Become Part-time Legal Consultant To City

City Solicitor Richard W. Barry is shifting position slightly in the administration of Mayor Tobin.

He'll still be city solicitor, but on a part-time consultant basis and he may not carry the title.

"When Dick Barry came to work for me as city solicitor he accepted the job on a year-to-year basis because of the demands of his private law practice," said Tobin.

"He came to me several days ago and told me that, now the election is over and the demands on his time are increasing, he would like to work out a new arrangement.

"He suggested that he could work in the same capacity as Rev. Bedros Baharian as a consultant."

Rev. Baharian serves the city as city-wide development coordinator at $1 a year.

Tobin said Barry "is staying on with the administration as my top legal consultant."

"We are researching whether we have to have a city solicitor to sign city papers or whether one of the assistants can," said Tobin, "or whether we should promote one of the assistants to city solicitor."

The assistant city solicitors are Dennis E. Harrington and Robert J. Fleming.

Burger King Denied Free Standing Sign

Burger King restaurant on Tuesday was denied permission by the Quincy Licensing Board to erect a free-standing sign at its recently opened unit at 68 Granite St., Quincy Center.

The board turned down the request on the recommendation of Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald. At a previous hearing MacDonald had been asked by the board to act on the request.

He pointed out that Friendly's in Wollaston and the McDonald's under construction on Southern Artery, had both been denied a permit for such signs.

Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, told the board the planning department is currently working on a new sign ordinance which will "greatly restrict free-standing signs."

William O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society, also voiced opposition to the sign. He noted that plans are being made for a historic walkway in the area.

City Councillors Joanne Condon and Leo J. Kelly also were recorded as objecting.

Atty. Kenneth Zimble, appearing for Burger King, said the board's action had the affect of denying the company its property rights. He noted that the logo was Burger King's identification and appears in more than 2,500 locations throughout the country.

Litton Gets Jump

Destroyer Contract Loss May Cost Yard $14.1 Billion

General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard lost a $287.8 million contract last week -- and, as a result, apparently will lose $14.1 billion more over the next 10 years.

The Navy awarded the $287.8 million contract to Litton Industries' Pascagoula, Miss., Shipyard to build the first of 16 DDG-47 destroyers, a new class of ships.

Designing and building the first one will give Litton an advantage in bidding for the other 15, which will cost a total of $14.1 billion.

Landing the contract would have assured stability for a number of years at the Quincy shipyard, which now employs some 5,000 workers building liquefied natural gas [LNG] tankers through 1985.

Conservation Commission Sets Conditions For Badger Quarry Filling

The Quincy Conservation Commission has issued an order of conditions under which Badger's Quarry in West Quincy can be filled in a manner acceptable to the people of the area.

City Councillor James A. Sheets said actual work on the quarry cannot begin until the legal appeal periods are passed during which time interested parties could protest the order.

Sheets said the quarry hole must be made and maintained sufficiently free of water so as not to allow overflowing of the northeasterly rim.

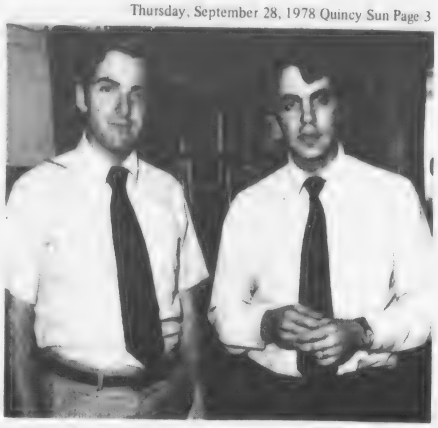
Prior to pumping, the Conservation Commission will be given information necessary to determine the storm drain input point so as not to overtax the system.

Under the order, fill material will consist of adjacent granite outcroppings and materials generated by road or sidewalk repair and MBTA excavating material provided it contains no muck.

Sheets said when the quarry is filled the slope of the grade will be as gradual as possible with sufficient cover material to provide for grass and bushes.

Burglar Alarm Systems Installed At Adams Birthplaces

Mayor Tobin announces that the burglar alarm systems at the Adams Birthplaces have been installed and are now in operation.



The systems were completed by members of the Quincy Fire Alarm Division under the direction of Jack Schmock.

Tobin said he hopes the new security measures taken will eliminate future problems at the city's most famous landmarks.

On Aug. 13 the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was broken into and the vest worn by John Adams at his wedding was stolen. The thief, or thieves, also made off with a musket, powder horn, a bayonet from the War of 1812 and six Civil War sabres.

All the artifacts were recovered two weeks later. They were found, rolled in a rug, less than 300 yards from the historical site.

Robert Kilnapp, 9 and Jonathan Brooks, 8, both of 43 Independence Ave., South Quincy, discovered the articles in back of a restaurant near their home.

CANCER HOT LINE

"I found a lump on my breast. If it turns out I have breast cancer, is surgery the only way it can be treated?

"Is cancer contagious?"

"My husband was just operated on for rectal cancer. Where can I find someone to help me care for him when he comes home?

Those are typical questions posed to a nationwide telephone information service that provides current, reliable information about cancer to the public. The service also helps cancer patients and their families find appropriate local sources of care. The cancer information service [CIS] is an on-going project, sponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the service is free - all it takes is a phone call.

There are 16 offices nationwide and when you call, you'll reach a professional staff person to answer your questions in layman's terms. Callers may remain anonymous; however, brochures or letters - some in braille or Spanish - may be mailed to callers to supplement information given over the telephone.

If you live in Massachusetts, the toll free number is 1-800-952-7420.

This information has been brought to you as a public service by NABORHOOD PHARMACY, 406 Hancock St., No. Quincy.

Thomas Hughes Elected Register Of Probate

Thomas P. Hughes, 39, of Quincy, a juvenile diversion supervisor in the office of Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, was the victor in the contest for Norfolk County Register of Probate.

Hughes defeated incumbant Paul C. Gay by a vote of 46,153 to 42,838. Gay, former assistant register, was elected to the six-year term in 1972.

The contest was one of the last to be decided. Until the Weymouth vote came in the contestants were separated by only 416 votes.

The tally in Weymouth showed Hughes with 6,888 votes and Gay with 3,157. There were also 2,260 blank ballots in this contest.

Hughes, who will be unopposed in the general election, said he will continue to work in his present position until the end of the year. He also said he hopes the present register will create a transition team to provide for an orderly transfer of the office.

Buffer Zones Ordered At Auto Storage Lot

The Quincy Motor Company, 85 Quincy Ave., has been ordered by the city License Board to start work "forthwith" on landscaping and drainage at their auto storage lot or face immediate revocation of their license.

The board's order came at the conclusion of a 90-minute hearing Tuesday, during which spokesmen for abuttors charged that on numerous occasions in the past the firm had failed to abide by the board's directives. The work is to be completed within 60 days.

Gregory Doyle, spokesman for residents, said conditions at the company's premises has been a matter of contention for nearly four years. He pointed out that the permit issued in 1974 was granted on the owner's statement a new building would be constructed.

Atty. David Drohan, counsel for Quincy Motor Co., told the board that economic conditions had changed and the firm is not presently in a position to undertake such construction.

Doyle contended the firm had offered three different sets of plans for the area involved and at one point had by-passed the license board and went directly to the city engineer with plans for installing a drainage system.

Doyle charged that Leo Darr, co-owner of the company, "intentionally misrepresented his plans to this board."

City Councillor Daniel Raymondi said that the original plans called for a 90-foot buffer zone and "nothing has been done about it in four years." He also pointed out that at a recent hearing the firm said it was not selling cars at the lot, but at Tuesday's hearing Atty. Drohan said cars were being sold.

City Engineer Edward Leone was called and testified that he had never seen the latest set of plans submitted by the company.

Councillor Raymondi recommended that the licenses be revoked.

Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald, a member of the board offered a motion calling for revocation. It was seconded by Fire Chief Edward Barry.

Police Chief Francis Finn, acting chairman, and Dr. Samuel Solomon, the health commissioner, demurred and the motion failed.

The board then passed a motion calling on the company to set up a 15-foot buffer zone on the Quincy Ave. side of the property; a three foot buffer zone on the side lot lines and a 50-foot zone at the rear. The motion also instructed the company to provide drainage, screening and landscaping that meets with the approval of the city engineer and the building inspector.

Monday and Tuesday morning services will start at 9 with evening services both days commencing at 6. The Shofar will also be sounded during the morning services of Oct. 2-3.

Yom Kippur services will start with the chanting of the Kol Nidrai, Tuesday, Oct. 10 at 6 p.m. All day Yom Kippur services Wednesday, Oct. 11, with the Yizkor [memorial prayer] during the morning services. Rabbi Samuel Kenner, Cantor Daniel Funk and Shamai Kurtzman will conduct all the services.

Rosh Hashanah is the beginning of the Jewish New Year starting at sundown. Yom Kippur the "Day of Atonement" which comes 10 days after Rosh Hashanah concludes this holy period.

According to the Jewish tradition, Rosh Hashanah is the day on which God judges the deeds of every man. Orthodox, Conservative and some Reform Congregations celebrate Rosh Hashanah for two days in accordance with ancient tradition. Most Reform Synagogues observe the holiday for only one day.

Special home rituals for Rosh Hashanah are festival candle blessing and the chanting of the Kiddush, a blessing over the holiday cup of wine. One of the beautiful customs of Rosh Hashanah is the eating of an apple, grapes or other fruits dipped in honey. A round "Challah" is used to reflect the continuous cycle of years and seasons. It also reminds the Jew that God is central to the Jewish people and its faith.

The greeting on Rosh Hashanah is "Leshanah Tovah Tikatevu" which means "May you be inscribed for a good year", first arose during the Middle Ages. The shofar is one of the world's oldest wind instruments, it means "horn" or "trumpet" and it is sounded during the Rosh Hashanah morning services and at the close of the Yom Kippur Day services.

The most common explanation of the shofar in the Rosh Hashanah service comes from the account of the binding of Isaac in Genesis 22 which is read on the New Year. The sacrifice of Isaac was averted through the substitution of a ram for the boy. This became the basis for blowing a ram's horn on Rosh Hashanah. The call of the shofar reminds the congregation of the need for doing good and for living an honorable and God fearing life and it also calls upon worshippers to repent any misdeeds.

One of the stirring prayers recited during the service is the following:

Our Father, our King, hear our prayer

Our Father, our King, we have sinned before Thee

Our Father, our King, have mercy upon us and upon our children

Our Father, our King, keep far from our country pestilence, war and famine.

Our Father, our King, cause all hate and oppression to vanish from the earth.

Our Father, our King, inscribe us for blessing in the book of life.

Our Father, our King, grant unto us a year of happiness.

Our Father, our King, be merciful and answer us; though we plead no merit, deal with us according to Thy loving-kindness and help us. — Amen

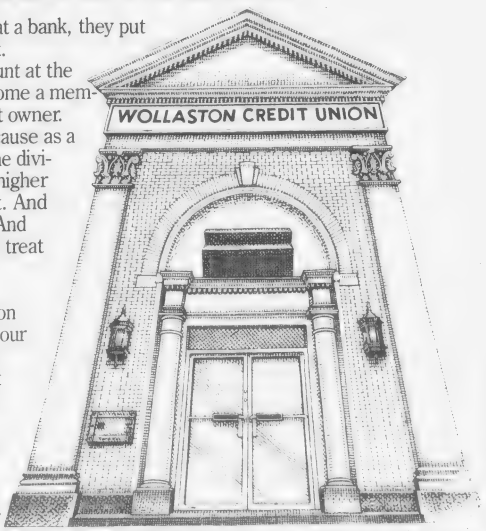
Between the drug store and the pizza parlor is not a bank.

When you open an account at a bank, they put your money away and that's that.



But when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union you become a member of the credit union and a part owner.

Which is no small point. Because as a part owner, you get a share of the dividends. In the form of generally higher interest on your savings account. And generally lower rates on loans. And because you're a part owner, we treat you differently here.

One more thing.

As a member of the Wollaston Credit Union, you are invited to our annual meeting and encouraged to voice your opinion about what we ought to be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as our president's. So we wouldn't be a bank even if they asked us.

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock Street. Phone 773-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs., 9 to 8 P.M. Tues., Wed. & Fri. until 5 P.M.

LaRaia Didn't Help, Says Harold Camp

Paul Harold's loyal workers are somewhat miffed--a few actually incensed--over the suggestion here that former Mayor Joseph LaRaia had anything to do with Harold's victory over Senator Arthur Tobin.

They insist Harold and they [his workers] should get the credit and that any inference that LaRaia helped is for the pigeons on Hancock St.

They agreed with this part in last week's column:

"There is no doubt he [Harold] worked hard, campaigned hard. And there is no doubt the two-job issue was a major factor.

"Many people sincerely believe two hats on a political figure is one too many. The issue was there in last year's city election but it was overshadowed by a bigger issue: corruption in Mayor Joseph LaRaia's administration."

But, they didn't like this:

"LaRaia, it appears, was an ingredient in Harold's big win Tuesday. LaRaia, according to City Hall on-lookers actually campaigned for Harold. And the LaRaia people came out and voted for Harold."

The Harold people also weren't too crazy about this:

"Observers took note with interest the periodic appearance at City Hall Tuesday night of Sarah Saccone, budget director in the LaRaia administration, checking on the Harold-Tobin returns."

The Harold people do agree that the LaRaia people came out to vote for Harold but insist LaRaia himself had nothing to do with the win.

"He was campaigning for McCarthy," says a top Harold worker. "The McCarthy headquarters were next to us. If LaRaia was seen around there, it was because he was at the McCarthy headquarters, not the Harold headquarters. If La Raia did any campaigning for us, it was without our consent or knowledge."

The same Harold worker sees LaRaia as a political hasbeen who couldn't deliver enough votes to help anyone.

"He couldn't deliver anything for Pat McCarthy".

Our mention in last week's issue of Sarah Saccone checking the Harold-Tobin figures primary election night at City Hall and a photo in The Patriot Ledger the same day didn't make the Harold camp too happy.

The Ledger photo showed a smiling Sarah [although not identified by name] wearing a Harold campaign button and holding what appear to be tally sheets at the Harold headquarters as Harold and campaign workers tabulated election returns.

Apparently, the Harold people wish Sarah had stayed home that night.

"She didn't do anything for us the entire campaign," says a Harold worker. "She showed up that night on her own. What could we do--throw her out?"

There seems to be some Harold people who now wish someone had. But in a polite way.

Her appearance at City Hall and the photo at the Harold headquarters election night seemed to fuel the rumors that LaRaia himself was campaigning for Harold.

Absolutely not so, insist the Harold people. Sarah turned up that night strictly on her own. And LaRaia was never asked to help, and didn't.

"Why would we want him," says a Harold campaigner. "Politically, he's the kiss of death."

Apparently, the last thing the Harold people want is to be associated with LaRaia.

ALTHOUGH THERE MAY be some people in the Harold camp who believe LaRaia is politically dead, other observers think he is still very much alive, politically.

Even LaRaia's strongest critics will concede he is a fighter. They don't underestimate him. He still has an ardent following. And he's still young enough for a political comeback attempt.

Speculation still is that he will seek a return to City Hall. Maybe via the council at-large seat being vacated by Harold in January.

Even if the seat is filled by a vote of the council, rather than by a special election in January, LaRaia could make his bid for it in the fall of 1979. Or, he may skip that and go for mayor.

THE HAROLD-TOBIN state senate primary race apparently was the most interesting for local residents. The Quincy Sun's election desk conservatively estimates more than 300 telephone calls were received seeking election returns primary election night.

Most of the callers sought info on the Harold-Tobin contest. Second most calls involved the Robert Cerasoli-Dolores Nourse race for state representative in the Quincy Point-Weymouth district. Third, for interest, was the Congressional race.

Tobin Planning Bid For Second Mayoral Term

Friday and Tobin said the visit was "most cordial."

"He told me he wanted to work closely with me," said Tobin, "and I said I appreciated that but it would have been nice if he took that attitude Jan. 3, when I was inaugurated. I could have used his help.

"He wanted to assure me that he was not involved with former Mayor [Joseph J.] LaRaia. I said I had information to the contrary, so let's drop that.

"We talked about some developments and things that are going on in the city that we could work together on.

"I asked him, without any animosity, if I could clear the air of some things that were bothering me. He said, 'Yes.'

"I told him I felt bad that he felt he had to make certain statements during the campaign that he knew were not true. He said that sometimes during a campaign many things are said.

"I said I could have come out and told about the real Arthur Tobin vs. the real Paul Harold and where we stand but I think the city has gone through too much of that."

Harold also called the Friday meeting "cordial" but he said he did not remember the details in precisely the same light in which they impressed Tobin.

"The purpose of the meeting was a reconciliation," he said. "I told him I wanted to work with him on projects that effect the city. We talked about some of the projects he wanted me to continue in the Senate."

It was not the only meeting which was attended by the newly nominated senator, who still has to defeat a token Republican opponent, Jens Thornton, in November before taking the seat.

He met with Planning Director Walter J. Hannon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian Thursday morning and went into Boston in the afternoon to confer with Senate Counsel James R. McIntyre and Senate President William Bulger of South Boston.

He said he asked the advice of McIntyre, a former senator from Quincy, on which committees to seek assignments.

Harold said he tried to conduct the senatorial campaign "so that people could like Tobin as mayor yet could vote against him for senator."

Apparently he was successful for Tobin told The Sun:

"Some people told me they were impressed with Paul as a nice young man and that 'We voted for him but we didn't think it would affect you.'

Here is a precinct breakdown of the voting in the Tobin-Harold senate race:

City Agrees To Wait For Merchants' Go-Ahead

our job harder if we have a totally negative hearing on Tuesday."

Merchants, particularly those at the south end of the Square oppose the connector since it will wipe out a number of buildings on Hancock St., affecting 34 establishments with more than 100 employees.

Some 60 of them showed up at a Thursday night meeting and passed unanimously a motion in favor of the Upland Rd. Extension but "strongly opposed to a connector that would break through Hancock St. to the Revere Rd. area."

Meetings with Hannon and Baharian Friday and Sunday mornings, however, mollified the objectors to the point where Richard Barker, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association was able to say:

"I feel the city is willing to work with us and it is best for us to support them in this effort."

But first, at the insistence of Robert Colman, owner of Colman's Sporting Goods Store, Baharian and Hannon signed the following guarantee:

"The city of Quincy hereby authorizes and agrees that it will not, beyond completion of the Environmental Impact Report, initiate any action that would promote the construction of the East-West Connector between the Parkingway and Revere Rd.

"Consistent with the agreement, the city will not proceed with any further planning, design or other progress of this portion of the project, nor will it promote any such action by any federal, state or local agency until such time as the concerns of the affected residents and businessmen have been dealt with to the satisfaction of the affected residents and businessmen."

Meanwhile, City Councillor Leo J. Kelly said he will use his Downtown Development Committee to strengthen the lines of communication between the city and the businessmen by holding monthly meetings a half hour prior to the Council's first meeting of the month.

Under Kelly's plan, members of the committee would meet with representatives of the Planning Department and the QCBPA to exchange information on what is going on.

GETTING ACQUAINTED -- Miss Mary Lou Glaman, kindergarten teacher at Snug Harbor School, Germantown, finds inquisitive young minds start asking questions the first day. Billy Keefe [left] gets the answer while Gina Cipitella [center] examines the problem and Elaine Kenney looks on. Billy's mother was in Miss Glaman's kindergarten 20 years ago. Gina's older brother started school in the same classroom, and Elaine has several uncles and aunts who were taught by Miss Glaman.

The Names Have Familiar Ring

In Germantown She's Everybody's 'Miss Kindergarten'

By PETER BARNICLE

The eager young faces may not be familiar, but the names have a recognizable ring to them when Mary Lou Glaman calls the roll in her kindergarten class at Snug Harbor School in Germantown.

Somewhere along the line a father or a mother, an uncle or an aunt had been in the same classroom and started the long process of learning under the guidance of Miss Glaman.

This year Miss Glaman is starting her 25th year at Snug Harbor, all but four of them teaching kindergarten. Those four were spent as a second grade teacher.

Most often the kindergarten teacher is the first person a child has any meaningful contact with outside the home. But more often than not the face and the name have faded into the mists of time. Such is not the case in Germantown.

"I had one boy some years ago who went on to Vo-Tech and studied culinary arts," Miss Glaman recalled. "He's now a chef in Minneapolis, but whenever he comes home he always drops in to say hello."

During and after the Vietnam war, men home on leave came by for a visit and now their children are sitting where they sat when southeast Asia was just another color on the map.

In 1956 Tommy Hoar was one of her pupils. Last spring Miss Glaman attended the first Mass of Rev. Thomas Hoar at St. Boniface parish, just across the schoolyard. Fr. Hoar is now a member of the Society of St. Edmund and stationed at St. Michael's College, Winooski, Vt.

Germantown is a close knit community and Miss Glaman has found that a good many of her pupils may wander for a while but finally settle down there.

"One of my girls who has been living here for some time had to move to San Diego this fall," she said. "Before she left she came over and told me and said that we will keep in touch by mail."

It is all very gratifying to a teacher who has devoted her life to seeing youngsters get off to a good start.

"It's a job of developing the entire child, not only academically, but also socially," Miss Glaman said.

"We try to teach them the social graces and table manners. We teach them how to get along with other people, how to play together and how to get along with their peers," she said.

In Miss Glaman's class teaching is not confined to the classroom. There is an art teacher to guide young hands, a music teacher, a physical education instructor and man from Title I.

"The physical education instructor helps them to coordinate their body movements," Miss Glaman said. "We have found that youngsters who can't do things with their body are not as well able to function in the academic world. So this is one of the things we stress," she said.

"We try to work with the children individually," she explained. "That's the theory of the entire Quincy public school system, to develop each child according to his or her potential."

She recalled one day sitting with a little girl teaching her to recognize the letters of the alphabet while across from her a little boy was reading a book on electricity and asking questions.

The kindergarten is now equipped with a Borg-Warner System-80 electronic audio-visual machine. Colors and subjects are flashed on a television-like screen and the pupil pushes a button to make the proper identification. In a way it's their introduction to the world of computers.

When the weather is good the class can be carried on in the play area, just outside the classroom door overlooking Town River.

Miss Glaman is innovative in any number of ways. She takes the children on field trips.

Coming up is a trip to Stowe, Mass., for an apple picking outing. Each child will come home with a bag of apples and a knowledge of how the fruit is grown and where.

At Christmas time the class, parents and brothers and sisters, will be invited on a trip to Edaville to see the lights and ride on the old steam train. Come next spring there will be a cookout at Faxon Park.

"We have been to the Adams Birthplaces, the Hancock Tower, an art museum and several other places," the teacher said. "It's all an effort to let them get to know the world around them."

One trip proved to be somewhat nerve wracking. It was a visit to the stores in downtown Quincy and included a stop at Remick's Serendipity Room.

"The people there were just wonderful, but with all that exquisite - and expensive - glassware around, I was nervous. The children didn't touch a thing," she said proudly.

"In fact, when we got back they started to talk about the things they had seen. I had to go back for another look."

The introduction of Early Childhood programs has served to ease the arrival of children in kindergarten. They have already learned to spend a little while with children of their own age. The pre-school training makes it easier to leave mother at the schoolroom door.

The youngsters are just as enthusiastic as in former years, but there are fewer entering school.

"We used to have three kindergarten teachers, each had two sessions. Now we have two teachers with two classes apiece, instead of six classes. The numbers in each class have also declined," Miss Glaman said.

The number of youngsters may have diminished, but Miss Glaman's enthusiasm has not waned in the slightest. She still takes a personal interest in all her pupils and Nixon was scheduled to arrive in Quincy by motorcade for a 20-minute speaking stop, then continue on to Brockton by New Haven railroad train, accompanied by the entire Republican state ticket.

Quincy Republicans chosen to ride the rails to Brockton with the candidate included:

NEW CLEANUP DRIVE

"The situation is bad, very bad," said the Rev. Joseph D. Parkman, chairman of the Quincy Literary Review Board, in announcing a new drive against dirty books on the city's newsstands.

Parkman, spurred on by a Patriot Ledger editorial complaining of "lurid novel reprints boldly displayed," said he hoped to clean up the city by Oct. 30, the date he was scheduled to report for active Navy duty.

Among the banned authors reported back on sale in Quincy were Donald Henderson Clarke and Nelson Algren.

'Positively Disgraceful'

McGrath Requests MBTA Clean Up Wollaston Parking Lot

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has called on the MBTA to clean up the parking lot at the transit system's Wollaston station.

In a letter to MBTA chairman Robert Kiley, Councillor McGrath said that the grass areas surrounding the lot are badly in need of trimming and noted the areas are "filled with heaps of trash and other assorted debris, causing the area to look positively disgraceful."

McGrath said it is unfortunate that the lot must get into such a deplorable condition before a clean-up crew is assigned to the area.

"If a regularly scheduled clean-up is supposed to be taking place here, I can assure you that it is wilfully inadequate," McGrath told Kiley.

The councilor urged Kiley to "notify the proper parties to institute a speedy clean-up" and maintain a regular schedule to control conditions in the area of the station.

Work Renewed On MDC Wollaston Beach Sub-Station

Work on the Metropolitan District Commission sub-station on the site of Kimberly's, Quincy Shore Drive, Wollaston, has been renewed and should be completed late this fall.

Representatives Michael Morrissey and Thomas Brownell recently expressed concern over delay in the construction and contacted MDC Commr. John Snedeker.

Snedeker has informed them "the short delay was caused by a late delivery of exterior brick and a technicality in the approval of the contract for the door frames."

Robert Welch National Merit Semi-Finalist

Robert J. Welch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Welch, of 71 West Elm Ave., Wollaston, has been named by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation one of 466 Massachusetts semi-finalists in the 24th annual Merit Program.

Robert, one of three B.C. High seniors named, is a member of the National Honor Society and a writer for the school paper, "The Eagle". He was also a singer in the annual senior show, as well as president of the Explorer Post at the Carney Hospital.

A member of the Military Collectors of New England, he has designed and constructed miniature representations of the Battles of Bunker Hill and Brandywine. During the Bicentennial, his displays were exhibited at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Heritage Plantation, in Sandwich, as well as in Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. One of his displays, "They Nobly Died", is part of the permanent exhibit at the Bunker Hill Monument. At several of these exhibits, he has been the youngest person to receive an award.

Brockton 23, North 16

Raiders Chase First Win At Newton North

North Quincy's football team dropped its second game in a row last Saturday at Brockton but Coach Dave Burke described the Raiders' performance as "100 percent improved over the first game" and he hopes this improvement will continue Saturday when North plays Newton North in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Newton's Dickinson Stadium.

North Quincy, after taking a 16-15 lead, lost to Brockton, 23-16, when the Boxers scored with less than 30 seconds to play.

"We improved 100 percent over our performance in our first game and I now feel we have a good team here," Burke said. "The offense picked up considerably and the boys did a good job. Kevin Cobban did a fine job passing and Tom Quinn and Jim Holleran ran well."

Burke singled out Dan McIntyre, Paul White, Brian McGilvray, Mike Spinale and John O'Leary in the offensive line.

Lauded for their play on defense were Leo Graham, Larry Baker, John Lothrop, Pat McKenna and White.

North's secondary was caught napping in the first period when Chuck Colombo hit Matt Walsh with a 67-yard bomb for the first touchdown. Colombo passed to Barry Desrosiers for the points.

In the second quarter Cobban passed to Holleran for 56 yards to the Brockton one and Quinn scored from there. Quinn crossed up Brockton by passing to Cobban for the tying points. Baker had set up the drive by intercepting a pass in the end zone.

A bad pass from center set up Brockton's second touchdown in the third period as the Boxers recovered on North's 16 and three plays later Larry Dunn scored. Walsh kicked the point.

The Raiders came right back and drove 71 yards in three plays as Cobban hit Quinn with a 56-scoring pass. Quinn again passed to Cobban to put the Raiders in front, 16-15.

Brockton's winning drive late in the game was set up when Walsh intercepted a pass on his 31 and 10 plays later Colombo passed to Walsh from the five with the game winner.

Dunn came up with the big play on this drive, running up the middle for 19 yards to the eight on a third and six situation.

Newton North, Saturday's Raider opponent, is 1-1, having defeated Framingham North, 14-0, but bowing last week to Medford, 10-2.

ENC Soccer Team Defeats Stonehill, 2-1

Eastern Nazarene College's soccer team improved its record to 2-0-1 with a 2-1 win over Stonehill College last week.

Senior Brian Kilpatrick scored late in the first half on a pass from Kevin Thomas, following a corner kick by senior Lowell Parkes. Stonehill tied it 1:34 into the second half and the teams were tied at 1 after regulation time.

Freshman Robert Reed scored an unassisted goal after 8:25 of the overtime period for the victory. However, it took a brilliant save by goalie Kurt Hulteen to preserve the win.

The ENC cross country team posted two wins in a triangular meet held concurrently in Nyack, N.Y., against Nyack and William Patterson College of New Jersey. The wins gave ENC a 3-0 record.

ENC defeated Patterson, 25-30, and Nyack, 22-33.

Two Crusaders, Steve Noftle and Tim Woodbridge, finished in a first place tie, setting a course record of 29:50 over the 5.2-mile course. ENC's Dave Slobuszoski took third. Other ENC scorers were Glenn Mitchell, Allan Douglas and Doug Hardy.

Improved Presidents Seek 2nd At Revere

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's football team travels to Revere Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. non-league game and Coach Tom Fitzgerald, pleased with the improvement shown last week, hopes to have two-way standout Ralph Pickering back in the lineup.

The Presidents, bouncing back from a one-point defeat, topped Weymouth South, 14-6, last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium in a Suburban League game with the defense turning in an outstanding performance.

Revere, a member of the Greater Boston League, was bombed by Arlington, 34-0, last week after playing to a scoreless tie with Haverhill in its opener.

"Our defense was super today, even without Pickering, one of our best defensive players," Fitzgerald said. "There were no breakdowns except for their long touchdown pass on which one of our players in the secondary was beaten.

"I thought the offense did well and here again we missed Pickering, who is one of our better runners. Dave Austin (a junior) looked good at quarterback.

"He ran very well and with a little more work his passing will come along. (Austin did the bulk of the ball carrying and scored both touchdowns). The big problem today was our fumbling. We didn't have a fumble at Cambridge and I can't explain all those fumbles today."

Pickering suffered a leg injury late in the opening game at Cambridge.

Quincy fumbled the ball away five times and, although it only lost the ball once on a fumble, Weymouth North fumbled several other times, recovering for losses.

Weymouth, playing in the league for the first time, wound up with a net gain of just 13 yards on the ground as the backs were hit eight times for losses.

Quincy had a net gain of 155 yards rushing with Austin gaining 61 yards.

Fitzgerald had good words for Austin, Pete Griffin and Tom Brennan for their running and Scott Richardson for his blocking.

John Nichols, who played offense for the first time, was lauded for his work in the line and also singled out for their performances in the offensive line were Paul Bandera, George McCarron, Vin Harte, Ron Cross, Gerry Grassi, Russ DiPietro and Bob Ciardi.

"Nichols learned the offensive plays in one week and did a great job," Assistant Coach Pete Chella said. "DiPietro at center did well against a real tough Weymouth player and Ciardi centered the ball back well on punts."

Quincy's punting, disappointing at Cambridge, improved as sophomore Greg Oriola got off some good kicks and showed great promise.

Nichols and McCarron also were praised on defense as were Glen Lydon, playing at end for the first time, Howie Chadbourne, Steve Cacciatore, Dan Goldrick, Lou Matthews, Steve Venturelli, Fran Donovan, Jeff Giordani and Charlie McCall.

Quincy got the ball on Weymouth's 26 midway in the second period when the Weymouth punter fumbled the ball. On the second play, however, Weymouth's Collis Brown intercepted a pass on his two. South failed to gain and Brown kicked to his 35 from where the Presidents drove for their first touchdown.

A 15-yard penalty against South put the ball on its 13 and four plays later Austin sneaked over from the one. The try for point failed.

Quincy received a break late in the third period when Weymouth tried a quick kick and the ball went only to its 33. The Presidents lost the ball on its fifth fumble on Weymouth's 16.

It didn't take long for Quincy to regain possession as Fran Donovan intercepted a pass and returned it to Weymouth's 34. A pass from Austin to Bandera for 17 yards sparked a drive which found Austin scoring from the six on a keeper around left end. He passed to Harte for the two extra points.

Weymouth scored late when Bob Fitzgerald threw a beauty to Jeff Knight, who took the perfectly thrown pass on the 15 and scored to complete a 49-yard play.

No Game At Stadium Saturday

Veterans Memorial Stadium will be empty Saturday as both the Quincy and North Quincy football teams play out of town.

Quincy plays at Revere in a non league game and North will be at Newton for a Suburban League game.

The next game at the stadium will be Oct. 7 when Quincy hosts Waltham in a league game.

North Defeats Quincy

North Quincy's cross country team defeated Quincy, 22-33, last Saturday in one of the features of the fourth annual public schools Olympic Day at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The win gave the Raiders a 1-2 record as they remained undefeated against the Presidents since the schools entered the Suburban League five years ago. Quincy fell to 0-2.

North's John McGuiggan was the winner, followed by John Furey, Quincy; Jim Coughlin, North; Mike Ricciuti, North; Joe Devine, Quincy; Bill Timmins, North; Mike Connolly, Quincy; John Barrett, North; Ed McDonough and Matt Doyle, Quincy.

North, with its thinnest squad ever, earlier had suffered its first defeat at the hands of Weymouth North since the teams had entered the Suburban League. The score was 27-29.

McGuiggan finished second, followed by Coughlin, third; Ricciuti, fifth, and Barrett, eighth.

The North girls also were defeated by Weymouth North, 19-38, in their opener.

The Quincy boys and girls' teams were defeated by Cambridge Rindge and Latin in their opening games, the girls bowing by a 20-35 score.

The First Ladies' Donna Reardon finished fourth, Paula Church was sixth, Tara Prince seventh, Francie Maloney eighth and Lois Guglielmi 10th.

The Quincy teams will host Brockton while North runs at Cambridge next Tuesday.

Midget A's Romp, 9-2

Quincy Youth Hockey's Midget A team romped over Winchester 9-2, last Sunday at Hockey Town in Saugus for its second win in a row.

Next Sunday Quincy will face Burlington's defending state and N.E. champions at 3:50 at the same rink. Burlington won the state's, New England's and did well in the Nationals a year ago. Quincy was the only team Burlington was unable to defeat.

Paul Dunphy had a big day against Winchester with five goals. Bobbie Craig, Robbie Zanardelli, Brian Ofria and Chris Daley had the other goals. Chris Daley and Tom Roche had three assists apiece, Robbie McHugh had two and Mark Andrews, Ofria and Paul Flynn one each.

Pee Wee Bs Bomb Milton

The Adams Shore IGA Pee Wee B hockey team bombed Milton, 12-1, in a South Shore "B" Conference game with Jay DeAngelis and Bobby Flannery in goal.

Demonstrations on emergency first aid, including C.P.R., and swimming skills were also presented.

A floor show including tumbling routines performed by the gymnastics participants, and a dance presentation involving over 30 students and some of the newest disco-dances, followed.

A slide-tape presentation of candid photographs taken throughout the program, and a cook-out closed the day's activities.

Donnelly To Meet With Burke On Transition

Brian J. Donnelly, the Democratic nominee for Congress, plans to meet with the retiring Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] next week to ease his transition into the Washington post.

Donnelly's victory in the Democratic primary last week is tantamount to election since there is no Republican opposition, only the U.S. Labor Party candidate, H. Graham Lowry, in November.

Following the meetings with Burke, Donnelly said he plans to get together with community leaders throughout the district to discuss priorities for his first congressional term.

He said his Quincy campaign office at 1661 Hancock St. will remain open through November.

Donnelly easily defeated five other Democratic candidates, including Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph, Patrick F. McDonough of Boston and James A. Sheets of Quincy, in the primary.

"I never dreamt I'd win by such a wide margin," he said.

TAPING PROCEDURES are practiced by Carol Maskel on "victim" John Servaes as part of First Aid and Safety demonstration at Title I Summer Outreach open house.

New North Quincy Station Site

Major Delay Averted In Quincy MBTA Extension

A threatened potential year and a half delay in the MBTA extension to Quincy has been averted and 22 North Quincy homes spared from demolition.

Mayor James R. McIntyre disclosed last night that the planned North Quincy transit station will be relocated 350 feet, preventing an ominous "long term" construction snag and taking of the homes.

But despite the development the Mayor does not expect trains to be running to Quincy until early 1970, mainly because of a construction slowdown caused by the iron works strike. MBTA General Manager Leo Cusick had predicted the Quincy line would be in operation by Christmas 1969.

The North Quincy station, the Mayor said, will be located 350 feet north of the new West Squantum St. bridge.

Original plans were to put the station immediately under the bridge with it extending 300 feet north and south.

The locations was selected as a result of a number of hearings in 1965 and 1966.

But the new site has been designated with agreement by city officials, North Quincy merchants and the MBTA, Mayor McIntyre said.

"MBTA planners and engineers thought the original site was the best location at the time," he said. "But since the, they have run into difficulty because of the Newport Ave., extension.

"It is a space difficulty-trying to get the Newport Ave. extension, the station and tracks and the Newport Ave., ramps to West Squantum St., all under one bridge."

The Mayor had innumerable meetings with MBTA officials to hold them to their original commitments to place the station under the West Squantum St. bridge.

"But," said he, "when we saw the preliminary plans for the station under the bridge would require the taking of 22 homes in the Holmes St. and Moscow St. area, I sought a meeting with the MBTA and the North Quincy

City Council Will Discuss Incinerator Plan Saturday

The City Council's special committee on dumping and refuse problems will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. to discuss a proposal for an estimated $2 million incinerator.

The committee will explore various methods of rubbish disposal including compaction before making a final recommendation on which is best for Quincy.

"Our quarries are rapidly being filled," noted Committee Chairman George B. McDonald. "We are fast approaching a crucial stage in which a long-range refuse disposal system must be agreed upon and thoroughly planned. We can't fool around with this any longer."

The full council membership has requested to sit with McDonald and regular committee members, Councilors Albert R. Bardaro, Edward Graham, Arthur Tobin and John F. Koegler, at the series of upcoming meetings to help find the right answer to the problem as soon as possible.

Councilor McDonald is also inviting interested residents to attend the committee meetings in the council chamber to hear the various proposals.

At Saturday's meeting, John Forrest, president of North American Incinerator Corp. of Boston will outline his firm's proposals for either a municipally or privately operated incinerator.

McDonald said one of that firm's special incineration features is rocket-type grates for complete combustion, leaving no unburned rubbish or garbage.

He said his committee, Mayor James R. McIntyre and key department heads have been invited to inspect the North American built municipal incinerator at Greenwich, Conn. He expects the Quincy delegation to make the trip within a week.

McDonald said of particular interest to the Quincy group will be a new section added to the 30-year-old incinerator six years ago.

Its furnace, he said, burns more than 300 tons of refuse a day at a cost of $5.75 per ton. Primary combustion is at 1,850 degrees with the rubbish itself the only fuel. "There are more technological advances developed by North American since then which may be incorporated in an incinerator built today," McDonald said.

He believes Quincy would require dual 250-ton capacity burners to handle up to 500 tons of refuse a day. He estimated the Peak Enrollment At Jr. College

Quincy Junior College has reached another milestone in its 10-year history with a fall total record enrollment of 1,687 students.

The figure, announced by President Kenneth P. White is 122 higher than last years.

The growth the school has, undergone in just a decade is shown by comparison of this figure with the first enrollment in September, 1958. Total students that opening year: 35.

Of the 1,687 students this year, 711 are in the full-time Day Division--592 freshmen and 182 sophomores.

The part-time Evening Division has 976 students including:

*Evening College, 464.
*Quincy City Hospital student nurses, 51.
*Evening Community Educational Services, 436.
*General Dynamics personnel, 25.

The 711 full-time students is an increase of 71 over last year's 640.

The biggest gain is the 436 students enrolled in the Evening Community Educational Services program for adults. This is nearly triple the 160 taking these courses last year.

The overall gain in total enrollment would have been considerably higher than 122 if it had not been for a drop in those taking courses at General Dynamics. There were 170 at General Dynamics last year compared to 25 this fall.

The college, keeping pace with its growth, now has three Deans assisting White. They are Hugo F. Sabatini of Quincy, Dean of Administration; Joseph J. Fluhr, of Squantum, Dean of Students, and Richard E. Mula of Braintree, new Dean of Evening Community Educational Services.

The college offers more than 60 courses in liberal arts, business administration, secretarial and continuing education.

Between 90 and 95 per cent of Quincy Junior College graduates go on to a senior college.

This is the first issue of The Quincy Sun

As you look over this complimentary copy you will notice we also call it, "Quincy's Own Weekly Newspaper."

And, that's what it is going to be--a weekly community oriented newspaper with emphasis on Quincy news.

We are not even going to try to cover the rest of the state, the nation or the world. We will leave that to other newspapers, radio and television.

We believe most Quincy residents would like to know more about what is going on right here in their own city--and why.

Our goal is to provide this information through our news columns, special features and photographs.

We intend each week to present comprehensive coverage of Quincy's government, schools, business, industries, civic, church, fraternal, social and veterans organizations.

We invite organizations and individuals to submit news items and assure you no item will be too small to print. If it is of interest to you, it is of interest to us.

That's why we call it "Quincy's Own Weekly Newspaper."

For awhile, we will sample the city with free copies of The Quincy Sun. Then we will seek paid subcriptions. In fact, subscription forms appear in this issue for those who want to become regular subscribers immediately and receive their copy of The Quincy Sun each week from now on.

We intend to improve and expand in the weeks ahead, adding new features and more news. Any suggestions you might have along this line will be greatly appreciated. This is your newspaper, too.

And, for the record, The Quincy Sun will be politically independent.

It will be fair and impartial to all--presenting both sides of issues of interest to the community.

It will cover the local news in depth and with integrity.

It will serve the community, its people, its business and industry, with respect for Quincy's proud past and dedication to a progressive future.

With your help and participation The Quincy Sun will shine brightly on the community.

Mr. Henry W. Bosworth, Publisher
The Quincy Sun
7 Foster Street
Quincy, Massachusetts 0 169

Dear Henry

As Mayor of the City of Q incy, may I welcome to our community The Quincy Sun and wish i every success.

It is imperative in these modern times that our people in Quincy know and understand the problems of the community and there is no better way than to have the issues of the day presented objectively, analytically, and fairly in a newspaper presentation. It is no less important that the people know what transpires in the community, that the government be given an opportunity to present its news and views, and that business and community organizations get adequate news space so their fellow citizens can know about the day to day activities and the direction in which Quincy is going.

I am pleased that The Sun has chosen Quincy for its location, and I am sure that the people of our fine City will be well informed.

My best personal wishes to you.

Very truly yours,

James R. McIntyre

Development

State Street South:

The move was made over the three-day Memorial Day weekend in 1973.

Fifty vans moved 50,000 pieces of furniture and equipment in 2,000 trips so that 2,000 employees who left their desks in Boston at 4:45 p.m. Friday were at work in their new Quincy offices at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday without missing a stroke of the pen.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon called it "a major milestone in the growth and economic revitalization of Quincy" and indeed it was for it turned the deserted fringe of the Montclair marshes into a $30 million valuation on the tax base.

State Street South had come to Quincy.

The landscaped, 22-acre facility with its 610,000 square feet of office space on five levels was the centerpiece in a campaign of development that changed the face of Quincy as the city fought rising municipal expenses with expansion of the tax base.

State Street South was the computer center of the State Street Bank and Trust Co., one of the largest private data processing centers in the United States and its dimensions proved exciting to statisticians.

It had its own power plant, at peak operation using as much power in one day as the town of Hingham [pop. 19,497] uses in a month; the interior courtyard covered one acre, large enough to accommodate the entire old State Street building in Boston.

There was a cafeteria, operated by Marriott, seating nearly 1,000, larger than most popular restaurants; landscaping included 168 shade trees, 2,000 Andorra junipers and 14,000 Baltic ivy; there was an in-house theater, an employee lounge.

"The birth of a new era of unprecedented growth and prosperity for Quincy," said William A. O'Connell, then the executive vice president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, and, to a certain extent, it was.

While State Street South was on the planning board, Jordan Marsh opened its Central Service Facility on 30 acres of the old Squantum Naval Air Station, the nation's largest distribution center for a retail store, serving nine Jordan Marsh outlets in New England.

It was so big that employees traveled from department to department by bicycle and Project Director James F. Claypoole used a golf cart to supervise the work. Merchandise was moved by 1,500 carts running on tracks.

Studies, reports and plans for the economic development of Quincy were popping up all over the countryside during the past 10 years. Some were heeded in part; none in totality.

A Harvard Business School Study Report in 1970 placed Quincy at the development crossroads. With proper planning, said Harvard, the city could be the Bay State's "boom town" of the 1970's; without it, it could stagnate.

The Harvards recommended, among other things, a massive renovation of the Central Business District, a through traffic system, new zoning laws to provide for high density living, and extension of the city's budget process from one to five years for more effective planning.

A $45,000 downtown redevelopment study by Charles G. Hilgenhurst & Associates turned out the famed "Hilgenhurst Plan" in 1973, envisioning a $100 million project revitalizing the Central Business District over the next 10 years.

It foresaw 300,000 square feet of new retail shop space, 130,000 square feet of new office space, 4,000 new households, a major retail store, parking garage and apartments in the Hancock Parking Area, and a major office development in the Della Chiesa Parking Lot.

Trying to avoid the big splash are Bank President Charles A. Pearce, City Council President Arthur Tobin [behind him], Treasurer Charles Simpson Jr., and branch Manager William Lomanno. Below, they enjoy laugh as they dry off. The photos, taken by Sun Staff Photographer Steve Liss, won a top New England Press Association award.

The Centerpiece That Changed A City's Face

Hancock St. was to become a mall from Revere Rd. to Cottage Ave.

"We've already got the ball rolling on turning the report into a reality," said John Cheney, city development director. "Now we've got to do a selling job."

Five years later, the ball was still rolling and the selling of the Hilgenhurst Plan was still going on.

In the dying days of the administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, the Mayor and his planning director, L. Norman Lundin, unveiled a massive $300 million, 15-year plan for the revitalization of downtown Quincy, including the demolition and reconstruction of half the Center.

Major points in the master plan included a new highway through the center of the city from Granite St. to Revere Rd., an international merchandise mart, a high rise motel topped by a restaurant, and a high-rise office building.

Reaction to the five-phase plan was

The LaRaia Years: Triumph And Turmoil

It began with the closest Mayoral election in 50 years, a recount that saw a phenomenal 617 votes change hands and a painstaking judicial inquest that still left lingering doubts in many minds.

It ended in another bitter election, fought on all levels from the gutter to the high road, that left one side triumphant, the other side nursing its wounds and sullenly waiting for another chance.

In between, it was two years of crisis piled on crisis, hirings and firings, suits and countersuits, indictments and convictions, and constant confrontation that brought the city to a virtual standstill.

Call it "the LaRaia years."

Joseph J. LaRaia, in the fall of 1975, was 43 years old and a veteran politician, winner of many races, loser of many more, a stubborn, often outspoken maverick, darkly handsome with a touch of charisma around which the foes of the establishment could coalesce.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon was 44, also a veteran of many ballot wars, always a winner, and a member in good standing of the establishment, which some called "the McIntyre Machine" and others thought of simply as a group of men friendly to former Sen. and Mayor James R. McIntyre.

The election, deemed so important that a record 34,374 voters turned out, was held on the traditional first Tuesday in November. Hannon won 17,060 to 16,926 for LaRaia. The recount was held two weeks later and, in a stunning reversal, LaRaia won 17,231 to 16,748.

The mystifying thing was that 600 of the 617 votes that changed hands did so in six blocks of 50 ballots. The half dozen packages of LaRaia votes had been erroneously credited to Hannon in the original count. To some, such a mistake tested credulity.

Strangely, it was Hannon who demanded an investigation.

"I won't leave this office with any impression...." he said. "I have nothing to do with the election, with counting votes. There'll be no aspersions cast at me."

District Court Judge Albert L. Kramer's in-depth inquest found that the miscount of the votes was an honest mistake made by six different people at six different polling places who wrote down LaRaia's numbers on Hannon's line on a tally sheet, the layout of which was confusing.

The error was compounded by the use of the "flash count" system of bundling votes in groups of 50 in order to obtain a quick result and the fact that none of the poll workers had been assigned to doublecheck figures obtained by the others.

Later, a committee of citizens, appointed by the new Mayor LaRaia himself, reviewed the evidence and came to the same conclusion -- that the election was honest but sloppy. But there were those, including the Mayor, who were still skeptical.

"You can never erase that small doubt from your mind," said LaRaia.

The new Mayor, the second of Italian descent in the city's history, was inaugurated Jan. 5, 1976, with a promise to "restore fair, open government to Quincy" and a warning that the city "like every other city in this nation, faces a severe financial crisis."

But soon it was apparent that Quincy's immediate troubles were not just financial.

One of Mayor LaRaia's first actions was to name Lt. Corady Solimini, one of his supporters, to replace Capt. Paul Nestor as inspector of divisions, in effect, second in command to Police Chief Francis X. Finn.

"The fact that the Chief and his top assistant [Nestor] campaigned for my opponent in the election had nothing to do with it," said LaRaia, possibly with tongue in cheek.

Finn filed suit against LaRaia, charging that the Mayor had exceeded his powers and, more than a year later, Superior Court Judge Ellis F. Brown ruled the Chief was right, the Mayor did not have the authority to make transfers or duty assignments within the Police Department.

The spate of firings that followed LaRaia's inauguration came to be called "the January Massacre" as the new Mayor wielded a fast broom in sweeping the remnants of ex-Mayor Hannon's regime out of City Hall.

"My election would mean nothing if I retained most of the appointees of my predecessor," explained the Mayor logically. "I need individuals in those positions who will serve with regard to my goals and not in opposition to them."

For some, however, it was difficult to see how the firing as a hospital secretary of Mrs. Dot DiBona, a widow with two children who had been Hannon's secretary, furthered the new Mayor's goals.

There were hirings as well as firings and the new appointments had their critics, too.

One of LaRaia's early appointments was James C. Short, 21, as retail store coordinator. He lasted 11 days. Later, he was convicted of stealing $500 and trying to steal $10,000 from a man who sought licenses to open a restaurant in Quincy Square.

JOSEPH J. LaRAIA flashed a victory smile and his wife, Louise, shed a victory tear, when it was announced that a recount had given him the Mayor's chair over Walter J. Hannon.

[Steve Liss Photo]

Another appointment, that of Stephen N. F. Anderson, son of former City Councillor Carl W. Anderson, as assistant director of City Hospital, irked the City Council for reasons never fully specified. Anderson quit after going unpaid for two months.

And Daniel F. McGinley of Squantum resigned five days after he was named Cemetery Superintendent when it was discovered that he had been under indictment for two years in Suffolk County on two criminal complaints.

The incidents cast an unfair shadow over the Mayor's other appointments and rumor followed rumor through City Hall until a delegation of city workers, led by John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, packed a City Council meeting in protest.

"If there are charges by the City Council or an individual citizen, I want to be confronted with him tonight," demanded Salenius and no one appeared to confront him.

"I think," said the Mayor, "there is still a bitter feeling with some of the Council members over the fact that I am Mayor and I wasn't supposed to be."

Then, in an astonishing move, LaRaia agreed to appear before the Council Oversight Committee to explain his appointments. The confrontation was a fiasco.

After angry exchanges with Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, the Mayor, a defiant Daniel in the lion's den, called a halt.

"I feel that we have nothing to gain by further discussing at length and in great detail what I feel has turned into an inquisition," he said and he walked out. The Council, he added, could come and see HIM the next time.

The crowning and crushing blow to the LaRaia Administration came two days before Christmas, 1976, when the FBI swooped down and scooped up Vincent LoCicero, the public works commissioner, and Herbert Reppucci, the assistant director of the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program.

They were charged -- and in October, 1977, were convicted -- of extorting

MBTA: It Finally Arrived . . . A Little Late

It was in mid-March, 1969, that MBTA General Manager Leo J. Cusick made a rash promise.

"I'll ride the first train into Quincy on Christmas Day, 1969," he said solemnly.

Cusick was ready. The trains were not.

It was early in November, 1970, that new MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly made another promise.

"Trains should be running to North Quincy around next Easter," he said.

More cautious, to be sure, but the trains stood up the general manager on that day, too.

Finally, on Sept. 1, 1971, the long-awaited first train to run over the MBTA's $75.4 million Red Line pulled into Quincy Center Station, 47 years after it was first proposed, six years after the plans were put down on paper.

Public transportation had returned to the South Shore for the first time since 1959 when the New Haven Railroad's Old Colony Line quit carrying passengers.

It was a gala occasion stretched out along the three miles of brand new track from Quincy Center to the Neponset River with each of the three city stations, North Quincy, Wollaston and Quincy, coming in for its share of the festive attention.

The list of dignitaries was long and impressive, starting with Gov. Francis W. Sargent, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, Mayor James R. McIntyre, and Carlos Villarreal, federal administrator of Urban Transportation.

There were the pretty girls, too – Georgina Hossfeld, Miss Massachusetts of 1970; and Randi Hurliss, chosen Miss Wollaston that very day; and Mrs. Claire McGillicuddy, the housewives' "Queen for a Day".

Best of all, there were free rides from the Quincy Center station to the "South Portal" interchange near Columbia Station, Boston, so riders could try out the new line before 15,834 dropped their 50-cent pieces in the coin box starting at 5:30 a.m. the next day.

By December, General Manager Kelly was calling the Red Line "extraordinarily successful," with 22,000 riders daily making the 14½-minute spin from Quincy to their jobs in the heart of downtown Boston.

Festivities out of the way, it was back to business for the MBTA, too, the business this time being the extension of the Red Line to South Braintree.

Already there had been hearings into the plan and already there was strong opposition, particularly to the location of a station in South Quincy near the North Braintree line at Capen's Bridge.

The storm around the South Quincy station reached an early climax on April 26, 1973, when a crowd estimated from 400 to 700 people jammed the Sterling Junior High School auditorium for a public hearing.

"A station in South Quincy is not necessary. There is no financial need for it or benefit from it," said Pasquale DiStefano of the South Quincy Civic Association. Against the station: 30 speakers and a petition containing 11,820 names.

"The Red Line must be extended out of Quincy Center or traffic will slowly stultify our economic core," said former Mayor James R. McIntyre. For the station: 37 speakers and most of the Quincy business community.

But, while South Quincy simmered, the MBTA pushed ahead with its plans with an environmental analysis of the South Quincy area, which included the Town Brook, subject to periodic flooding that harassed the residents.

FIRST MBTA TRAIN crosses Neponset River into Quincy Sept. 1, 1971. It was a little late in arriving.

The question went on the November, 1974 ballot but not before Robert A. Cerasoli, a first time candidate for State Rep, took it to court claiming the attorney general's office had reworded the public policy question to make it "confusing and unclear."

"I'll do anything in my power to keep this station from being built," said Cerasoli, but he lost.

Once again, on the referendum, the people of South Quincy voiced their opposition to the station, but the MBTA's plans went on.

When 109 rose to speak for the station and 32 spoke against it at a marathon 11½ hour hearing in June, 1975, foes claimed the Masonic Temple was "stacked" by proponents, and a group of them, headed by Rep. Elizabeth Metayer of Braintree, took off for Washington to block it.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, a proponent, noted that "residents anticipated traffic problems, high assessments and other negative changes when the Red Line first came to Quincy, but these changes didn't happen."

"The hearing was a farce perpetrated on the people of the community," snapped Cerasoli. "The decision has already been made to build the station."

And maybe he was right, for the air was still filled with protest when, in 1976, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration [UMTA] in Washington gave its approval – plus a $21 million grant.

We've been in Quincy for 45 years, and growing all the while.

In 1941, Barker's was located at 1 Maple St. in Quincy Square.

In 1927 our founder, Edward F. Barker, arrived in Boston on special assignment for Remington Rand Corp. Six years later, in the fall of 1933, he opened his own office supply store on Granite St. in Quincy. The store thrived and grew, expanding to a series of larger stores on Maple St. When World War II forced a freeze on the sale of typewriters and adding machines, Mr. Barker began a line of greeting cards with 3 racks. The idea was a hit that saved the business and Barker's became the largest single store greeting card dealer in New England. We moved to our current building at 1459 Hancock St. in August of 1974.

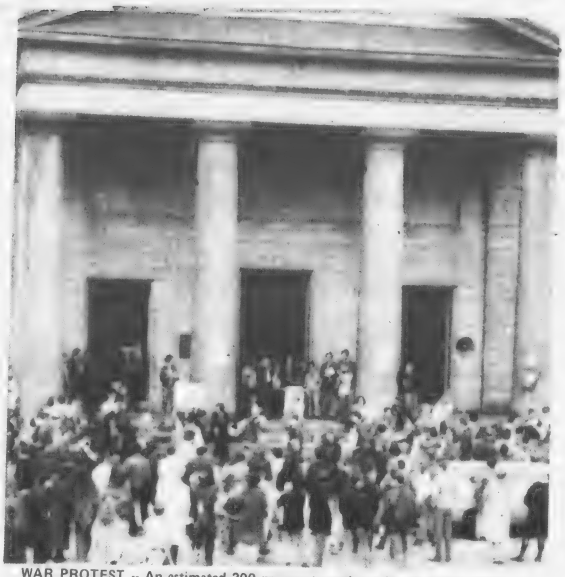
War

The Agony Of Vietnam

NAVY CMDR RICHARD A. STRATTON had to get the feel of American things like footballs following his release from six years imprisonment in a Vietnamese POW camp in 1973.

The great national agony of the past 10 years, the war in Vietnam, touched Quincy only occasionally but when it did it struck deeply.

In February, 1969, when the war in Southeast Asia was at its height, Mayor James R. McIntyre ordered the flag at City Hall to be flown "both day and night until the Vietnam war ends and the young men and women of Quincy return."



The flags were finally lowered in February, 1973, when the last Quincy boys, Air Force Capt. James Brudno, son of Dr. and Mrs. James Brudno of Wollaston, and Navy Cmdr. Richard A. Stratton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stratton of North Quincy, were released from POW camps.

"My home town was the root of whatever strength I have to resist the enemy and stay alive," said Cmdr. Stratton, who was in a POW camp for six years.

"We wept tears of joy," said Capt. Brudno of his release.

Four months later, a day before his 33rd birthday, he was found dead, apparently by his own hand, in the home of his mother-in-law in Harrison, N.Y.

A note beside his body read: "There is no sense to living any longer. My life is no longer worth living."

WAR PROTEST -- An estimated 300 persons turned out for an anti-Vietnam war rally on steps of historic First Parish Church, Quincy, in April, 1970. Keynote speakers were Boston University Prof. Howard Zinn and QHS teacher Ellis Swartz. Counter-demonstrators carried U.S. flags and placards such as 'Return To Patriotism' and 'Wake Up Quincy'.

"We're 89 Years Old."

THE $122,000,000 BUILDING.

This is what Quincy Cooperative Bank looked like in the spring of 1889. The address was 1431 Hancock Street and the total capitalization of the bank was $690.

Now, QCB has five offices, two in Quincy, one in Cohasset, one in Braintree and one in Hanover. And thanks to people like you, over $122,000,000 in assets.

That means that in 89 years, we've gotten 176,000 times bigger. That's growth.

And that growth has allowed QCB to play a big part in the progress of the communities we serve. Which is what cooperative banking is all about. And what we've been all about since we took the name of Josiah Quincy, Jr. at our founding. Josiah was the originator of cooperative banking in Massachusetts, and a man who always put the best interests of the people of his community first.

That's a tradition we're proud to uphold. And although Josiah lived in a day when a $122,000,000 cooperative bank was just a dream, we know for certain . . .

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

Landmark Closes Doors

An old Quincy landmark quietly passed out of existence in the summer of 1974 when Old Colony Laundries at 100 Quincy Ave. closed its doors and washing machines.

"I'm sorry to see the old place close," said Forrest I. Neal Jr., the owner. "But the purpose of the business is to make money. If it's not doing that it's foolish to keep on."

Four years later the rambling old building that dated back to the turn of the century was torn down and replaced by a super market with its shiny new macadam parking space.

O'Connell Family Tradition

When Paul E. O'Connell was sworn in as a firefighter in June, 1973, it represented the fourth generation of O'Connell on the Quincy Fire Department.

His dad was Lt. Cornelius O'Connell, who joined in 1947; his granddad was Capt. Timothy O'Connell, who entered in 1920; and his great-grandfather was Cornelius O'Connell, a call fireman in 1898 and a member of the first permanent force in 1918.

And there was also Uncle John [1925], Uncle Edward [1936] and Cousin Thomas [1964].

General Dynamics: Feast, Famine, War, Peace

The new general manager was, of course, optimistic.

"We intend," he said, "to make the Quincy Division the greatest shipyard in the world."

His name was Lloyd Bergeson and he was taking over the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard in October, 1969, when it employed some 8,300 workers and looked to hiring nearly 2,000 more to fill three Navy contracts.

By May of 1973, as finishing touches were being put to the last Navy oiler, the production force was down to 1,300 and Arthur Batson, president of Local 5 of the Shipbuilders Union predicted it would be down to 500 in a few weeks.

Seven months later, the keel was laid for the first in a long series of liquefied natural gas [LNG] tankers; by February, 1974, there was a backlog of $750 million in LNG contracts; and, in the summer of 1977, about 5,000 men were back at work.

Then, in September, 1978, the Yard lost a $930 million Navy destroyer contract, the first phase of a 16-ship, $10 billion order.

It was like that throughout the 1968-78 decade for General Dynamics Quincy shipyard – feast or famine in work orders, war or peace on the labor front with two long and bitter strikes.

P. Takis Veliotis took charge of the Shipyard in January, 1973, at a time when work was all but stagnating but prospects never seemed brighter.

"We are now optimistic about the future of the Yard," said GD President Hilliard W. Paige. "All thoughts we ever had about not being able to keep the Quincy Shipyard open are behind us."

"The opportunity exists," added Board Chairman David S. Lewis, "for Quincy to become our most profitable division in the second half of the decade."

But when the 1,800 members of Local 5 who were employed in the spring of 1974 sought to share in the expected profits they were rebuffed. They struck.

"We were the lowest paid shipyard in the United States at the termination of the contract," said Arthur Batson. Indeed, Local 5 had been working under a five-year contract since 1969. The rest of the yards had passed them by.

"The strike is going to last as long as the company wants it," Batson predicted.

The strike, joined in June by the 106 members of Local 90, lasted 123

NQHS: A Battle Over Crowded Conditions

It was apparent for some time that North Quincy High School was fast becoming physically inadequate.

Dedicated in 1927 as a junior high school, it became the city's second senior high school in the early 1930's and east and west wings were added to raise the capacity to 1,650.

But by 1971 it had 2,100 students and even the addition of the Teal Pond and Little Buildins in 1972 still left it 51 seats short of the current enrollment.

As early as 1964, the Arthur D. Little Co. reported that the land site [5.3 acres] was inadequate, 33 classrooms were too small to meet state standards, 46 others did not have enough teaching space, and library, home economics and science areas were obsolete.

Various solutions were advanced and rejected – a new North High near the Montclair marshes or on the site of the old Squantum Naval Air Station; a third high school somewhere in the Southwest Quincy area; an addition to the rear of the existing building.

The earliest proposals were leisurely made, leisurely rejected. But by 1974, time was running out. North Quincy was on two-year probationary accreditation and was faced with loss of even that unless facilities were expanded. This despite the fact enrollment was going down.

"The need for a new high school is not based primarily on enrollment," said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon. "It is based on the fact that the building is outmoded and antiquated and cannot serve as a high school today."

He proposed two sites for a brand new North Quincy High School:

One was a 50-acre tract once occupied by the Squantum NAS. It would cost $16 million or a net of $8.2 million to the city after state reimbursements.

Another was a 16-acre lot occupied by the Carlton House and a dozen homes on the bank of the Neponset River. It would cost $15.5 million, $8.1 million after reimbursements.

Public hearings in April and November of 1974 drew 400 and 1,000 people respectively. All agreed that the old school fell far short of contemporary standards but they were divided on the solution. One side wanted a new school; the other renovation and addition to the old one. A referendum was proposed.

"If this kind of move were to have been made," said Dr. Creedon, "it should have been considered years ago and not now when it is time to make a critical decision."

He proposed building a new four-year high school, converting the old building into Atlantic Junior High School, converting old Atlantic into an elementary school and closing antiquated Central Junior High School and the Parker and Massachusetts Fields Schools. It was a solution to all North Quincy's school problems in one stroke.

Dr. Creedon warned that North's probationary accreditation was to expire in June, 1975. There was a possibility, he said, that accreditation would be terminated, thus disqualifying North Quincy students from receiving certain kinds of scholarships.

Politics

A New Political Breed Comes Of Age

In the fall of 1968, Bob Cerasoli was a senior at American University, living on Ontario Rd. in Washington DW, a neighborhood just cleaning up after the spring riots that followed the death of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Paul Harold was a junior at UMass-Amherst, writing a paper on the tumultuous Democratic National Convention in Chicago the previous July, which he had attended as an aide to Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Danny Raymondi, senior linebacker, was elected co-captain of the Holy Cross football team and 4-year-old Mike Morrissey was being elected to the student council from the ninth grade at North Quincy High School.

Now they are State Reps. Robert A. Cerasoli and Michael W. Morrissey and City Councillors Paul D. Harold and Daniel G. Raymondi, all rising young stars on the Quincy political scene.

The turnover in politicians in the City of Presidents during the past 10 years has been almost complete.

The day The Sun first came out, James R. McIntyre was mayor of Quincy and its State Senator. Both jobs are now held by Arthur H. Tobin, who was then a City Councillor and a state rep. But just last week he lost his senate seat to Harold.

Only the perennial John J. Quinn remains on the City Council and Frank Anselmo has survived on the School Committee, but only by the grace of a resignation and election by his peers.

It was the 1971 election that introduced the first of the newcomers to the political scene, Danny Raymondi, 24, football at Holy Cross behind him, a law degree from Boston College still ahead.

Along with Francis X. McCauley and Harold Davis, Raymondi headed a slate of new faces chosen to the School Committee, elected from a field of 23 candidates that did not include any of the three incumbents.

Four years later, Raymondi, now a full fledged lawyer, was elected to the City Council.

Paul Harold, 23, also a law student at Suffolk, was next in the field although it took him a little longer to get started. He tried for State Rep in '71, lost to Tom Brownell. He tried for City Council in '73, lost to Leo Kelly.

Then, after two years of meticulous fence-mending, he was swept into the City Council in 1975 with the second highest vote [behind Tobin] of any candidate on the ballot, including some longtime heavy vote-getters. Last week he upset Tobin for the Senate seat in the Democratic Primary.

Like his Quincy High School classmate, Raymondi [they were president and vice president of their senior class], Cerasoli was victorious in his first try for State Rep, after a stint as legislative aide to Sen. Tobin.

It was a close election, the 1974 fight to succeed Clifford Marshall in the 2nd Norfolk District, but Cerasoli won over fellow Quincy Pointers Jim Papile and Tommy Williams in the Democratic primary, which was tantamount to election.

Mike Morrissey's debut in politics was, in a word, sensational. There was laughter when the 21-year-old youngster, barely out of UMass-Amherst, announced for the 3rd Norfolk District seat held by Rep. Joseph E. Brett for the past 18 years.

But Morrissey, doggedly pounding the pavement and mustering his family, the Morrisseys and the Goldens, by the squad, upended Brett in the 1976 primary and then overwhelmed him again in the general election when Brett continued to run on stickers.

The biggest upheaval in municipal politics came in 1973 when, complicated by a court-ordered redistricting, the city's voters elected no less than five new City Councillors to the nine-member Council.

They were Leo J. Kelly, in Ward 1, John J. Lydon Jr. in Ward 3, James A. Sheets in Ward 4, Warren A. Powers in Ward 5 and Dennis E. Harrington in Ward 6. Sheets and Harrington defeated incumbents, Albert R. Barilaro and J. Vincent Smyth.

Sheets, who was 38 at the time and chairman of the History and Government Department at Quincy Junior College, was the shooting star of the group, even though controversy dogged each political step forward.

When William Delahunt stepped up to Norfolk District Attorney from State representative in 1975, Sheets ran and won, defeating Lydon along the way. Three years later, he gave up that seat to run for the U.S. Congress, and lost.

While the other bright young newcomers were sworn into the 1974 City Council on time, Sheets' took the oath five weeks late when 10 taxpayers threatened suit charging conflict of interest in drawing salaries from QJC and the Council.

Superior Court Judge Harry Kalus, however, ruled that Sheets could accept both salaries since the City Council had only limited power over the school system. The charge popped up again after the 1977 election and the case is still unresolved.

Powers and Harrington served two terms each in the Council before their careers foundered.

Powers lost his bid for a third term to Stephen J. McGrath, a 24-year-old law student, while Harrington, perhaps facing defeat on his ward level, ran for an at-large seat on the Council and lost out to veteran newcomer Frank McCauley.

Harrington's successor in Ward 6 was Joanne Condon, only the second woman to serve on the Council and the first since Mrs. Edna B. Austin called it quits in 1959.

Women had all but taken over the School Committee by the end of the 10-year period when Patricia M. Toland won a seat in 1975 and Mary Collins and Joan Picard joined her after the 1977 balloting.

Only Frank Anselmo survived the 10 years on the School Committee. He lost a bid for re-election in 1977 but was chosen by his colleagues to replace McCauley when the latter resigned to join the City Council.

Squantum School Dedication

The new $1.3 million addition to the Squantum School was finally dedicated in the spring of 1971 after one last minute hitch was overcome by the students themselves.

Two truckloads of furniture arrived from Maine but there was no one to unload it so the drivers were threatening to take it all the way back.

Assistant Principal Dennis A. Carini rounded up a crew, including members of the sixth grade class, and they unloaded the truck in time for the dedication.

A Major Leaguer On And Off The Bench

He started out as a baseball player with the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Cardinals [illegible] when Kenneth L. Nash retired in [illegible] it was from 52 years on the judicial bench.

Nash served for 37 years as the presiding justice of the Quincy District Court and, in 1963, Gov. Endicott Peabody named him chief justice of all 72 district courts in Massachusetts.

The Tall Young Pitcher

The tall young pitcher for Sears Roebuck impressed everyone with his fastball in beating Burgin Platner, 5-0, in a Quincy Junior Baseball League game in the summer of 1975. Only it wasn't his. It was hers, Paula Morrison, age 12.

The Machine Guns

Quincy made the national network news casts in December, 1974, when Mayor Walter J. Hannon, alarmed by a 40 per cent increase in the crime rate, announced that he was arming police with machine guns to give them equal fire power with the crooks.

The majority of businessmen in a Quincy Sun poll were all for it, but the Civil Liberties Union called it "outrageous" and a worried Sun reader in Chicago called home to find out, "What's going on back there?" The guns were never used.

Average Family Income

The average family income in Quincy in 1969 was found to be $11,000, up from $8,000 in 1963.

Population

The 1970 United States census showed that 16,502 of the 87,966 people enumerated in Quincy were more than 60 years old.

Incorporated in 1889 as the Wollaston Cooperative bank with offices on Newport Ave., later it located at 80 Beale Street. In 1937, the bank converted to a federal charter and was named Wollaston Federal Savings and Loan Association. Then in 1948 a corner stone was laid for the present building at 15 Beach Street.

In 1971 the name was changed to Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy as part of its growth program. The same year, Colonial began its expansion into other areas by opening a branch in Holbrook. Another branch was opened in Wareham in 1973, and another in East Weymouth in 1976.

mixed. Most liked Phase I [the highway, a new major retail store and 900 more parking spaces]; but they thought the later phases a little too ambitious even for a city of 91,478, eighth largest in Massachusetts.

It was agreed that the most critical area of the city was the downtown business district, which was steadily losing stores at an alarming rate. The Center was shaken in 1977 when Milton's moved from Hancock St. to South Shore Plaza after 30 years downtown.

But help was on the way when approval was obtained for the Upland Rd. [later Burgin Parkway] Extension, tied in with the South Quincy MBTA station, which eventually would give downtown Quincy access to the Southeast Expressway by direct route for the first time.

The $2.4 million, 765-car Ross Parking Area Garage was opened in November, 1972, with a 10-day downtown festival during which $3,000 in prizes were given away, including a $1,200 mink coat won by Mrs. Gerda Johnson, a Wollaston grandmother.

The 130-year-old Quincy Savings Bank indicated its faith in a growing Quincy in 1974 by building and moving into a new and larger headquarters on Hancock St. across from the Quincy Center MBTA station.

And, in 1972, an old airplane hangar building on the site of the former Squantum Naval Air Station was converted into the Boston Harbor Marina recreational facility, including a skating rink and tennis courts.

A new Motor Vehicles Registry branch, built by the city for $227,000 and leased to the Registry for $29,350 a year, was opened in 1969 on Broad St.; and a new $2 million courthouse went up on Chestnut St., replacing the 50-year-old one on Coddington St.

The coming of the administration of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin in 1978 brought a new surge of development, capped by the transplantation of the National Fire Protection Association from Boston, its location for 82 years, into a planned $12 million facility in West Quincy.

There were those projects, too, that simply did not work out, like Mayor James R. McIntyre's plan to erect a $10-$15 million municipal complex, 14 stories high with a three-story civic auditorium seating 2,000 and two parking levels, to replace City Hall. That was in 1969.

Eight years later, with nearly $2 million in federal funds, a less ambitious, 3½ story annex in back of City Hall was started that promised to house those city departments scattered all around town while preserving old City Hall as a functional government building.

Another development that never saw the light of day was the Minutemen Memorial Coliseum, envisioned by Mayor Hannon in 1972 as a $12 million convention center and 13,000-seat athletic arena, using the air rights over the North Quincy MBTA station.

"A fitting facility for hosting the Bicentennial events," said the Mayor.

WHILE A LOT of buildings went up during the decade, some came down. Like the old Waldorf Restaruant, a long-time Quincy Sq. landmark that fell to the demolition bucket in April, 1970 to make way for the MBTA. The restaurant was earlier site of a tavern where Daniel Webster used to stop off enroute from Boston to Marshfield.

'Let's Have A Sidewalk Bazaar'

The first Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, brainchild of Remo DeNicola of South Shore Television, was held in July, 1970, and has been going strong ever since.

"We were looking for unity in Quincy Center and we found it by working together and giving the people something they wanted -- a lot of old fashioned fun and bargains," said DeNicola.

Congratulations on ten years of telling the story of Quincy's rich heritage.

Decade Of Feast And Famine For General Dynamics

days and when it was over in mid-July, the unions had won a three year contract with $1.48 hourly raises spread over the three years.

General Dynamics launched its first LNG in December, 1975, and there were contracts totalling $1.4 billion in the till in the summer of 1977 when labor troubles erupted again.

"We are shooting for wage parity with all East Coast shipyards," said Stanley Kyller, the new president of Local 5, as more than 5,000 workers walked out for the second time in three years.

This time the strike lasted 13 weeks, during which time there were arrests for violence on the picket lines and open hostility between union members, some of whom trickled back to work before the strike was settled.

The settlement, which amounted to a $2.40 hourly raise over three years for most, was so unpopular that Kyller advised state and local officials to boycott the signing, which he called "a hypocritical display of fraudulent good will."

Compounding the problems of the General Dynamics shipyard was the growing awareness that the Fore River Bridge, 175 feet wide, was simply too small to handle ships of a size that made transportation of cargoes economically feasible.

"I can build a 400,000-ton ship," said General Manager Veliotis in the spring of 1973, "but the biggest I can get out of the yard is 150,000."

It was figured that a new bridge between Quincy Point and North Weymouth should be some 300 feet wide but the projected cost [some $60 million] ruled out any funding sources except the federal government, which wasn't interested in replacing a perfectly sound bridge.

By 1978, however, the possibility was emerging that the Fore River Bridge could be declared "functionally obsolete" and rebuilt with the federal government picking up 90 per cent of the tab.

The MBTA Arrives

But the hard-bargaining South Quincy folks did extract one concession. Tied in with the station was a Town Brook Flood Control Project, one of the oldest and greatest desires of that flood-prone community.

For the business community, there was also a tie-in with the Upland Rd. [later Burgin Parkway] Extension which would connect the Southeast Expressway with the downtown area.

And, in 1977, MBTA Chairman Robert Kiley signed a memorandum of understanding with the city to open the way for depression of the tracks between Granite and School Sts., enabling the two halves of the downtown shopping center to join for the first time.

Most of the city was so happy with the arrangement, in fact, that the City Council anted up a half million dollars for design, demolition of old walls and construction of new ones for the depressed tracks.

Work began on the Red Line extension in 1978.

MAYOR ARTHUR TOBIN, the city's 29th chief executive, delivers inaugural address in January, 1978 at Vo-Tech gym.

Tobin's Election Ends Tumultuous 'LaRaia Years'

$7,000 from the Rocheford Construction Co. of Natick in connection with a $1 million contract to build an addition to the Merrymount School. Each got a year in federal prison.

And there was also the case of Ellen Nieters, who never got the appointment she possibly deserved.

Mrs. Nieters was selected by a screening committee of the Harborview Residents' Committee as the best qualified candidate to succeed the Rev. Peter Corea on the Quincy Housing Authority. Mayor LaRaia, perhaps with a knowing smile, sent her nomination to the Council for confirmation.

The Council would have none of the sharp-tongued Mrs. Nieters, a housing advocate whose dogged defense of tenant rights had made her a thorn in the side of the very Housing Authority on which she sought membership.

After a month and a half of debate and stormy hearings, the Council rejected the Nieters nomination, giving as its official reason that senior citizens had not been given an adequate role on the screening committee.

The appointment eventually went to a man no one felt up to turning down – the Rev. William Sharkey, associate curate of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Controversy swirled around the City Hospital for most of the LaRaia years, too.

Erratic accounting procedures delayed payment of bills from suppliers to the point where, President Tobin told the Council, "nine or ten vendors representing large medical supply houses have shut off the city's credit for non-payment of bills."

The troubles at City Hospital cost Harlan Payne the director's job he had held since 1962 and brought in Anthony DeFalco, former secretary of administration and finance for Gov. John Volpe. But DeFalco, as a LaRaia appointee, never fully won the trust of the City Council.

Nothing that happened during the LaRaia years touched the average citizen of Quincy as much as the staggering $34.90 tax rate increase that was announced in the fall of 1976.

It started when the Mayor presented the Council with a $78.7 million budget for 1976-77, up $10 million from the previous year. The Council cut where it could and sent it back to the Mayor, confident that, with a little juggling, it would produce a tax hike of little more than $10.

Soon, however, disquieting reports were filtering out of the offices of the Mayor and his budget coordinator, Sarah Saccone, reports of a tax increase of at least $25, perhaps $40. The Council snapped and snarled and called for the budget back, but it was too late.

As the day approached for city officials to go into the State House to get approval of the tax rate, members of the Council pleaded, threatened and stormed in an effort to convince the Mayor that it had the solutions to the tax problem, if only he would listen.

"Jack," said Tobin to Executive Secretary Salenius at one tumultuous Council meeting, "please don't go into Boston tomorrow and set a $40 tax rate increase. Don't do this great injustice to the city of Quincy."

The tax rate was set at $196.80, a rise of $34.90.

Mayor LaRaia blamed the increase on deliberate underbudgeting by the Hannon Administration in an election year and on "interference by the Council President in the procedures traditionally followed in establishing the tax rate."

Already the lines were being drawn for the 1977 municipal election. It had to be Mayor LaRaia and Council President Tobin, the two men around whom all the bitterness and frustrations of the two years had centered.

Tobin announced early in March, 1977 denouncing "the insensitivity and incompetence of the present administration that has placed the morale of our citizens at an all-time low."

A few days later, Mayor LaRaia reported finding a bullet hole in the rear window of his car parked in the driveway of his West Quincy home. Neighbors reported hearing what sounded like a shot at 4 a.m. LaRaia said the incident had "political overtones."

Tobin kicked off the campaign in early May with a slashing speech to the Quincy Taxpayers Association in which he called the LaRaia years "the most corrupt administration in the history of our city."

He also had some unkind remarks about the Post Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Boston's North End which had been flooding the city with heavily pro-LaRaia material. The Post Gazette promptly sued Tobin for $7 million worth of slander.

Depositions filed in the suit showed that LaRaia himself was the primary source of information contained in the first two articles of the Post Gazette series and they also showed 18 contacts between LaRaia and Phyllis Donnaruma, publisher of the paper.

Tobin won the September primary over LaRaia, 12,216 to 7,411, with four lesser candidates trailing far behind. Then the two surviving candidates got down to basics.

LaRaia disclosed his income and assets and challenged Tobin to do the same. Tobin declined but said he would refuse the $25,000 salary as mayor if elected and live on his state senator's salary of around $19,000.

LaRaia identified the main issue as Tobin's two jobs but Tobin said the overriding issue was corruption and, only three weeks before the November election, LoCicero and Reppucci were convicted of extortion and were sentenced on Election Day itself.

Tobin won handily 19,096 to 14,046, and the LaRaia years were over.

The Forget-Me-Not Remembered

For 182 years the omission went unnoticed. But the 1974-75 City Council filled the void. Councillors voted to name the forget-me-not the official flower of Quincy.

Homecoming

Ruth Gordon: Favorite Daughter

She was the city's most famous daughter and Quincy loved her and, from all indications, the feeling was mutual.

Ruth Gordon won an 'Oscar' in April, 1969, as the best supporting actress for her role in 'Rosemary's Baby'.

Four months later, it was 'Ruth Gordon Day' in Quincy when the vivacious actress showed up for the 55th reunion of the Class of 1914 at Quincy High School, widely acclaimed as the worst class in the school's history since no one made the honor roll.

She was back again in 1975 to address the city's 350th anniversary dinner, and for "An Evening With Ruth Gordon" at Eastern Nazarene College in which she held an audience enthralled for more than an hour with stories of growing up as Ruth Jones in Wollaston.

When she turned 80 on Oct. 30, 1976, it was proclaimed the "Ruth Gordon Weekend" and 1,400 turned out for the Birthday Ball at State Street South, and 750 more sat down to the Birthday Banquet at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph.

Proceeds of the weekend went toward the establishment of a Quincy-South Shore Cultural Commission, including a Ruth Gordon Theater for the Performing Arts.

SEN. EDWARD M. KENNEDY had to have a police escort from a Knights of Columbus communion breakfast when he was besieged by Boston anti-busing demonstrators in North Quincy, in January, 1976. Controversy

Boston's Busing Problem Reaches Into Quincy

Most folks in Quincy thought it was strictly a Boston problem but court-ordered busing to achieve integration of the Hub's public schools couldn't help but touch on its next door neighbor.

When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, an exponent of busing came to Quincy in April, 1975, to speak at a North Quincy Knights of Columbus communion breakfast, anti-busing groups from Boston brought their protests to the doors of Atlantic Junior High School.

Kennedy, once a hero to Bostonians, was taunted, poked and jeered by some 200 demonstrators who marked his car with anti-busing slogans, deflated the tires and pursued him to the North Quincy MBTA station, held back by the cordon of police protection.

At least some of the city's financial problems were blamed on Boston busing, including $2.2 million lost on the cherry sheet in 1975.

"We are paying for busing," said Mayor Walter J. Hannon. "Boston needs the money to bus the kids. If busing wasn't there, I don't think we would have lost any money on the cherry sheet."

City Council President and Sen. Arthur H. Tobin vowed to fight a bill introduced by Boston legislators that would require suburban communities with median incomes over $12,059 to open 10 per cent of their school seats to city youngsters. Quincy's median was $11,094.

"We believe in the neighborhood school concept," said Hannon. "To play with the lives of children in order to meet the requirements of the law is, to me, a cruel hoax perpetuated on the public under the banner of educational soundness."

The Voice Was Familiar

The face may not have been familiar but the voice was to members of the North Quincy High School class of 1943 at their 25th reunion in 1968. It was Ken Coleman, the voice of the Boston Red Sox.

NQHS Addition Begun After Months Of Controversy

In an effort to hasten a decision, Mayor Walter J. Hannon joined the problem of North Quincy to that of the Merrymount School for bonding purposes, which touched off a furor.

"Those are two different issues that should stand on their own merits," protested City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, whose Ward 1 included Merrymount.

"A selfish attitude," said Hannon.

The City Council took the first tentative step forward in 1975 when it requested a $12 million bond issue for renovation and addition to the existing North Quincy building. But so many stipulations were attached to it that the State School Building Assistance Bureau shot it down.

Time was running out and, unfortunately, the North Quincy issue was becoming entangled in the factional disputes and the political intrigues of the LaRaia years.

For a while in 1976, it seemed that the long controversy was about to be settled at last.

There would be additions and renovations to North Quincy and Merrymount schools to the tune of $15 million. North would be closed for three years during construction while its students attended double sessions at Quincy High.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's opposition to the plan was well known but his own special advisor on the project, Prof. Earle F. Littleton, recommended that it begin as soon as possible, so at last it seemed assured.

Then the Mayor stunned the city by refusing to sign the bond issue.

"I do not want to commit the taxpayers in our city to this financial burden," he said.

The School Committee hired former Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn to seek ways to force the Mayor to sign and a group called The Concerned Citizens for North Quincy High School was formed to fight for the addition.

"If need be we'll go to court," said a spokesman for the group, which was seeing years of effort about to go down the drain. "Somebody has got to stop him before he fouls things up completely."

Finally, after the Mayor had explored a plan to renovate the old building for $1 million or less, a compromise was reached.

The project was trimmed to $13.5 million for 1,700 students, not 2,000, and the double sessions were to be at North Quincy alone, leaving Quincy High out of the plan.

That settled the matter? Not quite!

A company called Kent Corp. was hired for $310,000 as management consultant to speed the project along.

But it had barely gotten started when it was discovered that a clerk of the works at $600 a week had also been hired to act as liaison between the city and the contractor. A lot of people thought Kent Corp. had been hired to do that.

And a City Council investigation turned up the fact that Kent Corp., under its contract, could also bill the city for a series of apparently unlimited additional expenses. Some councillors figured the city could be billed twice for $170,000 in expenses.

That was settled to no one's complete satisfaction when Kent President George Cuker signed a "memorandum of agreement" specifying that the city would be billed for $310,000 in fixed fees and would not be billed twice for the same employees.

And that finally settled the matter? Again, not quite!

When the new administration of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin took over the city in January, 1978, it was discovered that the North Quincy project, which by this time had grown to $16.1 million, was 155 days behind schedule and would not be ready for students in September, 1979, as scheduled.

And it was also discovered that Kent Corp. had already been paid an estimated 82 per cent of its contract despite the fact that the project was less than 50 per cent completed. Kent was fired and the matter went to a mediator.

A new plan -- costing the city an extra $300,000 -- was worked out that would see the whole project completed by Dec. 31, 1979, with students occupying both the addition and the renovated old building during the semester break.

And that apparently settled the matter?

MOUNTAINS OF SNOW, left behind as the plows moved on, dwarfed pedestrians at the corner of Hancock and Chestnut Sts., Quincy Center, after the Great Storm of February, 1978, dropped 27 inches of snow on the city.

[Jonathan Burak Photo]

Weather

The Blizzard Of '78: It Won't Be Forgotten

Larry Mirick, who lived at 126 Turner St., around the corner from Edgewater Drive, Houghs Neck, put it best.

"About 9 o'clock," he said, "just before the lights went out, I went to step off the porch and I was up to my waist in water. It was then I realized we really had a problem going here."

Mirick was describing the Great Storm of February, 1978, which some called a blizzard, a terrifying day and night of snow and wind and raging seas that brought the state of Massachusetts to a standstill for the better part of a week.

In Quincy, the full fury of the storm was concentrated on the Houghs Neck peninsula, particularly in the low-lying area where Turner St. met Edgewater Drive behind the low concrete sea wall. Larry Mirick lived there.

"We've been down here 25 years," said Mirick. "We figured, hell, we've been through this before. It's nothing new. My neighbor and I parked our cars up the street there. I figured I was well out of the high water mark.

"We came back to the house for a cup of coffee. About 8:30 he came out the door to go across the street and he stepped off into eight inches of water. The first thought I had was, 'My God, and we got two hours to go to high tide.'

"I couldn't believe it. In 30 minutes the water went from the first step, over the second and the third and it was up level with the porch.

"My wife, Doris, and I started moving everything up to the second floor. We sat on the bed together upstairs in the little bedroom. It may sound crazy but I must have said the Lord's Prayer 20 times in a row.

"At the height of the tide, about 10:30, I came down the stairs. I was up to my knees in the water in the living room.

"I looked out the front porch and I could see the sea wall. It was well lit by the new lights down there. The sea wall was completely under water. It was about two feet over the sea wall and the waves were crashing in against the houses.

"It took the garage out across the street. It moved those two trailers over there, one of them against the fence, the other one in the other yard. It took the guy's porch off across the street.

"I'll never forget those lights. I never saw them so bright as they were that night. You could see the whole ocean right in here. Right across there, nothing but solid water.

"When I saw my front porch going, I thought that was it. I thought the house was next. I never could have gotten my wife out of here. There was ice in the water and driftwood. You should have seen the size of some of the debris down there.

"We stayed here all night, all during the storm. Every time a wave hit the side of the house it would shake. I looked up the street and my car had gone under water. It never did that before, not even on a 13½ foot tide."

Mirick and his wife survived and there was no loss of life due to the storm in Quincy, but the devastation was terrific, an estimated $70 million in damage, $600,000 for snow removal alone.

It started on Monday, Feb. 6, and when the snow stopped falling on Tuesday there was 27 inches on the ground. Gov. Dukakis forbade all but the most essential highway travel for nearly a week and Quincy youngsters got an unexpected six-day vacation from school.

Radio Station WJDA, off the air four hours when high tide flooded its transmitter in Germantown, stayed on the air past its sunset closing to broadcast emergency reports and members of the staff slept at the station.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, in office barely a month, and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti set up command post at Civil Defense headquarters on Sea St. to direct snow removal and relief operations for the elderly, the ailing and the hungry.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration opened a field office in the Vo Tech School gym to process emergency loan applications and the Red Cross turned part of Quincy High School into a disaster center for emergency housing, clothing, food and medical supplies.

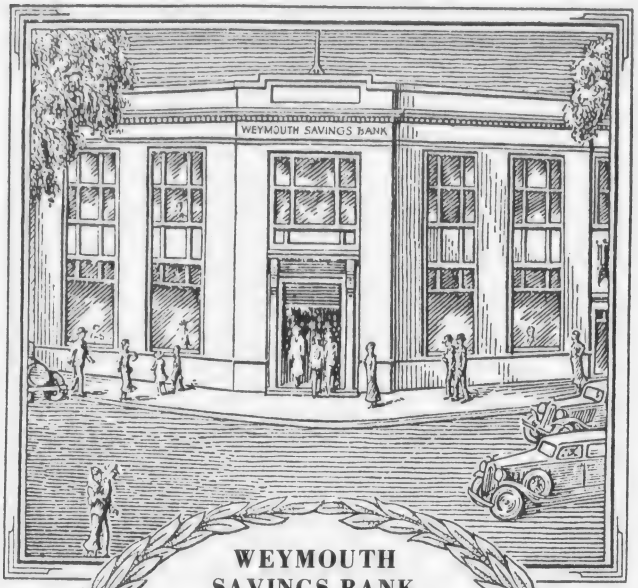
All this on top of a 22-inch snowfall on Jan. 20 -- "The worst January storm in our history," said Tobin, who hadn't seen nuthin' yet -- and it was barely cleared away from many parts of the city before another nine inches fell on March 4-5.

There were many stories of heroism and neighbor-helping-neighbor, particularly in hard-hit Houghs Neck.

Warren Sines organized a bucket brigade to put out a fire on Stoughton St. that could not be reached by fire truck; and James [Red] Riley, custodian of the Atherton Hough School, remained at his post to help refugees despite the fact that his own home was flooded.

Sylvester Ray, whose heavy equipment was hired to clear the Houghs Neck streets of snow, wound up in the Edgewater Drive section during the storm rescuing people from the second floors of their beleaguered homes on the bucket of a front-end loader.

There were isolated instances of looting, of course, but in the words of Mayor Tobin:



"There's always some good that comes out of every happening and the blessing of this blizzard was that it brought the people of our city together."

LONE PEDESTRIAN trudges through the deepening snow on Hancock St. as the Great Storm of February, 1978, all but obscures such familiar landmarks as First Parish Church and City Hall.

Court Case Looms

'Improper' Valuating Charged In Fabrizio Firing

Attorney for ousted assessor Hugo [Flip] Fabrizio says he plans to file suit in Norfolk Superior Court by the end of the week for a declaratory judgement restoring Fabrizio to his $21,700 post.

Fabrizio, who was named an assessor in February, 1977, by then Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, was fired Monday for what Mayor Tobin called "improper assessments resulting in a detriment to the city of Quincy."

Atty. James P. Sullivan said Fabrizio will ask the court to determine if the Mayor has the right to terminate an assessor on his job without cause.

"By law," said Sullivan, "assessors are named to staggered terms of three years. If the legislature had wanted the Mayor to have complete control it would have made the terms coterminous with his."

Mayor Tobin, in a letter of termination filed with the City Clerk Monday afternoon, gave these reasons for firing Fabrizio, whose term was not due to expire until February, 1980:

- "Continual failure to properly assess property in the city of Quincy."
- "Improper assessments resulting in a detriment to the city of Quincy."
- "General inability to comprehend the governing statutes on assessment."

The primary circumstance in the firing of Fabrizio was an increase in the assessment of State Street South property in North Quincy which State Street is contesting before the Appellate Tax Board.

Should State Street win its appeal, Tobin said, it could cost the city more than $2 million in abatements.

In a letter to Tobin, released by Fabrizio at a Monday news conference on the steps of City

Seeks New Department

Tobin Zeros In On $10 Million Owed City In Taxes, Bills

Mayor Tobin is seeking to create, at least temporarily, a new municipal department to go after nearly $10 million that is owed to the city in excise taxes and bills for services dating back to 1975.

Tobin said he regards the new department as so important in offsetting possible huge tax abatements that he was prepared to go before the City Council Monday night to plead for a favorable vote on it.

The Council, however, passed up the Mayor's offer and dispatched his request to its Finance Committee after some cautious questioning on the cost and permanence of the new department.

The department, under the auditor and the treasurer, would have an administrative assistant at a yearly salary of $15,500 and five deputy collectors at $12,540 each.

Tobin asked the Council for $34,325 in Anti-Recession Grant funds to get it started. Auditor Charles L. Shea said it would cost $55,000 for the rest of the year, $78,200 for a full year.

Tobin said the six new employees "are going to be working on a personal basis on uncollected taxes so we can offset the increase in the cost of government facing us in 1978-79.

"We have several huge law cases pending in the Appellate Tax Board at the present time which could have an adverse effect on the city. Whatever money can be recouped will be used to stabilize and hold the tax rate."

Tobin indicated that the possibility of the city winning the case before the tax board is not good.

The Mayor declined to name the company involved in the tax suit but other sources indicated that it is State Street South.

"The company," said Tobin, "appealed the assessment levied by the previous administration. I hesitate to say too much so as not to jeopardize the position of the city.

"In discussing the law as it is stated, we're not in too favorable a position at this time in our negotiations."

Tobin said that "we could be talking between one and two million dollars."

Treasurer Robert Foy indicated that collectors in the new department will be primarily after more than $3 million owed the city in excise taxes for the period ending June 30, 1978.

He also said the city has more than $5 million tied up in receivables at the City Hospital and about $1 million in past due water bills.

The Mayor said he was hopeful that the new collectors could come up with "in excess of a couple of million dollars."

Tobin indicated that the new department might become permanent "if it is successful and puts us operating efficiently, but we'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Hospital Wins Accreditation But Finances Study Begins

Touche Ross and Co., a Boston accounting firm, has begun a study of City Hospital finances which, said Mayor Tobin, will lead to "recommendations to put the hospital back on sound footing."

The Mayor signed the $43,000 contract last week.

Meanwhile, City Councillor Joanne Condon announced to the City Council Monday night the hospital "has received its two-year accreditation for the first time in a long time."

Tobin said Touche Ross' study of the Hospital goes beyond the terms of a $35,000 contract the company signed with the city last summer to do a citywide audit, including the hospital.

The latest study of the Hospital is an outgrowth of the first, which produced a recommendation for "a complete overhaul of the financial structure and upper management level in the hospital," said Tobin.

"If we do not take immediate action," he added, "we may be running the risk of another deficit at the hospital.

"Touche Ross feels reasonably sure they can at least attempt to turn the corner. They have a track record of improving hospital operations in other areas."

The Mayor said the city ended the last fiscal year close to $3 million in debt from the hospital, some $800,000 in appropriation deficit and $2 million in revenue deficit.

"We cannot allow that to happen again," he said.

Mrs. Condon said the Hospital has long been operating under a one-year accreditation because of deficiencies having to do with the age of the plant and not the services.

"The accreditation team found that a lot of the problem areas have been taken care of," she said. "The remaining deficiencies are mostly administrative."

Two years is the longest accreditation given to a hospital, she said.

QCBPA Committee Meet With Planning Board

Richard Barker, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, has named an eight-member committee to meet monthly with the Planning Board on downtown development.

Members are Edward Coyle, Maxwell's Parrot; Irving Kerman, Kustom TV; Joseph Angelo, Remick's; Sumner Cohen, , Kincaide's; Charles Ryder, Ryder's; Jack London, Quincy Furniture; Robert Colman, Colman's; and Jason Feldman, Jason's.

They will meet with the Planning Board on the third Wednesday of each month at 3 p.m. in the Planning Department office on Sea St.

One of its purposes is to study the impact of the East-West connector road on the downtown business community and general overall revitalization.

Downtown Odor Still A Mystery

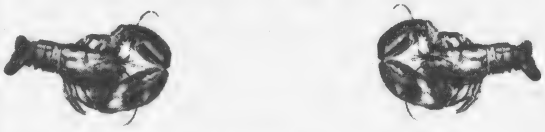
Efforts to discover the source of an oil seepage causing detectable odors in several stores along downtown Hancock St., have so far failed, according to William Cashins, senior sanitary engineer with the state division of water pollution control.

Alfred Pactovis, owner of Reliable Shoe Store, 1502 Hancock St., reported the odor several weeks ago and said he had noted an oil film where the Town Brook surfaces at the rear of his property.

According to Pactovis several stores adjacent to his establishment, and across Hancock St. have also noticed the odor.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valente, head of the fire prevention bureau, said he had sent crews into the area and took samples of the oil. It was sent to the state chemist who identified it as household heating fuel.

Valente said his men removed a number of manhole covers to seek the cause of the film and odor.



Cashins said he and a city official had walked the culvert, underground, from Hancock St., under the Ross Parking Garage as far as the MBTA project, checking all storm drains.

He reported that in the past few days the oil film has not been observed, but a watch is being kept on the area.

Board Denies Licenses For Quincy Sq. Arcade, Chinese Food Takeout

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy License Board Tuesday turned down two applicants requesting to do business at 1358 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., on the grounds the location was not appropriate for either type of business.

One applicant sought a permit for an 'Arcade' type entertainment center. The other asked a license to operate a Chinese food take-out shop.

John J. Casanova informed the board he wanted to install 15-20 video games; 5-10 target practice games; 10-15 pinball machines and two air hockey tables at the store which is presently vacant.

Board chairman John Gillis asked the applicant "Do you think this would be good for Quincy?"

Casanova suggested the arcade would help keep potential loiters out of the square, but Police Chief Francis Finn commented "We have had experiences with these machines, and none of them have been good."

City Councillor Stephen McGrath appeared to oppose issuance of the license saying that it was not in keeping with redevelopment plans for the downtown district.

City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the council's downtown development committee, and Councillor Joanne Condon were also recorded as opposing the license.

Austin Wickens, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association told the board that merchants and other businessmen in the area wanted to voice their opposition.

Mrs. Lin Yuen Choi appeared before the board to request a license for Wang Cheng, Inc., doing business as Super Dragon, for take-out orders of Chinese food.

Chairman Gillis said the location is not the proper place for a take-out restaurant.

Fire Chief Edward Barry, member of the board, said the parking problems in the square are difficult enough at present.

Gillis suggested that Mrs. Choi try to find another location and resubmit her application. She was permitted to withdraw the request without prejudice.

Park Dept. Moves To Old Merrymount Nike Site

The administrative offices of the Quincy Park Department and the Conservation Commission have been moved into new quarters at 100 Southern Artery, the old Nike site in Merrymount Park.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board, said the move was made last week by Park personnel and vehicles from the old offices in the JFK Health Building, 1120 Hancock St.

The three building and one garage complex in Merrymount Park was built in 1956 as a permanent military installation for the Nike battalion.

It was taken over by the city two months ago, paid for with a $386,000 federal grant, said Koch.

The Recreation Department Administrative Office will remain at the Health Center until mid-October pending opening of the fall and winter recreation programs and completion of office renovations at the new complex.

Telephone communications were installed at the new site previous to the move with all telephone numbers remaining the same for the convenience of the general public.

Park and Recreation Board meetings will be conducted at the new complex, on the first and third Mondays of each month at 6:30 p.m. while the Conservation Commission will convene at the new location on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 7:30 p.m.

When moving is completed, all Park, Recreation, Conservation and Forestry Department activities will function from the 100 Southern Artery site. The four agencies each were at different locations previously.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Spit and polish is an old Navy term. It refers to the method sailors use to get everything from shoes to the brass and gold trimmings on their ships to shine. Well, a little spit and polish, or at least polish and elbow grease, can bring a lot of shine to the gold, brass, and silver articles around your home. Use of silver polish and brass cleansers can bring the shine back to any piece. When your gold, silver, or brass is beautifully polished, its beauty and value becomes apparent.

When you're looking for gold or silver jewelry, or gift items, be sure to see our beautiful displays at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. It's not to early to put your Christmas gifts on Lay-Away. We have a large selection of gold chains, in all lengths and styles, and also a fine choice of clocks by Chelsea, Seth Thomas and Cornwall and watches by Bulova and Seiko. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

Ceramic Highlights by Gloria Marshall

Article 2

What is Ceramics? Ceramics involves all types of earth forms whose shape is altered at some point by heat to change it into another form; whether it be decorative or utilitarian. The base of this form is various combinations of silica and alumina, otherwise called earth itself. Ceramics includes all materials associated with clay and glass which could be: stoneware, porcelain, earthenware, enamels, glass, chinaware, and terracotta. Ceramic forms can be hand modeled or cast from molds. Ceramics is an art and not a science. Don't expect every piece you make to turn out perfect. The unexpected can and may happen. We should all strive for perfection – but it is not the hobby for the perfectionist. It's the hobby for complete relaxation and constant enjoyment for all ages. Try it!

Board Approves Tire Sales, Light Repairs At Perfectune Site

Don Taddeo Tire and Rubber Co., 21 Adams St., Quincy Center, has been granted a license to conduct tire sales and light automotive repairs at the site formerly occupied by Perfectune, Inc.

The License Board issued the permit after making it subject to several stipulations. These include a limit of 15 automobiles on the property at any one time; four in the shop and 11 outside. No car to be parked on the street, and only minor repairs to be undertaken. The board also set hours as 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Donald J. Taddeo, who will operate the shop, said he "could live" with the conditions and promised to keep the property in good condition.

Before the license was granted Roger Hammill, representing Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, told the board the funeral home's main objection was to the possibility the property would not be maintained.

Joseph Gallagher, owner of the property, explained that Taddeo would be a tenant-at-will. He said the property at the junction of Adams and Hancock Sts., has been used for automotive work for more than 50 years.

Police Chief Francis Finn cautioned Taddeo that he would have to be sensitive to the area which is close to the Adams Academy, the JFK Health Center and the funeral home.

Austin Wickens, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, told the board that four abuttors would prefer to see some other type of business located on the site.

Board chairman John Gillis pointed out that the commissioners did not have the authority to insist on the automotive use be abandoned.

Taddeo informed the board he has already purchased $15,000 worth of equipment for the shop and pointed to his many years in the automotive business in Quincy.

No Special Election To Fill Harold Seat

Quincy taxpayers apparently will be spared the cost of a special election to fill the City Council at-large seat Paul Harold plans to vacate.

The city's Plan A charter spells it out: in the event of a vacancy on the City Council it shall be filled by a vote of the remaining councillors.

Harold has said he will resign from the council in January if elected state senator.

All that stands in his way now after his Democratic primary victory over incumbent Arthur Tobin is Jens Thornton who will appear on the November ballot as the Republican candidate.

Observers expect Thornton, who has run for a few things without success in the past, to keep that record intact.

They figure it will take a major miracle for Thornton to win. Even if he were a strong vote-getting Republican he would have trouble in the Democratic dominated district.

Harold appeals to a lot of Republicans as well as Democrats and Independents. Observers feel Thornton thus will be running more as a political lone ranger rather than as the Republican choice with many, if not most of the GOP votes going to Harold. At least there has been no indication so far that Thornton can count on much help from the GOP party, or local Republicans. Harold, on the other hand, had some Republicans helping him during the primary campaign.

So, it would appear that Harold will be resigning his City Council seat after the November election or by early January to serve as a full-time state senator -- his No. 1 promise during the primary campaign.

And, if the remaining eight councillors are the ones to pick his successor, who will it be?

The man who could probably have the job if he wants it is Dennis Harrington, former Ward 6 councillor now assistant city solicitor.

Harrington, runner-up in last year's council at-large race, is well respected by the present council. There's no doubt he would have enough votes to win the seat.

The big question: does he want it?

"I'm leaning toward it," Harrington confides. "But there are financial and family obligations I have to consider."

The assistant solicitor's job pays $19,000. A city councillor $3,000.

And with City Solicitor Richard Barry planning to be a part-time consultant, the possibility of becoming solicitor opens up to Harrington. That job pays about $23,800.

Regardless of who gets the seat, Quincy taxpayers won't have to pay to find out.

ALTHOUGH THE STATE election isn't until November, local interest is already shifting to next year's city election. And the Speculation Corps is busy wondering who might be running for what.

They wouldn't be surprised to see Sarah Saccone, who battled with last year's City Council over the tax rate as Mayor Joseph LaRaia's budget director, make a bid for the council herself. They think she may run for the Ward 2 seat now held by Daniel Raymondi.

And Hugo [Flip] Fabrizio, another staunch LaRaia follower who was named to a city assessor's post by LaRaia, and ousted this week by Mayor Arthur Tobin, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Ward 4 seat occupied by James Sheets.

BRIAN DONNELLY, who won the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 11th district [tantamount to being elected in November] evidently "ran hard" during the campaign. Enough to lose 26 pounds, anyway.

SPEAKING OF DONNELLY, local observers are wondering who he will name to head up his Quincy office. Eddie Moore did a nice job of it for James Burke and a lot of people around here hope Donnelly will ask Moore to stay on.

THE POLITICAL GRAPEVINE has it that former Mayor Joseph La Raia would have gotten the Congressional Quincy office job if Pat McCarthy had won. LaRaia worked for him in the primary election campaign.

"IT WAS A labor of love, not a duty," said former School Committee member Charles Sweeny when the board honored him recently for his 22 years of service.

Sweeny, who lost his bid for re-election last November, was presented a captain's chair inscribed in gold lettering with his name and "Quincy School Committee".

Long-time Committeeman Frank Anselmo who also lost a re-election bid last year [but was then appointed to succeed Frank McCauley who was elected councillor] presented the chair and warmly recalled his years on the school committee with Sweeny. [It was Sweeny who threw his votes to Anselmo to get the vacated McCauley seat at a joint City Council-School Committee election].

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon thanked Sweeny for his long years of service and his support of the professional staff.

Other members of the committee presented Sweeny with an album of photographs and other mementos.

And Mary Collins, who with Joan Picard made Sweeny a former school committeeman in the election, gave him a kiss.

Tobin Fires Fabrizio

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Hall, the ousted assessor said he could not "in good conscience" change his position on State Street South.

"I, in good faith and drawing upon my extensive business experience and skill, voted to increase the valuation of State Street South; and by the way, it was a unanimous vote," he said.

The assessors at the time were Fabrizio, James Papile and Elmer K. Fagerlund, the chairman who was replaced when his term expired last February by John Comer.

Tobin said Papile, who was also appointed by former Mayor LaRaia in February, 1976 will be "dealt with separately. He is not in the same category."

Fabrizio said it was the unanimous judgement of the assessors "to fight State Street South's abatement [claim for a refund] all the way."

"In that spirit," he said, "the board of assessors engaged an attorney. All of a sudden Chairman Comer changed his view and met with you and the representatives of State Street South last Friday."

Tobin said only that the Friday meeting was "relative to the problems facing the city. There were no officials of State Street South there."

"If I seem evasive to you," the Mayor said, "I'm just protecting the rights of the city. It's a big law case and the less we say...."

Tobin said he talked to Fabrizio about resigning last Thursday.

"I said I was disturbed with information I received from the assessor's office showing some irregularities and I was asking for his resignation," said Tobin.

"He asked me to cite one specific example. I said what is going on at State Street South.

"I asked him, 'Did you place an assessment on the personal property at State Street South?' He said, 'Yes,' he signed it.

"I told him the way I would want to handle this. He has a position as a member of the board of directors of a bank and he has a business in the city of Quincy. If he wished to resign I would accept his resignation."

Fabrizio declined to resign.

Comer said the board of assessors placed a $2.7 million assessment on State Street South's computers, despite the fact that in prior years they had been exempt as personal property of the corporation.

Fabrizio told his news conference that he had not been in the State Street South computer room prior to assessing the equipment.

Fabrizio questioned Tobin's motive in firing him.

"Am I being penalized and fired for honestly carrying out my duties and impartially assessing State Street South?" he asked in his letter to Tobin. "Or is there some other reason?

"You told me either to resign within 24 hours or you would fire me.

"I can now understand why you gave me the 24 hours -- the taxpayers of Quincy have a right to know the outcome of the meeting that you said would be conducted on Friday, Sept. 29, with the chairman of the board of assessors, John Comer, and officials of State Street South relative to any refund of taxes made on their behalf."

Fabrizio said that "in each of the past three years, the valuation of that property has risen $2.7 million, realizing the city of Quincy tax revenues approximating $500,000."

Tobin called the assessing practices under Mayor LaRaia "strictly political."

Fabrizio called his ouster "grossly unjustified and a disservice to the taxpayers of the city of Quincy."

Harold Comments On 'Sunbeams' Column

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As one who formerly wrote the "Sunbeams" column in your newspaper, I know it is one of the more popular columns because it deals with political facts, speculation and rumor that piques the imagination, and political analysis which, if not always accurate, at least is always interesting.

But your column of last week went far beyond analysis. Its unreasonably harsh treatment of two individuals was unworthy of publication, and was certainly most unworthy of the Quincy Sun.

The remarks made by my campaign aide, were not authorized by me, nor by the Harold Committee.

The campaign aide made a telephone call to the editor to try to set the record straight on a previous "Sunbeams" column which seemed to give undue credit to one group, but failed to provide any credit to the Harold volunteers who gave up their summers and sacrificed their personal lives from February to September to help with the campaign.

The campaign aide attempted to clarify what some felt was an unfair "Sunbeams" column, but in so doing, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and former Budget Coordinator Sarah Saccone were unfairly treated. It was poor judgement, indeed, to publish such remarks, which serve no purpose other than to fuel the Tobin-LaRaia factionalism which has so seriously divided this city in the past.

I had hoped we were beyond this politics-by-hatred, which outrages the vast majority of Quincy citizens, who work hard, pay their taxes, and want their government to accomplish something.

The Harold Committee was the beneficiary of much-appreciated help from people who supported Arthur Tobin in the past, people who supported Joseph LaRaia in the past, and people who supported any number of other candidates in the past.

But let us have done with the past. I do not intend to become embroiled in other peoples' fights, nor to feed the flames of factionalism.

The people have said they want a fulltime state senator, and I intend to give them one.

Quincy Point Meeting Oct. 10

Taxpayers Face $700-900 Hike Without Classification Amendment, Says Tobin

Mayor Tobin and his closest tax advisors will be at the Pollard School in Quincy Point, Tuesday Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m. to explain the tax classification amendment that will appear on the November ballot.

Tobin said if the amendment does not pass that, under 100 percent valuation, it would cost Quincy taxpayers between $700 and $900 in real estate taxes or $60 to $70 a month in additional mortgage payments.

Following a ruling against the town of Sudbury a few years ago, cities and towns in Massachusetts are under the judicial gun to re-value real estate within their borders at 100 per cent of market value.

The classification amendment, one of whose sponsors is Tobin, would permit the communities to value commercial and residential properties at different percentages of their market value.

"We want to explain to the people of Ward 2 how 100 per cent valuation without the classification amendment would affect their pocketbooks and their mortgage notes," said Tobin.

"If there is a good turnout and the people are interested, then we will set up similar meetings in the other five wards and do the same thing for the whole month of October.

"We want all the people in the city to know what is going on so when they vote in November they can't say that they did not understand the amendment."

Tobin said that the Board of Assessors researched the last 575 real estate sales recorded in the assessor's office and found that the average selling price was $34,500.

"The average tax bill on those sales was about $1,250," said the Mayor. "The average tax bill on those sales under 100 percent valuation would be something like $1,925.

"If the Mayor and the City Council were to hold the tax rate to a zero increase for fiscal 1979-80, the effect of 100 percent valuation would be to increase the tax on every household between $700 and $900.

"If you divide that by 12 months you will see that the individual mortgage payments would increase from $60 to $70 a month. That's the devastating effect 100 percent valuation would have on the city of Quincy."

Tobin said that John Comer, chairman of the assessor's board; William J. Callahan, former assessor now his financial advisor; and Marion Fantucchio of the Assessor's Department will accompany him to the Pollard School meeting, which is sponsored by the Ward 2 Civic Association.

Koch Club Collecting Christmas Toys For Needy

The Koch Club has started its eighth season of collecting toys for needy children at Christmas time.

The charitable endeavor has resulted in 10,000 toys, games, dolls, books and other gifts being distributed to boys and girls in Quincy, the South Shore and Greater Boston areas since 1971.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, said one of the most successful phases of the project is the Dress-A-Doll program initiated several years ago.

Women and girls are invited to join in the Dress-A-Doll program by contacting Mrs. Simone Koch, 241 Newbut Ave., the Quincy coordinator or Mrs. Ginny Derringer, 4 Edward Cody Lane, South Weymouth, the South Shore coordinator.

Dozens of used dolls in good condition are donated each year to be dressed and prepared for distribution to little girls at Christmas.

Dolls requiring work may be obtained from Mrs. Koch at her home or will be delivered to older or shut-in persons wishing to participate but unable to pick up the dolls.

Persons wishing to provide a new doll are welcome to do so.

Any persons with toys in good condition and no longer being used are requested to donate the same to the Koch Club Drive for gifts for needy children at Christmas.

The earlier the used toys are received the sooner the gifts may be repaired, cleaned and packaged for distribution to families and children in need of happiness at Christmas.

Workshops will start in mid-October with a committee of Koch Club members assigned to prepare the toys for shipment.

The Koch Club in its charitable endeavors has been assisted by Mass Fields School PTA., Parker School PTA, boys and girls bowling league, Otis Elevator and Sacred Heart School.

Council were concerned about that bridge right now.

"Do you want these people to clean up the backlog or do you want to keep them on the payroll," asked Councillor Paul D. Harold.

"It will totally depend on the results," said Foy. "The intent is to continue trying to collect the back excise taxes which we are now involved in 1975. With these people we will start with the current excise and work back."

"Is there anything in our charter that would prevent the City Council from writing sunset provisions into the establishment of new programs and new personnel?" asked Councillor James A. Sheets.

Asst. City Solicitor Robert J. Fleming didn't think there was.

"If we establish these positions," said Sheets, "we could mandate that before they could be renewed, the value of the program, hence the value of the personnel, would have to be reconsidered and studied."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley wanted to see some comparisons between the city's financial position now and in 1974.

"If we talk about six fulltime positions we want to make sure we get some benefit out of it if the problem is as bad as the figures indicate," he said.

In parts of Germany, it was once permitted to pay rent with lilies of the valley.

Shea Challenges Della Chiesa In Mayoral Race

City Council President Charles L. Shea was preparing a November challenge for Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa after finishing second to the incumbent in the preliminary election.

Two preliminary races were almost too close to call with Leo J. Hannon Jr. finishing four votes ahead of Francis X. McCauley in the Ward 1 Council race and three within a whisker of each other in Ward 3.

John F. Koegler had 449 votes, Leo F. Burke had 439 and Fred A. Sisti 395 in the Ward 3 contest where it was believed that Sisti would ask for a recount.

DAME BELIEVED DOGNAPPED

William [Rusty] Stackman, 9, of 47 Arthur St., West Quincy, was off to Farmington, Conn., the longest trip of his life, to see if a dog found there was his missing German shepherd.

The dog, which answered to the name of "Dame", was believed to have been dognapped by a couple who were reported to have been seen by a witness taking the dog away in a Volkswagen with Connecticut plates.

An appeal for help from the Connecticut State Police touched off a New Englandwide search for "Dame", who was thought to have been found by a Hartford Courant reporter in Farmington.

A woman in the Connecticut city said that the dog that walked up to her home "looked like a bag of bones. But he was friendly with the kids and he answers to the description."

COUNCIL HEARS PETITIONS

It was petition time for the City Council.

Councillor George B. McDonald presented a petition with 350 names asking that Braintree Dam be opened for swimming while Councillor Richard W. Barry had one with 400 names asking it be kept closed.

Braintree Dam is a body of water located in Braintree but owned as a reservoir by Quincy, which supplies water for commercial purposes to the Fore River Shipyard.

McDonald also presented a petition with 922 names in opposition to a proposal by Peter G. Ruscitto that an incinerator be located on Swingle's Quarry in West Quincy.

Residents May Seek Court Action

Ownership Ruling Awaited On Atlantic Junior Walkway

The Quincy School Committee is awaiting a ruling from the city solicitor as to ownership of property on which a walkway fence was erected last spring connecting Newbury Ave. at East Squantum St., with Atlantic Junior High School.

The fence was erected on orders from the committee, but has since been removed by the highway department, according to School Supt. Dr. Lawrence J. Creedon.

Residents in the area have objected that closing of the walkway has led young people to use their backyards as a shortcut.

Donald Riley, an attorney and Quincy police sergeant, said following last week's meeting of the school committee that residents in the area will seek court action to have the walkway restored.

He contends that it has been a public way for more than 40 years and that abuttors are upset by acts of vandalism in the area adjacent to O'Neil Field.

Dr. Creedon explained to the committee that two years ago the School Department decided it had no further use for the property and voted to inform the city of that action.

When no definite action was taken by the city the school committee voted to erect the fence. It was put in place at a cost of $8,500, but was removed within the past several months.

The committee wants a ruling on just what is the status of ownership of the 173 foot walkway.

The committee tabled action on the question until a written ruling is received from the city law department.

The Quincy School Committee at its last meeting approved appointments to six coaching positions within the school system.

Kevin Lewis, teacher in the business education department at North Quincy High School, has been named head ice hockey coach at that school.

Douglas MacFarlane, an elementary physical education teacher, has been named assistant basketball coach at Quincy High School.

The board also approved the appointments of Amy Chessia as Volleyball coach at Quincy Point Junior High School, and Michael Hart as assistant football coach at the school. Both are teachers at Quincy Point.

The latter four appointments are for one year.

Succeeds Erikson

Kevin Lewis Named North Hockey Coach

Kevin Lewis, a former Quincy player, has been named the head hockey coach at North Quincy High, succeeding Ron Erikson, and his first job will be to try to convince North Quincy athletes to stay in North Quincy.

Lewis, who played at Quincy High, New Prep and Merrimack College, was appointed by the school committee last week. Erikson resigned following the end of last season after several years as Raider coach.

Lewis, a business education teacher at North, coached Foxboro High's hockey team the past two years.

"North Quincy has been losing too many fine athletes in all sports to outside schools," Lewis said. "This has been due largely to double sessions and construction work on the North Quincy addition. However, the work will be completed soon and we will have excellent facilities at North.

"I plan to talk with the many youth hockey players from North Quincy and try to get them to stay in North Quincy rather than to outside. This has been one of the big problems at North in all sports and many outstanding hockey players have preferred not to stay at North."

Erikson, always hampered by small squads, explained that every season good hockey players went to other schools, greatly hampering the Raider teams.

The school committee also appointed Doug MacFarlane as assistant basketball coach at Quincy, succeeding Mike Saniuk.

Stay Alive!

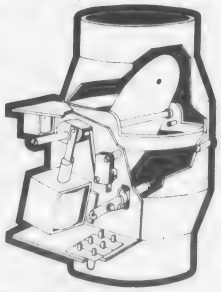
CPR - FIRST AID FOR HEART ATTACKS

Many victims of heart-stopping disorders could be saved by an easily learned, modern life-support technique called CPR, short for cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.



More than 40% of cardiac arrest victims live if they receive CPR from a by-stander. Only 20% live if CPR is delayed until trained rescue teams arrive. The different survival rates are directly related to the amount of time that elapses between the heart stoppage and the beginning of CPR. The immediate and overwhelming danger for the heart attack victim is brain damage caused by lack of oxygen and interruption of blood flow. Brain cells die rapidly when they don't have oxygen. Resuscitation efforts started within the first 4-6 minutes after the heart stops reduce the danger of brain damage.

CPR [a type of rhythmic pressure on the chest and mouth to mouth breathing] might save the life of a family member or friend. You might need CPR yourself. So, you, and at least one other family member should learn CPR.

It takes only 4-6 hours to learn the technique. Information on CPR classes can be obtained from your local heart association and the American Red Cross.

Raiders Seek Elusive No. 1 At Cambridge

The Newton North football players have good memories. Just ask North Quincy Coach Dave Burke and his team.

A year ago North Quincy pulled one of the big upsets in the Suburban League as it surprised Newton to end its 13-game win streak.

Last week the Raiders went to Newton and were outclassed by a fired-up Newton squad, 24-8.

Coach Norm Walker admitted he helped get his squad up for the Raiders by reminding them of last year's surprise defeat and his talk apparently worked as he hoped.

"They certainly were fired up and we never had a chance," Burke admitted. "It was a complete reversal from last year. They were just too much for us."

North hopes to rebound Saturday when it travels to Cambridge's Russell Field for a 1:30 p.m. game with Cambridge Rindge and Latin, a newcomer to the Suburban League. It will be the third straight road game for the 0-3 Raiders.

Cambridge, idle last week, brings a 2-0 record into the game with wins over Quincy and Weymouth North.

Despite the loss last week, Burke saw a few things which pleased him.

"Tom Quinn ran well and scored our touchdown," Dave said. "Dan McIntyre, Pat McKenna, Paul White, Brian McGilvray all played well on offense and John Conley ran well from his fullback spot."

"We were very disappointed in the defense," said Ken McPhee, one of the defensive coaches. "We had expected trouble defensively with a definite lack of experience, but it has been getting worse rather than better. This is the first time I can say we were out-hit throughout the game and we have an awful lot of work to do on defense if we hope to salvage something out of this season."

McPhee did single out Leo Graham, a junior, who has been outstanding throughout the season, and Larry Baker.

The big man for Newton was Gary Frechette, junior halfback, who ran for 140 yards and scored three touchdowns.

North Quincy didn't score until the final minutes after Newton had scored once in the first period, twice in the second and once in the third.

Quinn scored the touchdown and then passed to quarterback Kevin Cobbin for the two points.

Newton rushed 54 times for 272 yards while North Quincy had only 29 carries for 88 yards. North's Cobbin was five for 14 and 48 yards through the air while Newton was three for six for 42 yards. Newton had 17 first downs to eight for the raiders.

Although the North varsity is having its troubles, Ted Sadowski's sophomore team is rolling along with a 3-0 record and has outscored the opposition, 59-0.

The young Raiders, after stopping Milton and Brockton by 22-0 scores, last week defeated Newton North, 15-0.

The Quincy and North Quincy soccer teams are having their troubles this fall. At this writing North's only win was over Quincy and the best the Presidents have been able to get is one tie.

In North Quincy's case it is a lack of depth which has been the main concern for new coach Paul Bregoli, a former North Quincy all-scholastic and a four-year player at U Mass.

"We must get a lot more interest here," Bregoli said. "We have a very thin squad and are able to make very few substitutions. The starters have been doing well but have tired late in the game, when we have lost most of the time."

Bregoli, who coached at Darian, Conn., and has been a soccer referee for six years, felt the Quincy game would turn the season around. The Raiders won that game, 3-1.

In their first three games the Raiders faced the three top teams in the Suburban League, Brookline, Waltham and Newton North, losing by scores of 5-1, 4-0 and 7-0.

"In addition to a lack of depth, injuries have hurt us and several starters never played before and are taking their knocks the first time around the league," Bregoli said.

Last week North played a good game but bowed to Weymouth South, 4-1, as Joe Flynn covered a throw-in from Billy Harrow to score the lone Raider goal.

Arunas Kleinas, a first year player, and Rick Forest, last year's junior varsity goalie, are playing equally well in the net but have been victimized by an inexperienced defense.

At fullback Tri-Capt. Tom Reney holds the team together, Mark Will is another capable fullback and Rick McCarthy, a sophomore, has played some there. Greg Madden, Jon Badger, Paul Gill and Mike Alcott have been playing at center-fullback. None have played before and are showing steady improvement.

Tri-Capt. and three-year starter Harrow leads the halfbacks and is the team's key performer. Flynn is the other halfback starter and, although a first year player, displays excellent skills. Dave Lapsley, a junior, and Martin Koch, an exchange student from Germany, are other halfbacks.

In the line Tom Gerry is the leading scorer, Tom Crossco takes all the corner kicks and Tri-Capt. Dave Donovan is playing well.

Ron Holland, John Sullivan and Ed Kearny are others playing well in the front line.

Steve Miller, a former North standout, is coaching the junior varsity and is forced to play with just 13 players and usually goes with his 11 starters.

The squad includes Steve Dodd, Gary Donaghey, Chris Dunn, Bill Bourikas, Bob Bolster, Mike Bradbury, Ed Doherty, Paul Leonard, Rick Farmer, Tim Burke, Mark Ray and goalies Ed Ahern and Paul Mallory, who shut out Quincy, 4-0.

"I am disappointed at the few juniors and sophomores turning out and I would like to encourage more underclassmen to come out and learn the game now rather than be in our situation where we have seniors coming out for the first time ever," Bregoli said.

Quincy Coach Jim McGuire is in a better position than Bregoli as he had a record turnout of 36 but also has many inexperienced players and several seniors playing for the first time.

"We have a young and inexperienced team and, while the players are developing rapidly, they are overmatched in some games as in our game with Newton North (Quincy bowed, 7-1)," McGuire said.

McGuire had words of praise for his fine sophomore goalie, Bill Concannon, and also hailed Vin Lorenzano, Gary Wilcox, Bill Joyce, Geoff McGhee, Ron Pulsifer and Pete Ryan for their steady improvement.

"I feel soccer is really growing in Quincy but we need a good youth program," the Presidents' skipper said. "Quincy has a fine youth hockey program and the high schools have done well in hockey since."

In their last game the Presidents were blanked by Waltham, 4-0.

Friday, Quincy hosts Cambridge Rindge and Latin while North goes to Weymouth North. Monday North is home to Brookline at 10 a.m. and Quincy entertains Brockton.

North X-Country Unit Bows To Waltham

North Quincy's cross country team, with its thinnest squad ever, saw its record drop to 2-2 last week when it bowed to Waltham, 27-32, in a Suburban League meet, but the undermanned Raiders continued to make the meets close.

John McGuiggan, Mike Ricciuti and Jim Coughlin finished 2-3-4 but Waltham's greater depth paid off as Tim Vinciullo won and the Hawks finished fifth through 10th.

North will be at Brockton, perennial league power, Friday and Tuesday will host Brookline.

Presidents Take On 'Awesome' Waltham

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's football team, following a one-point loss in its opener, has won two in a row with the defense turning in brilliant performances, but new coach Tom Fitzgerald is not looking forward to Saturday's game with Waltham with any joy.

The Presidents defeated Revere, 14-7, in a non-league game last Saturday at Revere, but he describes Waltham, which visits Veterans Memorial Stadium for a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game as "awesome".

"We saw them run over Brookline, 36-0, and I feel they could beat some small college teams," Fitzgerald said. "They are big and have one of the best players I've seen in [John] Guisti. This will be by far the biggest test for our defense and I just hope we can make the game respectable." Waltham last week rolled over Weymouth North, 33-14, with Guisti rushing for an amazing 273 yards and three touchdowns.

Although Quincy's defense was superb at Revere, Fitzgerald feels he must continue to work with the offense, which has been hot and cold.

Tom Brennan ran well last week and scored both touchdowns, and Dave Austin, junior quarterback, played a good game. Fitzgerald fears he has lost fullback Dan Goldrick for the season as the result of an injury suffered last week in practice, and a key man in the backfield could be Fran Donovan, who last week moved from end to halfback and showed a lot of promise.

"Fran did an excellent job and he and Scott Richardson will play key roles in our attack," Fitzgerald said. "I started an all-junior backfield of Austin, Richardson, Donovan and Brennan, and they will have to carry the load now, as Goldrick may be out for the year and we also lost one of our starting halfbacks."

Quincy-Waltham Game On WJDA

Radio Station WJDA will do the play-by-play of Saturday's Quincy Waltham football game at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 1:30.

The station, which does high school games every Saturday and Sunday throughout the fall, will also have reports from North Quincy at Cambridge, Framingham South at Braintree, Boston Tech at Weymouth North and B.C. High at Hingham.

The first-year Quincy coach had words of praise for George McCarron, Russ DiPietro, who came back after missing practice all week due to illness; John Nichols, Ron Cross, Glen Lydon, Paul Bandera and John Cahill in the offensive line.

Fitzie couldn't say enough for the defense, which had its best day and has been excellent in all three games.

Ralph Pickering returned after missing the Weymouth South game and was used solely on defense.

"He is a fine ball carrier but he is so valuable on defense I decided to use him there exclusively and he was just fantastic," Fitzgerald said. "He was really hitting and I can't say enough for him."

There were plenty of other defensive standouts and Quincy intercepted three passes, two by Jeff Giordani and one by Lou Mathews, who also blocked a punt at a crucial time.

Also lauded were McCarron, sophomore Billy Murray, playing his first varsity game; Lou Venturelli, John Kavanaugh and Charlie McCall.

Sophomore Greg Oriola, who also missed practice due to illness, came back and did some excellent punting. It was the best punting the Presidents have received this year.

Quincy came back after Revere had taken a 7-0 lead in the second period. Later in the period Brennan capped a 45-yard drive by scoring from the one. Quincy went for two and the lead but a rush failed.

In the third period Quincy staged a fine 70-yard drive and Brennan scored from the five. Donovan rushed for the two points.

● Girls Swimming

Quincy Defeats Blue Hills North Bows But Sets Records

The Quincy and North Quincy swimming teams have come a long way since the sport was introduced at the two schools two years ago.

This fall the girls' teams have been doing well and, although being edged last Friday by Newton South, 87-85, the North girls set two school records. The loss dropped Bill Walker's Raiderettes to 2-2.

North's Jacqui Pike set a record in the 100 butterfly with a time of 1:19.1 and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Eileen McKenna, Pike, Jill Sweeney and Maureen Santry took two seconds off the old record by doing 4:32.3.

Santry won the 100 freestyle, Sweeney took the 500 freestyle and also won the 200 freestyle.

Pike took second in the 200 individual medley, Santry was second in the 50 freestyle, Lisa Costello was second in diving and the 200 medley relay team of Barbara Toland, Mary Tenney, Donna Walsh and Kit Harrow placed second.

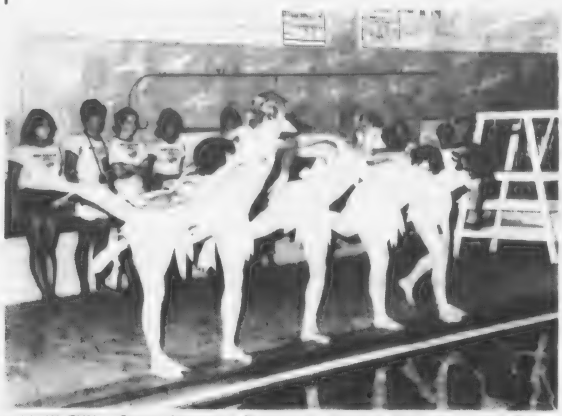
Earlier the Raiderettes had defeated Weymouth South, 89-80, for their second straight win following an opening day loss.

The 200-meter medley team of Toland, Tenney, Walsh and Costello won, Sweeney won the 200 meter freestyle and Costello won the diving. Sweeney, a triple winner, won the 500-meter freestyle and anchored the winning 400 relay team which also included McKenna, Pike and Santry.

Toland won the 100 backstroke and Tenney took the 100 breaststroke.

Judy Appleby's Quincy team easily defeated Blue Hills, 106-49, for its second win in a row following an opening day defeat.

Patty Howe and Janet Sines were double winners, Howe winning the 200 and 500 freestyles and Sines the 200 intermediate and the 100 backstroke.



Cindy Pitts won the 50 freestyle, Donna Marcin the 50 butterfly, Mary Wright the 100 breaststroke and Laura Davis the 100 freestyle.

Both relay teams also won, Sines, Marcin and Mary and Karen Wright winning the 200 medley and Davis, Howe, Sue Lynn and Karen Wright the 400 freestyle.

Friday the North girls will host Stoughton at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool and Quincy will be at Durfee High in Fall River. Tuesday Quincy will be home to Waltham at Lincoln-Hancock and North will be at Canton.

HOW TO HANDLE CONDEMNATION

It's a real shock when you're told that part [or all] of your property will be taken for a new highway, sewer line, high tension line or other public use. It's usually an even greater shock when the representative of the public utility, highway department or government tells you what they propose to pay.

Relax, and react rationally. Your property may be taken if it is really needed for public use but you must be compensated at "fair market value." If the initial offer is unacceptable, make an appointment to discuss the facts with your attorney. If he agrees with your position, he'll arrange for one or more Real Estate Appraisers to appraise the condemned property for you. With the facts they give him about "fair market value," he can represent you better in direct negotiation, at a preliminary hearing, or [if necessary] in a court action.

One caution - Have a clear understanding of the fees of attorney and appraisers before engaging them.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Introducing the best extra your new car could have.

An extra year on your car loan.

The old 3-year car loan doesn't seem long enough for most people nowadays. You need another year to take some of the squeeze out of the monthly payments.

So South Shore Bank gives you another year if you need it, on a new car loan. Plus, we'll make you one of our Multistatement customers which means you get your loan at a preferred rate—1% less interest. In fact, as a Multistatement customer, you save 1% on any installment loan of $1500 or more. You also get free checking and a lot of other Multistatement advantages.

Best of all, you'll probably have your loan within 24 hours.

South Shore has 33 offices. So, when you find the new car you want, come into the South Shore office you're nearest and say you want one year more and one percent less. That turns the whole new car event from just another big deal into a really good one.

A RIDE TO REMEMBER -- George Riley, Mayor Tobin's executive secretary, and City Councillors Joanne Condon and John J. Fabrizio Loses Court Action

Ousted Assessor Hugo [Flip] Fabrizio has been denied a temporary restraining order that would have prevented the city from naming his successor. Judge John Paul Sullivan turned down Fabrizio's bid for the order Tuesday in Norfolk Superior Court.

Fabrizio, whose three-year term was not due to expire until February, 1980, was fired by Mayor Tobin on Oct. 2, for what Tobin called "improper assessments resulting in a detriment to the city of Quincy."

Support Classification Amendment

Tobin, McCauley Both Oppose 100% Valuation

By TOM HENSHAW

It appears that the big local issue on the November ballot will be Question 1 of the Referenda, the so-called Classification Amendment.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and City Councillor Francis X. McCauley, two of the city's heaviest hitters, fought over the issue last week but seem to have come up on the same side.

"I don't know what Arthur is so upset about," said McCauley after the latest Tobin blast. "I happen to be on the same side of the issue as he is on."

The Classification Amendment, sponsored by State Sen. Tobin, would permit cities and towns to assess residential, commercial and industrial properties and open space at different percentages of their market value.

The alternative to classification is 100 Per Cent Valuation, which is being pushed largely by business and commercial interests who are campaigning for a "No" vote on the Classification Amendment.

"I am going to vote "Yes" on Question 1," McCauley told The Sun Tuesday. "Contrary to what Arthur has been saying, I have never been in favor of 100 per cent valuation."

Tobin charged last week that McCauley had voted for 100 per cent valuation when it came up before the Council back in 1965. Correct, said McCauley, "but so did five other councillors."

He explained the 13-year-old vote like this:

"It was July 19, 1965. There was an appropriation order before the Council for $75,000 to hire an outside firm to reassess the city.

"Ten taxpayers had taken the city to court and got an injunction to prohibit us from collecting taxes and sending out tax bills in 1965 until the city complied with the law that said we had to have all property assessed at full fair cash value.

"I voted for it. So did Joe LaRaia, Dick Barry, David McIntosh, Walter Hannon and John Koegler. None of us were in favor of the proposal.

"We voted for it because we were under the gun. We were under a court order that we had to do something or the city would have to stop functioning.

"I'm going to vote for classification. Property is already classified right now. Different types of property are assessed at different rates. If it's done properly it will just make legal what is already going on."

McCauley's comments came in the wake of a Tobin appeal to "join me in fighting implementation of 100 per cent valuation even though he has supported it in the past as a member of the City Council."

"Councillor McCauley owes it to the people of Quincy to state where he stands. We know where he stood in the past. He voted to implement it. I don't think the people are interested in why.

Patricia Ceriani Named City's First Woman Assesssor

Mayor Tobin has named the first woman assessor in Quincy's history.

She is Mrs. Patricia J. Ceriani of 386 Quarry St., West Quincy, who has served as an assistant assessor since last March.

Mrs. Ceriani will fill out the 15 months left in the unexpired term of Hugo Fabrizio, who was fired by Tobin Oct. 2. Fabrizio is contesting his ouster in court.

Mrs. Ceriani, who is married and has three children, has been a real estate broker for the past 13 years.

A native of Boston, she attended Blessed Sacrament High School in Jamaica Plain and the University of Hawaii course in the Marshall Islands when her husband was transferred there.

Her husband, David, is employed by GTE Sylvania and their three children are David Jr., Lois and Ronnie.

Modernizes Patrol Operations

$407,623 Grant To Police Dept. For Criminal Apprehension Program

The Quincy Police Department has received a federal grant of $407,623 to continue for a second year its Integrated Criminal Apprehension Program [ICAP] of innovative and experimental projects.

ICAP, which has been operating in Quincy for the past year under a $171,000 grant, is designed to modernize police patrol operations and help achieve greater efficiency in controlling crime. Quincy is one of 41 communities nationally taking part.

The effect of the program during the first year has been to streamline reporting procedures and analysis and position police patrols in the right place at the right time.

"The biggest thing," said Donald Hanson, director of the ICAP project in Quincy, "is that we have begun to get the patrolman more involved in the actual policing of their areas.

"Many times personnel is deployed on the basis of availability. We are now prepared to deploy them based on where the crime is and where the heaviest calls for service are.

"We are able to do this because we can analyze trends in crime patterns in the past."

Police Chief Francis X. Finn explained that six innovative programs were begun under ICAP during the first year. He listed them as:

- Development of a new case report involving "solvability" factors. "Many crimes are totally not solvable. The new case report lists solvability factors. Crimes we can reasonably expect to solve will receive a priority."
- Development of a case-management system, based on the same solvability factors.
- Development of a crime analysis unit to provide patrol supervisors with updated statistics on crime patterns and suspects. The information is passed on via a notebook, updated on a weekly basis and placed in each patrol car.
- Further development of crime analysis to provide information to Neighborhood Watch groups as to when potential crime problems could develop.
- Establishment of directed patrol methods of deploying men in areas with the highest statistical probability of crime. "The officer is directed to put a certain amount of time in a certain area if we feel he should be there."
- Implementation of methods to identify and prosecute career criminals operating in Quincy. "Career criminals will be given a priority similar to violent criminals in prosecution by the district attorney's office."

Under the new ICAP grant, said Chief Finn, the department will work on these projects.:

- Implementation of a telephone processing system called "teleserve," which will give patrols more time to spend in areas that need policing.

"At the present time, almost every call has to be verified by a patrol unit. Under teleserve we will train specific personnel to get all the information that is necessary to give people the feeling that they are not being let down.

"Police patrol cars today are more or less reacting to crime. There is very little that can be done with preventive measures on patrol because they are going from one offense to another."

"We were responding to 27,000 calls a few years ago but we are up to over 65,000 now. We've got to free the cars so they will have time for directed patrol or go where they feel they should be."

- An intensified effort to establish good community relations by involving police on a neighborhood level.

"We hear a lot about getting officers out of the car and on the street. But we haven't got that kind of money to put both a car and a man on every beat. We need a car on the beat because everybody today is mobilized.

"We are going to try to free a man so that he can get out of the car and get to know the people of the area."

- Addition of a micro-computer to all the crime analysis unit a greater capacity for analysis. "We will update information to the patrol officer on a daily basis, rather than weekly."
- Modernization of the warrant service and record systems through the use of microfilm. "We are being overwhelmed by the thousands of warrants that are outstanding at all times. It's very hard to know if they are still in effect."
- Design of a new communications area to better serve the community and the police department.

The new grant, which comes by way of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration [LEAA], also will provide for the hiring of six civilians to man the communications and teleserve projects.

Hanson said they will be in the general pay range of $10-12,000 a year, and may be retained on the department payroll when the grant runs out.

"Hopefully," said Chief Finn, "they will have proven their worth and will have saved the city a considerable amount of money and we will be able to put our resources where they belong.

"We can't continue to pay sworn police officers the amount of money they are getting today and have them sitting in here answering telephones.

"With this tax thing now, there may be a time when we will have to effectively use less personnel and part of that will be using less expensive personnel."

Mader: Massport's Promises 'A Lot Of Bull'

In case anyone has forgotten it, the Committee Against Airport Noise [CAAN] is alive and well and still living in North Quincy.

And just as angry as ever, too.

The last time we looked in on CAAN and its chairman, Bernice Mader, they had reluctantly permitted an extension until Jan. 15 for Massport to conduct further experiments with the corkscrew turn from Runway 22.

"We're very unhappy with Massport," said Miss Mader, whose committee has been unhappy with Massport since last May when takeoffs were switched from 210 degrees [over South Boston] to 180 degrees [over Quincy].

"We lived with Runway 22 all summer," said Miss Mader, "while Runway 15-33 was closed for repairs. Gov. Dukakis and Massport told us to hold on, when 15-33 comes back we will be relieved of 85 per cent of the noise.

"That was a lot of bull.

"Our newest noise problems are coming from Runway 15, which is supposed to be the over water takeoff pattern. But the planes are coming off the runway and making a right turn over the whole city.

"Donna Berman, Massport's noise abatement director, told us two weeks ago, 'We are aware that Runway 15 is creating a new noise problem. That will be the main topic of discussion in our next meeting with Bill Keepers [the Logan tower chief].'"

Miss Mader said the powers that be at Logan apparently have halted the corkscrew takeoff pattern since an angry meeting with folks in Winthrop on the North Shore last month.

"We have people watching," she said. "They have only used it twice in the last two weeks."

Miss Mader said that Quincy has joined Winthrop, East Boston and South Boston as part of a Massport-sponsored task force to study the need of an environmental study of takeoff patterns.

David Raftery, a member of CAAN's board of directors, is the Quincy representative at the monthly task force meetings.

CAAN was also asked to give input into the selection of an environmental assessment firm and nominated Bolt, Beranek and Newman, which made a previous airport study in 1970.

James Boddie, a vice president of CAAN, is representing the group at informational meetings with anti-noise groups from other impacted communities.

Miss Mader said CAAN is also putting together packets of information on Quincy's problems to send to candidates for governor, U.S. senator and Congress in the November election.

"We have asked Frank Hatch and Edward J. King to give us position papers on airport noise," she said. "We will not support any candidates but we will make sure that their positions are known."

CAAN has scheduled a fund-raiser Friday, Nov. 10, at 8 p.m. in the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall with a band for dancing and refreshments.

MOBILE DIABETES CLINIC visited Quincy recently under auspices of Quincy Health Department to administer blood tests in effort to detect hidden diabetes. Quincy Health Commr. Samuel Solomon has his blood test taken here by Mary Healy, RN, of Neponset, executive director of the Greater Boston Diabetes Society, while Carol Zucker, RN, looks on.

Series Of Special Programs Planned To Aid Diabetics

Mayor Tobin has announced that the Quincy Health Department, in cooperation with the Greater Boston Diabetes Society, will conduct a series of programs in Quincy for diabetic or members of their families.

The sessions are free to resident of Quincy.

All meeting will be held in the auditorium of the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy. The dates are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 16 - 1:30 to 3 p.m. "What is Diabetes" - Film, illustrations and handouts.

Monday, Oct. 23 - 1:30 to 3 p.m. "Diabetes Diet" - Meal planning, composition of foods, caloric controls.

Monday, Oct. 30 - 1:30 to 3 p.m. "Review diet, insulin urine testing" - Aspects of exercise, patterns of control, reaction to insulin.

Monday, Nov. 6 - 1:30 to 3 p.m. - "General information, rap session, questions" - hypoglycemia, charts, handouts and circulars.

Taxpayers Association Urges 'No' Vote On Classification

The Quincy Taxpayers Association is recommending a "No" vote on the Classification Amendment which will appear as Question 1 on the November ballot.

Executive Director Harry E. Roemer said careful research and study indicates that the amendment is no solution to the problem of relief to taxpayers.

"What we need is a commitment from each of the candidates for governor that they will spell out a specific property tax reduction for all property taxpayers and how they are going to proceed to accomplish this end," he said.

"This should be done before we go to the polls on Nov. 7."

Gerald Nobile Candidate For Ward 3 Seat

The election is still some 11 months away but already there is a candidate in the field for the City Council.

He is Gerald Vincent Nobile, 26, of 102 Brook St., Wollaston, who has announced his candidacy for the Council from Ward 3, the seat currently held by Councillor John J. Lydon Jr.

Nobile, who is self-employed at Nobile Sporting Goods Inc., 1242 Furnace Brook Ave., West Quincy, said he is announcing this early because "I believe you need a full year in order to learn the basics of the city."

"I think money has been spent wrongly in some departments," he said. "Some departments spend too much and some not enough. I would work with other citizens in order to achieve this.

"As councillor I would let the people know more about the budget. Instead of a tax bill I would supply the small bills. These bills add up to the large one."

Nobile said he feels that a lot more can be achieved in Ward 3.

A Wollaston native, he was graduated from Quincy High School and is a member of the Board of Registrars of Quincy.

Planning Board O.K.'s Quarry St. Land Sale To Elks

The Planning Board has voted its approval of the sale of a lot of city-owned land on Quarry St. to the Quincy Lodge of Elks for the appraised value of $112,000 as the site of a new Elks Home.

The resolve to sell has been placed in the City Council's Land Conveyance Committee.

EXERCISE FOR HEALTHIER HEART

By Jack Silverstein

If you're like most people who take their health and exercise seriously, you can't help asking yourself the $64,000 question: Does regular, vigorous exercise really give protection against heart attack? The answer, according to a just released study which took 10 years and involved 17,000 men, is a resounding YES!

It's the total amount of energy expended that counts, says the report. As the level of activity went up among the men studied [Harvard alumni, age 35-74], the incidence of heart attack went down. Those who spend less than 2,000 calories a week in exercise were 64% more likely to suffer heart attack than those who spent more.

Which activities consume 2,000 calories? Here's a few: walking [4½ mph], 5 hours; tennis, 4 hrs 45 mins.; swimming, 3 hrs. 47 mins.; running, 3 hrs. 4 mins.; bicycling [13 mph], 3 hrs. 4 mins.

Not all sports are created equal. In order to be beneficial to the heart, exercise must demand a relatively intense rate of energy output. The more strenuous the better.

Quincy Historical Society will hold a reception at the Adams Academy, Quincy Center, Sunday, at 3 p.m. to make publication of "The Calendar of the Papers of General Joseph Palmer, 1716-1788" by Dr. James R. Cameron.

Dr. Cameron, head of the history department and chairman of the division of social science at Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston, spent 10 years researching the life of General Palmer, Quincy's unsung hero of the Revolutionary era.

General Palmer, who made his home in Germantown, was one of the nation's first industrialists. He was a town leader, especially before and during the American Revolution, serving as town meeting moderator, delegate to the Provencial Congress and deacon of First Parish Church.

He was active as a militia officer from Bunker Hill through the Rhode Island expedition and planned the defences of Boston Harbor.

Dr. Cameron will present highlights of his research on General Palmer and will be available to autograph copies of the limited edition of his work. The publication presents for the first time an historically accurate biography of the patriot leader and provides an index for future scholars as to the contents and whereabouts of the Palmer papers.

Someday, A Woman Mayor

It hasn't happened since Quincy became a city 90 years ago and it probably won't happen next year or a few years after that but it's going to happen someday.

Quincy -- are you ready -- is going to have a woman mayor.

That's my fearless prediction for this week. Please, no chuckles or smirking, men. It's going to happen.

There are more women running for public office now than ever before. And they're going to do a lot of winning.

Despite the fact several of them didn't fare well in the recent primary elections. Like Margaret Dinneen and Sabina Kavanagh in the 11th Congressional District, Lois Pines for Secretary of State, or Kathleen Sullivan Alioto who teamed with Frank Sinatra for U.S. Senator.

I'm looking back on last year's city election as the indicator that there's a Her Honor in our future.

Three women were elected in that one--the most ever in a Quincy election.

Joanne Condon who won the open Ward 6 City Council seat became only the second woman in Quincy's history to be elected to the City Council. The first since Mrs. Edna Austin who retired in 1959.

Mary Collins and Joan Picard easily won School Committee seats, ousting long-time incumbents Frank Anselmo and Charles Sweeny. [Anselmo then was picked to fill the seat vacated by Francis McCauley who was elected councillor]. Collins topped the school committee field with an impressive 16,916 votes.

Looking at last year's performances, Joanne Condon and Mary Collins would appear to be the best female hopes for the chief executive's office in the next few years.

Mrs. Condon would probably have the best shot at it [at the present time] because she's a city councillor and most future mayors come out of the City Council.

But Mary Collins is a proven city-wide vote getter as is Joan Picard. Not to forget Patricia Toland, who was elected to the School Committee in 1975 and is now vice-chairman.

You gals have come a long way, baby.

There are more female registered voters in Quincy than there are male [27,076 to 21,426 last official count] and if the women ever band together behind one candidate, well, they'll be moving the furniture around at City Hall.

As women get more and more involved in politics, the day of a woman mayor will be here a lot sooner than most men would like to admit. Frankly, I'd like to see one pretty soon. I'd like to see what a woman could do with the mayor's office and I don't mean hanging new drapes.

I just hope though that when that big day happens, we're not going to have to refer to her as Your Honor Person.

THE BARGAIN HUNTERS -- Paul Marini, chairman of the board of trustees, and Warren Watson, director of the Library, recently got some $3,000 worth of library furnishings for only $350 at an auction in Scituate.

Marini read about the auction in the paper and told Watson. It was the furnishings from two libraries being closed because Scituate just got a new one.

The Quincy bargain hunters got a charging desk, 12 feet long, valued at $1,500 to $2,000 for $140. It will probably go into the planned library branch in the new Houghs Neck Community Center.

They got a six-foot magazine rack, valued at $700-800 for $40., an electric drinking fountain for $15 [Watson: "The last time we put one in it cost $100]., a 1,000 watt projector for $20.

The money came from an odd place. They sold books at the sidewalk sale, used and unwanted library books. If the money to buy the books had originally come from the city, they would have had to put the resale money in the city treasury by law. But most of the money came from donated books, so Watson kept it in a special fund.

They spent that and had some $50 left over.

Ye Old English Chimney Sweep In Comeback

By JOHN KELLY

He seems to have come right out of a Dickens Classic.

His name is George Ruck and he is an old English chimney sweep. You may have thought chimney sweeps went out with prohibition and the Charleston, but they are staging a comeback.

"I was reading a copy of Mother Earth News one day last December and I came upon an article on chimney sweeps," says Ruck. "The idea of actually becoming a sweep had never even entered my head until then. But I knew that I wanted to get into something which would be productive, something which would be a service to people and useful to everyone."

Ruck grew up in Dorchester and worked for many years with his grandfather selling sawdust. After learning of the resurgence of the chimney sweep business, Ruck did extensive research on the unique occupation.

"I was fascinated particularly in the customs, traditions and superstitions surrounding old English chimney sweeps. The superstition of shaking hands with a sweep for good luck and wearing your chimney sweep hat while on the roof are two of the more common superstitions."

Ruck, who dresses in the full old English chimney sweep outfit, works mainly from the inside of the house where it is easier to scrub the chimney clean. His equipment consists of a number of wire brushes used in scrubbing the creosote, unburnt wood which clings to the side of the chimney. Ruck also uses a large vacuum which keeps all of the falling soot and creosote under control.

"I can't stress enough how important it is to get all of the creosote off the side of the chimney," he says. "The creosote is the stuff that causes the fires to start inside the chimneys."

He has found the worst offenders are air-tight wood-burning stoves hooked directly into fireplaces. This coupled with the use of unseasoned wood causes a creosote-like tar build-up, which is almost impossible to remove.

According to Ruck, some people with new homes have found their chimneys unusable after only six months because of the tar crusting. He recommends that people using such stoves line their chimney with a pipe.

Another problem at this time of the year concerns oil-burners. When the burner is first lighted it may vent out into the cellar and send soot throughout the house rather than up the chimney. This can be avoided by having the chimney cleaned every couple of years, Ruck said.

According to the Fire Prevention Association there were 40,000 chimney fires last year which caused a total of $23 million damage.

Ruck says most people are very careless with their chimneys.

"Most people leave their chimney uncleaned for 7 or 8 years. They have to realize that an uncleaned chimney is a definite fire hazard."

It seems the popularity of the chimney sweep began to decline about the same time people started to use oil and gas to heat their houses.

"With more and more people supplementing wood as fuel, the chimney sweep business should be getting bigger and better," says Ruck.

"I'm really looking forward to cleaning the types

Police Land On Landed Liquor

Oct. 12-18
1923
55 Years Ago This Week

Quincy police made the biggest haul of contraband liquor in the city's history when they stopped a truck on Hancock St. en route to Boston from Squantum where the booze was landed from a motor launch.

Officers Phillips, Erwin, O'Connell, Coyne and Kedwin seized 1,000 gallons of Belgian alcohol in 10 gallon jugs, 16 cases of Haig and Haig scotch and three cases of Johnny Walker scotch.

The driver of the truck was held on a charge of driving without a license, pending the arrival of a federal warrant, since the transportation of liquor was not a state but a federal charge.

The confiscated liquor was locked up in two cells at the Quincy police station as evidence.

Meanwhile, Delcevare King, Quincy's leading dry, wrote to the Harvard Glee Club and the Harvard Crimson protesting the singing of drinking songs at a recent Harvard-Oxford debate in Symphony Hall, Boston.

"To glorify the joys of drinking and to urge 'drink, drink, drink' seems to me to come pretty near scoffing at the prohibition law," said King. "It certainly tends to create an atmosphere hostile to reverence for this law and its enforcement."

AUDITOR RILES BATES

City Solicitor John D. Mackay supported City Auditor Henry O. Fairbanks in his contention that a bill for $2,800 from Brooks Skinner Co. for a portable building at the Lincoln School is illegal.

Mackay's opinion was that Mayor Gustave B. Bates did not file a copy of the contract with the auditor or the city clerk and made the award without asking for bids as required by the city charter.

"I always abide by the decision of the umpire," said Bates. The auditor would have been all right if I hadn't held up his pay. Then he put the hooks into me and now I consider he is my enemy and not my friend."

Harold Brooks of Brooks Skinner Co. said if he didn't get his money he was going to remove the school building.

Planning key to home improvement

New homes are expensive. Mortgage money is getting tighter. And it's often a traumatic experience, especially for families with young children, to pull up roots and relocate in strange neighborhoods.

For these and a variety of other reasons, more Americans than ever are choosing to remodel or improve their present homes.

But having made that decision, says the National Home Improvement Council, the average homeowner is at a loss as to how to implement it.

NHIC, the largest professional organization in the $35-billion home improvement industry, suggests the following steps:

1. Choose a reliable contractor. There are only so many things the homeowner can do himself. An NHIC member contractor, on the other hand, has the equipment and manpower to do the job. He knows local building codes and ordinances. And he is an established businessman with roots in the community who has to do a good job to maintain his reputation and stay competitive.

2. Specify standard sizes and labor-saving products. Time and labor are the two most expensive items in home improvement work. Anything you can do to cut either, cuts the cost of your job.

Discuss with your contractor the use of stock-size windows, doors and mouldings. There are literally dozens of standard products, available off the shelf, that snap, bolt or nail into place in a fraction of the time required for their more sophisticated counterparts.

3. Consider energy conservation. The installation of proper amounts of attic to wall insulation, says NHIC, can lower fuel consumption.

The additional cost of insulation is recovered in ten years or less, depending on location, through the use of less expensive heating and cooling equipment and reduced energy usage.

It also pays to specify double or triple-pane insulating glass windows, and adequate weatherstripping on windows and doors.

4. Don't over-improve. New heating and cooling equipment, an updated bathroom, a finished basement or a simple paint job can enhance the livability of your home and add to its longevity. But over-improvement, spending $60,000 on house improvements in a block of $50,000 houses, doesn't make sense.

Remodeling should conform in price and style to the house and neighborhood.

5. Shop for the right home improvement loan. Like any other commodity, money varies in cost. And while there are few "bargains" available, it does pay to shop around.

Check your community's lending institutions—banks, savings and loan associations, your own credit union—and compare interest rates and terms.

You may find that the bank passbook loan, which is borrowing against money in your own savings account, is your best deal. Or you may do better by borrowing against your life insurance.

Consider an FHA home improvement loan and investigate refinancing your mortgage balance.

For additional help in remodeling your home, write NHIC for its informative folder, "How to Start Your Home Improvement Project With the Help of a Reliable Contractor."

To obtain a free copy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the National Home Improvement Council, Dept. M, 11 East 44th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

HOME IMPROVE NOW!

EFFICIENT THRU-THE-WALL HEAT PUMP for add-on room—As many families are adding a room to their present home instead of building a larger new home, they are generally finding the existing heating/cooling system can't adequately handle the additional space.

Mop up bathroom spills quickly

To make bathroom cleanups easier, why not keep a sponge and your preferred cleanser close at hand at all times. Then, whenever messes occur, they can be wiped up before they reach epic proportions.

For hard to reach areas (i.e., a tub hidden behind sliding glass doors), a sponge on a long handle will work wonders, and save you hours of bending and stretching.

Some no-wall problem solvers

What can drive you mad when decorating? Usually it's a wall in the wrong place—or a wall that's simply not there.

When you need a wall and don't have one, you can make one with room divider bookcases, etageres or folding screens.

A private study area can be set up in a bedroom by placing the desk at right angles to the wall and hanging a bulletin board from hooks in the ceiling.

A dressing room nook can be arranged by use of a folding screen to surround a dressing table. If the screen is sturdy enough, a full-length mirror can be hung on one panel.

Where there's a living room and no dining room, create a dining area behind the sofa. The table can double as a sofa table when you're not eating at it. Display a family silver service during the day, easy to whisk off when meal time comes around.

Little things add to decor

It's the little things in life that count and, very often, the same thing holds true in the sphere of home decorating.

It's those small touches, often whimsical, often impulsive, the knick-knacks that grace your shelves and tables, the paintings and posters that hang on your walls, that truly personalize your home and make it an extension of you.

You may want to project different parts of your personality in different rooms. The kitchen, often a bright and cheery room, can become, especially for the person who loves to cook, a favorite room, and the first place where he or she will begin to accessorize and personalize.

Hang things on the walls. Putting up a pegboard is an attractive way of displaying everything neatly, and it is eminently functional as well. Your favorite cooking tools, cookie cutters and decorative pot holders as well as pots and pans, can spice up your kitchen and become an integral part of your decor.

Since you'll probably be doing most of your formal entertaining in your living room, you've probably gone to a good deal of trouble in choosing your furniture and accessories. Add little touches with the same care.

Carpet capers dogs will do!

In most cases, dogs and new carpeting just do not go together.

Sad but true, dogs shed; dogs get muddy feet; dogs trail greasy bones around.

To keep your dog off your brand new carpet is not all that easy. You can't just say to him, "Now don't go near the broadloom."

To keep him in his own safe environment—while at the same time allowing him to be one of the family—place a baby gate across the entrance to the newly decorated room.

Small dogs will be able to see through the gate; large dogs will be able to see over the gate and will have to be admonished the first several times they jump over it.

Be sure to keep his toys with him in his confinement. And when he is let out to join you, bring out a couple of toys for him to play with. Be sure and return them when you put the dog behind the gate for the night.

Sooner or later, that new carpet will get its first stain. Then it's up to you whether to let your dog roam at will.

A checklist of 'musts' readies house for winter

At the first cold snap in the air, you know winter isn't far off. And, though it may be weeks before the mercury plummets, now's the time to get your house and property ready for cold weather.

To help you prepare for winter this year, here's a checklist to keep handy:

☐ Bring in the plants before a surprise frost nips and kills leaves. You can take cuttings from big geraniums. Swedish ivy or spider plants that have flourished outdoors all summer.

☐ Leave the mother plant outdoors and root the new shoots for next year's garden. Don't forget to dig up dahlia bulbs for basement storage and replanting in spring.

☐ Clean patio furniture and barbecue grill before retiring them to the garage or tool shed for winter storage. Spray Grease relief® all-purpose degreaser directly onto grill, skewers and other greasy soiled surfaces; then wipe clean with a damp sponge.

Use a wire brush to remove any stubborn or burned-on residue.

☐ Wash beach towels and patio furniture covers. If suntan oil has left its mark, spray some all-purpose degreaser directly on the spots before washing as usual.

☐ Wash and air summer blankets, quilts and other linens you plan to store. Let them spend a few hours in the sun so they'll smell fresh and clean.

☐ Air winter clothes and clean out closets or attic where they've been stored, to get the area ready for your summer wardrobes. Vacuum and wash bedroom closets before switching to next season's outfits.

☐ Ready the kitchen for upcoming months of baking—degrease range and oven with all-purpose degreaser; scrub cabinets in which food, dishes and utensils are kept; when replacing contents, organize them for easy access; remove food from freezer and clean inside thoroughly.

You can prevent items from defrosting while you clean, if you put frozen food in a large bowl or sink with ice cube trays for insulation, and cover with a dish towel.

☐ Winterize your linen closets, china cupboard and medicine cabinet by removing all items—checking and discarding out-of-date prescriptions or never-used items—then scrubbing shelves, replacing liner paper and returning everything to a logical order.

☐ Check stockpile of logs, twigs and long matches to be sure you're ready for a cozy fire the first evening the temperature drops to a nippy level.

Now is the time for all-vinyl siding

One of the most recent trends in home improvements for the '70s is the strong demand for low maintenance building materials. Homeowners today want to eliminate maintenance costs, as well as give their home long-lasting protection and a fresh, new look.

Since your home is probably one of the biggest investments you'll ever make, find out the good and bad points of each type of siding before reaching a decision.

Many homeowners are avoiding problems with wood, asbestos and metal siding by turning to solid vinyl. According to experts at Bird & Son, manufacturers of building materials in East Walpole, Mass., solid vinyl siding is a triumph of modern technology.

Termites hate solid vinyl, and it doesn't rot, peel, dent, rust or corrode. Solid vinyl is virtually maintenance free, since rain alone will usually keep it clean.

And, because the color goes all the way through, solid vinyl won't show scratches like many other types of siding.

Solid vinyl is a favored material for siding on both new and old houses because it lasts the lifetime of a home. Easily applied over existing surfaces, it can dramatically restore a home's original beauty or transform the appearance, adding to its resale value.

Not only can solid vinyl siding enhance every type of house from single and multi-family homes to garden apartments and condominiums, it works well with every style of architecture from colonial to ultra-modern.

LOW MAINTENANCE solid vinyl siding and complementary accessories by building materials manufacturer Bird & Son, inc., East Walpole, Mass., are popular with homeowners because they won't rot, rust or corrode and never need painting.

By mixing and matching the wide range of solid vinyl building products available from Bird & Son, producers of high quality building materials since 1795, homeowners can use their imagination.

Bird is the industry's color leader and offers a variety of styles which can be used to achieve striking effects.

Attractive trim accessories add the finishing touches to solid vinyl siding.

Woodstead ornamental shutters give a home individuality, and they are easy to install on any type of surface. Made of high-density polystyrene, Bird Woodstead shutters offer lasting beauty without the problems of continual maintenance.

Durable soffit and fascia systems, as well as gutter and downspout systems, have proved their extremely high weather resistance through all sorts of corrosion and exposure tests. They have the same low maintenance requirements as solid vinyl siding.

Take your time and investigate the facts before you make a decision. Siding is a big investment no matter what type you choose. By looking beyond the initial costs to the potential costs of maintenance, you'll be in the swing of the '70s and happy with your choice for years to come.

If you would like more information about siding before you build, remodel or repair, write for the "What You Should Know About Siding" booklet. Send your name, address and 50¢ to Siding, Box R-P, Bird & Son, East Walpole, MA 02032.

Smoke detector installation important to protect family

To provide maximum protection, fire and smoke detectors must be installed in the right locations in your home, says a major manufacturer of the safety devices.

For basic protection, according to Honeywell, a smoke detector should be placed between each sleeping area and the rest of the house. This might be at the head of the stairway leading to bedrooms in a two-story house, or in a hallway of a ranch house, apartment or mobile home.

A multi-level home should be equipped with a smoke detector on each additional level—including the basement—for the minimum of recommended protection.

The best fire-safety measure is to add detectors to living and family rooms—as well as workshops, utility and furnace rooms. As a final safety measure, put one in every smoker's bedroom.

Installation of the Honeywell battery-powered smoke and fire detector consists of three simple steps. The unit is attached to wall or ceiling with the screws and anchors provided. Next the battery is connected and clipped into the detector.

When the cover is snapped on the detector is set to give you an 85-decibel warning of the earliest stages of a fire.

Enrollment Down 1,307

All Factors Should Be Spelled Out In Schools Closing, Says Toland

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy school committee, and the public, will need further clarification of all factors involved before reaching any decision on the suggestion that four schools be closed, according to Patricia Toland, vice chairman of the committee.

Faced with a continuing decline in enrollments the committee has been asked to consider the feasability of such a step. Mrs. Toland is requesting public hearings, particularly in the areas to be directly affected, to give parents an opportunity to express their opinions on the proposals.

"I fuly appreciate that some action must be taken, but the whole problem, and the different recommendations, will have to be spelled out," the vice chairwoman said, commenting after last week's committee meeting.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, told the board that a task force has prepared a 227-page report on present enrollments and projections of school population over the next generation.

The present Quincy public school enrollment is 13,553--down 1,307 from last year's figure of 14,260.

According to the report submitted by the task force the decline is expected to continue until the late 1980's "when enrollments will be between 9,700 and 10,000, approximately 43 percent below the peak enrollment of 17,080 in 1971."

Creedon said that the predictions for 1978-79 enrollment were off less than two percent, except in the kindergarten. In that group the enrollment was more than 14 percent less than predicted. He also noted that the birth rate in Quincy in the past year was nine percent less than the state average.

Dr. Creedon specifically mentioned the Cranch, Hunting, Miles Standish and Great Hill schools as the smallest in the system. He showed the committee cost comparisons between maintaining the schools and providing education in the neighborhoods should a decision be made to close them.

Mrs. Toland, expressed surprise when the superintendent said closing the schools would save only $1 to $1.50 on the tax rate.

Creedon said he would recommend public hearings, particularly in the areas of the city that might be directly affected.

The committee was also told the task force was recommending reorganization of grade structure with a configuration of K-5, 6-8, 9-12 or some other workable grade grouping.

The board was also asked to look into the possibility of:

- Introducing alternative schools.
- Return of North Quincy High School to a six year high school.
- And study boundary changes aimed at providing for consolidation and optimum use of the newest and best facilities.

Mrs. Toland requested the superintendent for more information regarding the suggestions.

During the discussion on possible school closings Committeewoman Joan Picard pointed out that in some instances the older buildings are of sound construction and provide better facilities.

The committee generally agreed that more information is required regarding the impact any reorganization would have on the school system.

City Councillor Leo Kelly, Ward 1, told the committee he is opposed the closing of smaller schools. Both the Hunting and Great Hill schools are in his district.

Kelly said neighborhood schools contribute to unity in the community and are often the social centers, bringing residents together.

$407,623 Grant For Criminal Apprehension Program

Hanson called the program "an attempt to make Quincy a West Coast police department on the East Coast." He praised Chief Finn for the effort.

"It really is a radical change in the way police departments traditionally have been managed," he said, "and administrators generally find it difficult to make radical changes.

"The kinds of changes Quincy is making are those seen in the more modern departments on the West Coast.

"The East Coast departments traditionally have been very difficult in terms of modernizing patrol operations, possibly because of local political situations which are a lot more intense than on the West Coast."

Atlantic Center Building Up For Auction Thursday

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center is up for auction today [Thursday] and the city of Quincy is standing by ready to take it from the winning bidder by eminent domain.

The building at 148-154 East Squantum St., is owned by Timothy P. Cardwell and mortgaged twice for a total of about $47,000, according to Richard Meade of the Planning Department.

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center has occupied the section of the building at 150 East Squantum St. for the past three years on a five-year lease.

Meade said the city is legally forbidden to bid at the auction so it would have to wait until a buyer emerged and either negotiate a sale with him or take it by eminent domain.

Both Meade and City Councillor Joanne Condon, who was one of the founders of the Atlantic Center, said the other units in the building are needed for the expansion of the Center.

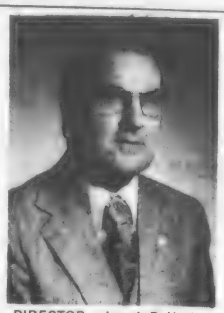
One unit is occupied by a beauty salon, another by a television repair shop and the third is vacant.

The city would use federal community development funds to make the purchase, Meade said. Any rents collected would go back into the community development program.

Atlantic Center Program Schedule

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., will be open Saturday, Oct. 21 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for the benefit of working members of the community.

A blood pressure clinic will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. Mrs. Beatrice Riley, a registered nurse and an RSVP volunteer will conduct this program. Working members of the community are encouraged to drop in, browse in the Paperback Book Swap and see what the center has to offer.



A well-baby clinic will be held Tuesday, Oct. 17. This is a free service provided by the Quincy Health Department. A registered nurse and a doctor are available from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. for check-ups and immunization for infants through six year-olds. Also on Tuesday, a bus will leave for Faneuil Hall Marketplace at 6:15 p.m. and return around 9:30 p.m.

Wednesday is senior day at the center. Seniors meet for knitting at 10 a.m. and beano at 1 p.m.

On Thursday, the second class of "Kids in the Kitchen" will begin at 3 p.m. taught by Mary Beauregard, a student volunteer from Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing. At 7:15 p.m. Thursday, a bus will leave for the teen swim program under the direction of Carol Peterson, a student intern from Salve Regina College.

Friday the center has a blood pressure clinic from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. All Atlantic residents are invited to have their blood pressure checked.

For further information about services or programs at the Center, contact Jane Ford, director at 328-1708 or visit the center at 150 East Squantum Street.

Except For Salaries

Keep School Budget At Same Level, Says Toland

The 1979-80 school budget should be kept at this year's level, except for negotiated salaries, Mrs. Patricia Toland, vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee, told a goal setting session of the committee last week.

Some way must be found to purchase less teaching materials and other supplies, she said. She said everybody is aware that inflation has lowered the buying power of the dollar.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, pointed out that salaries account for 82 percent of the current budget of more than $32 million. He said that meeting step increases and level changes will cost an additional $500,000 without considering salaries now in negotiation.

Committeeman Frank Anselmo objected to setting a limit on the administration and said that if any cuts are to be made they should refer to specific items in the budget submitted.

He said that the cutting of the budget comes up every year. He contends that by putting off buying needed supplies this year, the school department would only be increasing purchases in the following year.

"If your roof leaks, and you don't fix it now, it will cost twice as much later," he commented.

Committeewoman Joan Picaro agreed with Mrs. Toland that every effort should be made to keep the budget within bounds. She added that many people are required to obtain a second, or third job, just to make ends meet.

Anselmo moved to table the budget discussion until a later meeting.

City Hall Nominated For Historic Places Register

Quincy City Hall has been nominated for the National Register of Historic Places, announces Mayor Arthur Tobin.

The nomination was prepared by the Planning Department and submitted to the Massachusetts Historic Commission for final action.

If the nomination is accepted, City Hall would join the Adams National Historic Site, the United First Parish Church, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Josiah Quincy House, the two Presidential Birthplaces, the Quincy Granite Railway incline, the Quincy Granite Railway site, the Thomas Crane Library, Moswetusset Hummock, the Adams Academy, and the John Winthrop Jr. Iron Furnace, as officially recognized by the Federal Government.

City Hall was built in 1844 of Quincy granite. Designed by Solomon Willard, who also designed the Bunker Hill Monument, it is regarded as an outstanding example of Greek Revival Civic architecture.

The nomination report was prepared under the direction of Robert Luongo of the Planning Department, with assistance from H. Hobart Holly of the Quincy Historical Society and Dorothy Newton of the Quincy Public Library.

Hemlocks To Give Rosemary Lane Residents Privacy

Some 75 hemlock trees, six to seven feet in height, have been planted along the fence behind the Howard Johnson Restaurant on the Southeast Expressway to bring some measure of privacy to residents of Rosemary Lane, West Quincy.

For years, said City Councillor James A. Sheets, those residents have been complaining about the lights, fumes and noise from trucks that use the Ho Jo parking area both night and day.

Residents are so pleased to get the trees, said Sheets, that "neighbors have now gone out and raked the area and, in the near future, hope to mow the grass on the banking where the trees are planted."

Meeting Planned To Get Auxiliary Police In Action

A meeting is planned among Quincy's public safety officials to iron out the problems of the Auxiliary Police Force and get the volunteers back at work after some three months off duty.

The City Council cleared the way for their return last week by appropriating $987.50 out of federal revenue sharing funds to cover the auxiliaries with insurance while they are on authorized duty.

Auxiliary Police Chief Anthony Siciliano said the money would pay insurance premiums of $19.50 for each of the 50 men and women on the force for one full year.

Siciliano asked for a meeting among the auxiliaries, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, the City Council's Public Safety Committee and the Patrolman's Union "to get some things ironed out."

A hearing on a request of Le Disco, 79 Parkingway, Quincy, for a 2 a.m. closing license and a permit to install 14 machines in a basement game room was continued by the Quincy Licensing Board on Tuesday.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the board, explained that the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission has not yet approved the discotheque's application for an all alcoholic license.

A group of President's Hill residents, who attended to oppose Le Disco's license, were informed by Gillis they will be notified when a new date for the hearing is set.

A FIRST DOWN -- Quincy quarterback Dave Austin finds a little daylight and picks up a first down against Waltham.

Presidents Look For Rebound At Newton N.

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy football coach Tom Fitzgerald knew what to expect last Saturday when his Presidents hosted unbeaten Waltham at Veterans Memorial Stadium and he got what he expected.

The Hawks, leading the Suburban League, came to Quincy with convincing 36-0 and 33-14 wins in their two outings and Fitzgerald who, with his assistants, had watched the 36-0 win over Brookline, called them "awesome."

The explosive Waltham team, sparked by the brilliant John Giusti, caught Quincy early with a 42-yard scoring pass and a 55-yard touchdown run and it went on to defeat the Presidents, 27-6.

All Waltham's points came in the first half and Fitzgerald was delighted with the way the Presidents came back in the second half to outplay the league leaders.

This Saturday Quincy faces another strong league opponent, Newton North in a 1:30 p.m. game at Newton's Dickinson Stadium and the first-year Quincy coach expects better things.

"We knew how strong and explosive this Waltham team is, but I feel our boys did an excellent job against them," Fitzgerald said. "They are the best looking high school team I've seen and I can't see anyone beating them this year. This boy Giusti is fantastic and the other halfback, (Jerry) Cappadonna, is also outstanding. The team is awfully quick and the line really gets off the mark fast.

"All their touchdowns came on long passes and runs and our boys were hitting hard all day. The defense did its job and the offense continues to show improvement. I think we will bounce back at Newton. We certainly weren't disgraced in this game."

The game was marred by numerous penalties as Waltham was hit 11 times for 155 yards and Quincy was assessed five times for 75 yards. There were also other penalties which were refused and a few offsetting penalties.

All Giusti did was score three touchdowns, giving him eight for the season, rush 11 times for 119 yards (he has nearly 500 yards in three games), kick three straight extra points, do some fine punting, run the opening kickoff back from his 10 to Quincy's 44 and even kick a 33-yard field goal which was voided by a penalty.

Cappadona added nearly 100 yards rushing and quarterback Mark Tabor completed six of 10 passes for 135 yards and two touchdowns.

Quincy's junior quarterback, Dave Austin, had his best day hitting on 12 of 18 passes for 144 yards and also ran well.

"He is coming along well and is beginning to find himself," Fitzgerald said. "Our running game looked good at times with Fran Donovan, playing only his second game at halfback, and John Sullivan, playing his first game after an injury, did well. Jeff Giordani also looked good."

Tom Brennan had a great day, catching five passes, scoring the touchdown and again running well. Paul Bandera and Giordani had two receptions each and Donovan, Glen Lydon and John Cahill caught one each. Cahill ran several kickoffs back for long yardage.

Quincy was without several players including three starters, Co-Capt. Vin Harte and Geoff Caflish could be back this week at Newton.

Gerry Grassi, Lydon, George McCarron, Russ DiPietro, Ron Cross, John Nichols and Bandera were praised for their work in the offensive line.

McCarron, Lydon, Ralph Pickering, Nichols, Donovan, Steve Cacciatore and Billy Murray were singled out for their defensive performances. The Presidents sacked Tabor three times.

Waltham took the lead midway in the opening period when Tabor hit Giusti with a 42-yard pass, Giusti taking the ball on the 30 and outracing the Presidents' defenders. He kicked the point.

Later in the period Cappadona broke away and raced 55 yards to make it 13-0 and Giusti again kicked the point.

Midway in the second period it was Tabor to Giusti again for 30 yards, Giusti running the final 13 yards. He again kicked the point.

A few plays later Giusti raced around right end and galloped 80 yards for the final touchdown. In his previous game he had an 81-yard touchdown run.

Quincy throttled the Hawks in the second half, stopping Giusti the few times he carried and the Presidents averted its first shutout of the year when Brennan plunged over from the one with 41 seconds left.

Waltham had 242 net yards to Quincy's 34 in the first half but had only 47 yards in the second half while Quincy added 53.

Raiders Seek 2nd Win Against Weymouth N.

It looked like another bad day for North Quincy's football team last Saturday at Cambridge when Cambridge Rindge and Latin, winners of its two previous games jumped off to a 12-0 lead.

But the Raiders bounced back with three touchdowns and a 22-12 lead and defeated the Cantabs, 22-20, for their first win of the year in a game which the North coaches hope will turn the season around.

This Saturday North hosts winless Weymouth North in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Veterans Memorial Stadium and Coach Dave Burke hopes his Raiders won't suffer a letdown after its fine comeback last week.

"This was a big win for us and I just hope it will get us started for the second half of the schedule," Burke said. "The boys made a fine comeback, refused to give up and put things together after a bad start."

Tom Quinn, who has sparked the offense all season, had another big day as he threw a touchdown pass to get North rolling and scored the other two touchdowns. He also threw two passes for the extra points which proved the difference. Quinn has thrown five passes this year for extra points on the halfback option.

"Jim Holleran (who caught the TD pass and those for the winning points), did a terrific job today as did Quinn," Burke said. Kevin Cobban played a good game at quarterback. We have been using Quinn on the halfback option pass and it has worked well the last two games." Quinn rushed for more than 100 yards for the third time.

"In the offensive line Dan McIntyre, Mark Spinale, Joe Venezia, Pat McKenna, Paul White, who was outstanding both ways, and John O'Leary all played well," said Burke.

Ken McPhee, one of the defensive coaches, was delighted with the way the defense hit after a disappointing game at Newton.

"The boys were really hitting today," he said. "They pulled together after a poor showing at Newton and we showed the results of a fine week of practice. Today we were really pleased with the defensive effort."

Ken singled out junior Leo Graham, who has been fantastic all season, White, Larry Baker, Matt Hemphill, McKenna and McIntyre.

"One of their touchdowns came on a blocked punt and the last one came on a pass in the final minutes," McPhee said.

Cambridge scored in the opening period and made it 12-0 on the blocked punt in the third period.

Quinn hit Holleran for a touchdown pass covering 35 yards later in the third period and the same two combined for the two points. This seemed to fire up the Raiders and they dominated the rest of the game.

Early in the fourth period Quinn ran 40 yards for a touchdown and his pass to Holleran put North in front, 16-12.

Quinn scored the clincher on a five-yard run and Cambridge made it close in the final minutes with its touchdown pass.

Ted Sadowski's North sophomores topped Cambridge, 6-0, are 4-0 on the season and are still unscored upon.

Tom Quinn Like A One-Man Gang

Tobin, McCauley

Both Oppose 100% Valuation

[Cont'd from Page 1]

The fact is he voted for it.

"But because of the hardship that is going to be caused in this community I'm asking him now if he'll change his position with the special interests and come out and support the homeowners and the rent payers of this city."

All communities in Massachusetts have been, in effect, under court mandate to reassess on the basis of 100 per cent of true market value for the last four years after a State Supreme Court ruling in the so-called Sudbury case.

Tobin said the latest report from the State Secretary's office shows that the Committee Against Property Tax Discrimination has raised a war chest of $97,500 as of Sept. 20 with which to fight the Classification Amendment and thus support 100 per cent valuation.

"If 100 per cent goes through," said Tobin, "there will be a shift of $265 million in tax monies statewide from commercial and industrial properties over to the homeowners.

"We know there is a demand out there for tax relief.

"But if the legislature introduces some form of tax reform after implementation of 100 per cent valuation then you're not giving true tax relief to the homeowners.

"If you shift $265 million over to the home owner and then give tax relief all you're doing is taking away part of the extra burden you've placed on him.

"You haven't given him tax relief. All you've done is give double tax relief to the business and commercial interests. We want reform after classification."

Poster Contest For Children

Christmas Festival Program Feature

A Poster Contest for children in Grades 1 through 6 in the Quincy public, private and parochial schools will be added to this year's Christmas Festival Program.

Theme of the contest will be "What Christmas Means To Me". The posters entered will be limited to a maximum size of 22 inches by 28 inches. Any size larger will be disqualified.

There will be two categories of winners in the competition. Grades 1 through 3 will be in the first group and Grades 4 through 6 in the second. A $100 U.S. Savings Bond will be awarded to each of the first place winners and a $25. U.S. Savings Bond to both second place finishers.

It is suggested that the teachers in the classrooms participating choose the winners of their own class or allow the children to vote, in their opinion, the outstanding entry of the classroom for nominations for the finals.

A committee will be chosen and announced at a later date for judging the finals.

All classroom winning posters must be submitted to the co-chairmen Mrs. Gloria A. Noble of 14 Myopia Road, Wollaston or Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, by Wednesday, Nov. 15, for final processing and judging.

The deadline of Nov. 15 will be final. No posters will be accepted from the schools involved after that date.

"The really great thing about being a chimney sweep," he says, "is that the profession creates such a challenge. No two chimneys are the same. When you get to the house you have to think for a while about what is the best way to clean the chimney. It is in no way a boring job."

Ruck, who advertises with the slogan "A clean chimney is a safe chimney", recently hired an answering service to take his chimney cleaning calls. He plans to continue as a sweep as long as the job can support him.

"As far as I'm concerned this is just the start of a lifelong career as an old English chimney sweep."

The eight-week, one evening a week, course is conducted by the Management Growth Institute and will be run from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Chamber's conference room.

The fee is $160 per registrant, or $145 each for three or more registrants from the same firm. There will be a $10 surcharge for each non-Chamber member.

Topics covered will include: What is a Supervisor?; Motivating Subordinates; Understanding the Boss; Communicating Effectively; The Supervisor and Cost Control; Developing Leadership Skills and others.

Each teacher in the course has had extensive on-the-job experience and is skillful at involving participants in group discussion. The course has proven so successful that the Chamber has conducted it twice a year for the last six years.

Board Delays Action On Doughnut Shop Food License

A request for a common victualer's license at Berry's, a doughnut shop at 499 Washington St., Quincy Point, was taken under advisement by the Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday after hearing objections from an adjacent Chinese restaurant, Peking Kitchen.

Robert D. Berry, 2 Rhodes Pl., Hingham, asked the board to permit him to expand his operation to include breakfast and light lunch. He contended that the doughnut shop was opened before the restaurant.

Att. Philip O'Neil, appearing for Richard Moy, owner of the Chinese restaurant, presented a contract which, he said, clearly ruled out any food service shop in the block of stores.

The board requested a copy of the contract and said the city law department will be asked for a ruling.

APPRAISAL METHODS

Comedian Buddy Hacket put it nicely: "If everybody had the same opinion, every man would want to marry my wife." So goes the art of appraising the value of property. In the final analysis, every piece of property is different. Basically, there are three methods of arriving at a value estimate.

1. Comparison. A comparison is made as to price, value, and location in relation to other properties in the same neighborhood.

2. Reproduction Cost. How much would it cost to reproduce the structure? Add to this the value of the land and deduct for depreciation.

3. Capitalization. This is used for income property. The value is established by consideration of the present and future income value of the property.

Frequently, the appraiser will use all three methods. No single method can always be depended upon to produce reliable estimates by itself.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

Energy Bill Would Save $129 Million, Says Sheets

Congressional passage of an energy bill that would equalize prices paid for residual fuel oil on both the East and West Coasts would save New Englanders about $129 million, says Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy].

The bill would cut the price of fuel to utilities and, under state law, said Sheets, the utilities must pass the savings along to the consumers.

Sheets said he is sending a letter to the state DPU asking for estimates of the cost savings to the consumer and also asking that the department insure that the utilities pass all the savings along to their customers.

Higher Education Night At QHS

The guidance staffs of Quincy public schools under the direction of Edward Nankin, head counselor at Quincy High School, will host a higher education night at the high school, Tuesday, Oct. 17, 6 to 9 p.m.

Students, parents, and interested citizens from Quincy, Milton and Weymouth are invited to meet with admissions directors from approximately 50 New England schools and colleges. The representatives will be available to discuss financial aid, programs, and admission requirements at their respective schools.

Higher education night provides students and their parents an opportunity to explore possible avenues of further education before the choice becomes immediate and critical. Seniors can review their current selections and finalize plans before making formal application in November.

Programs listing room locations of the schools and an explanatory sheet will be available in the lobby of the high school.

ELECTRIC BUG owner Robert Prussmann, of North Quincy, stands with extension cord he plugs into regular outlet to charge his electric powered Volkswagen's 12 batteries. Car requires no other maintenance. [Steve Grochowski Photo]

'The Electric Bug'

It Only Costs Him 1 Cent A Mile

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

If you find yourself on Rte. 128 some morning, easily passing a red '64 Volkswagen convertible emblazoned with the name "Electric Bug", don't laugh.

It may be slow, but it costs only a penny a mile to run.

The electric powered car is owned by Robert Prussmann who lives with his wife, Cynthia, on Conant Rd., North Quincy. He converted the standard transmission car 14 months ago, and regularly drives it to work, General Connector Corp., in Newton where he is manufacturing manager.

It can reach a speed of 50 m.p.h. for a distance of about 50 miles. Twelve six-volt truck batteries, an industrial charger and a seven-horse power electric motor provide the car's power.

Prussmann charges the batteries, the car's only maintenance, through a regular electric outlet for six hours, using about 50 cents worth of electricity, which averages out to one cent a mile. This compares with the cost of approximately four cents a mile for a regular Volkswagen and a lot more for a larger car. The converted Volkswagen has already paid for itself.

When Prussman takes it to work, he recharges the batteries for the trip home through an outlet installed for him at his parking space.

Cost of conversion was $1500—$1400 for parts, $100 for the Volkswagen. Work, which took about 40 hours, consisted of taking out the back seat, setting up the batteries (three in front, nine in back), cutting holes for the generator and hooking the motor into the transmission.

The Volkswagen was especially good to work with since it is already set up for a power source in the rear.

"Any person with reasonable intelligence, handy with tools, can do it," says Prussmann.

He hasn't had a problem with it yet. Admittedly a second car because of its limitations, it is pollution free and quiet, producing just a slight whirring noice.

Prussman, who calls himself a putterer, first started thinking about the possibility of an electric car while travelling in Europe, where cities like Amsterdam already have electric rental cars. Prices for cars and gasoline are so high, and pollution from emissions becoming such a problem, electric cars are becoming a popular alternative.

The next step was getting in touch with Frizzell's Electric Transportation, in Maynard. They provided him with a set of instructions and a list of parts needed along with places to get them. Putting in an hour or so after work each night and a few week ends for about a month, he was ready to go.

Reaction to the car has been mostly that of amusement, followed by curiosity. Prussmann has had an offer or two to go into the electric car business.

But, he says "I have a job... I did it for my own entertainment. And it's worked out perfectly for that . . . I get a lot of fun out of it . . . I know what I've accomplished".

Collection Agencies Eye $10 Million In Back Taxes, Bills

By TOM HENSHAW

The Mayor's office is being "inundated" with requests from collection agencies who want to help the city collect some $10 million that is owed in taxes and bills for services.

They'll help for a price, for a percentage of the take.

The deluge of mail stems in part from Mayor Tobin's request for a $34,000 appropriation to set up a new city department with a staff of six to go after the delinquent tax and bill payers.

The City Council's Finance Committee voted last week to delay action on the Mayor's request so members could get more precise information on the function of the new department.

It would have an administrative assistant and five deputy collectors.

"Both the Council and myself agree that we've identified the problem," said Tobin. "We're just trying to figure out the best way to solve it.

"The cost ($34,000 to start, $78,200 a year) is causing some of the councillors a problem.

"Maybe they're frightened of the up front money, but when you compare it to the millions of dollars that can be collected, it's worth it.

"I'm trying to collect it on a personal basis rather than turn to a collection agency."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley suggested at the Fin Comm hearing that the problem could be farmed out to a collection agency for a percentage of what it collected.

Tobin said collection agencies usually demand from one-third to one-half of the take.

"This is what I didn't want to get into," he said. "They get a percentage of the cream off the top and this is the money that the city is looking for.

"We want to set up a flat rate and lay out a goal. If it isn't achieved then we would abandon the idea."

Since the public became aware of the fact that Quincy was trying to collect its back taxes and bills the interest of collection agencies has been aroused.

"I've been inundated by requests from collection agencies that want to come in and talk to me about a so-called deal," said Tobin. "They're in business and they want a percentage.

"I have a funny feeling if we go to collection business. We'd be spending good money out there and I think we could be making more for the taxpayers of the city if we do it ourselves."

Tobin said that another McCauley suggestion to hire federally funded CETA workers to do the job could be ruled out, too.

"There is no CETA program right now," he said. "We've inquired for other projects and there's a freeze on right now."

Property Tax Exemption Meeting For Seniors Thursday

The Quincy Council on Aging is sponsoring a seminar on property tax exemption at 10 a.m. today [Thursday] in the board room of Tobin Towers, 80. Clay St., Wollaston.

Mayor Tobin said the purpose of the meeting will be to explain the eligibility requirements and application procedure for property tax exemption or deferral.

Councils on Aging and Boards of Assessors from neighboring towns have been invited to attend along with representatives of the state department of revenue's property tax bureau.

Decision Delayed For Week

Proposed W. Quincy Restaurant License Runs Into Opposition

Strong opposition was voiced at the Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday during a hearing on the petition of Nicholas V. Trifone and his son, Nicholas V. Trifone III, for a common victualer, all alcoholic license for a proposed restaurant, La Vinia at 184 Willard St., West Quincy.

A group of West Quincy residents, headed by Rev. John McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's Church, 131 Crescent St., told the board they objected on the grounds the restaurant would generate traffic and noise in the area.

"Even a first class restaurant would bring more traffic," Fr. McMahon said. "And we would even oppose a first class restaurant."

He also told the board that residents feared La Vinia would be "just another bar".

"There are already eight or nine bars in the area," he said.

Atty. James Castleman, appearing for Trifone, informed the board the restaurant would have a 30 by 40 foot interior and would seat about 60 patrons. He also said the petitioner has purchased an adjoining lot for parking.

The limited menu would include barbecued beef, lamb and pork and a variety of sandwiches, Castleman said. Plans call for a service bar and there is space available in the basement for storage.

Atty. Donald Riley told the board he does not live in the area but his wife owns property there. He said that he has been acquainted with Trifone for a number of years and considers him to be an asset to the community.

Riley said that if any violations of the license occurred the residents could return to the board and ask that it be revoked.

Several other residents said they objected to having children going back and forth to school passing the restaurant.

City Councillor James Sheets presented a petition signed by 112 area residents opposing the issuance of a license.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, a member of the board, pointed out that the area is zoned for business and that some other business might be more of a nuisance.

The board continued action on the petition for one week.

$190,200 Study First

City To Seek U.S. Funds To Improve Sewer System

The City Council has voted to appropriate $190,200 from an old bond issue to study the city's sewer system preparatory to filing for a federal grant for the improvement of the lines.

Actually, the city will spend only $19,020 for the study since the federal government will reimburse 75 per cent and the state 15 per cent when the project reaches design stage.

The appropriation was passed unanimously, even though Councillor Francis X. McCauley questioned it briefly.

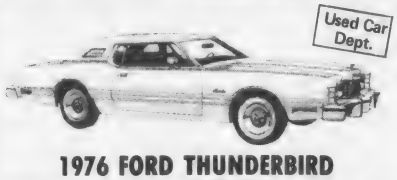
"Do we really need to spend this money?" he asked. "Don't we know what our sewer department needs? Is it possible we're studying these things to death?"

Robert Carleo of William Moore Associates, the firm that would be designated to do the study, said the company would start out by interviewing employees of the Public Works Department.

"We would work intimately with Public Works people who know the system," he said. "There are over one million feet of sewer lines in Quincy and you can't expect Public Works to look over them all."

Tsongas Here Friday

Cong. Paul E. Tsongas [D-Lowell], the Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, will visit Quincy Friday to attend events sponsored by State Senate candidate Paul D. Harold.



Tsongas will be at a coffee hour for local businessmen at the South Shore Bank conference room and a clam chowder party at 1000 Southern Artery.

Tobin Continues Grass Roots Campaign

New Bedford Protest Gives Classification Amendment 'Shot In Arm'

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin's campaign for passage of the so-called Classification Amendment received a long distance shot in the arm from New Bedford this week.

An estimated 4,000 angry taxpayers stormed City Hall in New Bedford protesting their new tax bills and forced the city government to shut down for the day.

"The people of New Bedford just got their tax bills under 100 percent valuation, which increased $500," said Tobin, who views the November referenda as Classification vs. 100 per cent valuation.

"If 100 per cent valuation came to Quincy tomorrow there would be a $700 to $900 increase in tax bills."

Tobin said he is a little disappointed in the turnout for the meetings he has held around the city to explain the purpose of the Classification Amendment and the impact of 100 per cent valuation.

One meeting, he said, drew about 150 people, another drew 80 people and a third about 60 people.

"The people who are coming out are extremely happy that they did," said Tobin. "They claim they understand it. We're a little disappointed more people haven't taken an interest.

"This leads me to believe either they're confused over the issue or they understand the effects of 100 per cent valuation or there could be some apathy in the air right now."

Other meetings are scheduled for tonight (Thursday) at the Wollaston School; Tuesday, Oct. 24, at Atlantic Junior High School; Thursday, Oct. 26, at the Squantum School, and Sunday, Oct. 29, at the Vocational Technical School. All meetings are at 7:30 p.m.

All communities in Massachusetts are under the judicial gun to revalue all real property in their borders at 100 per cent of market value. The average Quincy valuation is about 31 per cent.

Passage of the Classification Amendment to the State Constitution would permit the city to value residential property at 40 per cent, commercial at 50 per cent, industrial at 55 per cent and open space at 25 per cent of market value.

The current Quincy tax rate is $196.60. Under 100 per cent valuation it would be about $60. Under classification it would be an estimated $150.

"It's not the tax rate," said Tobin. "It's the tax bill that hurts.

"A $40,000 home, under 100 per cent valuation, would produce a tax bill of $2,400 (40 multiplied by 60).

"A $40,000 home, under classification, would produce a $1,600 tax bill ($16,000 valuation minus $5,000 homestead exemption multiplied by 150).

"That's a difference of $800. That's more than $60 on the monthly mortgage payments. Is that tax relief for the homeowner? I don't think so."

Tobin said he is getting his message across to the people who have been attending the meetings but they are not enough.

"Whatever happens on the November ballot," he said, "I don't want anyone coming up to me after the election and telling me no one tried to tell him about it.

"Why did all those people storm city hall in New Bedford? It was the impact of 100 per cent valuation, that's what it was."

CHIP CARTER is given a Harold for State Senate button by Councillor Paul Harold. The President's son was in Boston recently campaigning for Democratic Candidates in the area.

Free Legal Clinic At Oct. 24 At Quincy Court

A free legal clinic will be held at the Quincy District Court on Tuesday night, Oct. 24 from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Norfolk County Bar Association, the clinic will be staffed by several experienced attorneys from the association. All members of the public are invited to individually discuss legal problems with an attorney in private for no fee on the night of the clinic.

The clinic, the first this year, is part of a successful series of free clinics presented by the Norfolk County Bar Association for the benefit of the public for the past several years.

Where possible, the attorneys involved will attempt to resolve the legal problems presented during the individual interviews on the night of the clinic. Free advice will be given on such matters as wills, automobile and personal injury cases, consumer problems, divorce, adoption, real estate and small business matters.

If, following the clinic, the individual is in need of additional legal services, he will be referred to an attorney by the Norfolk Bar Association Referral Service. The fee for any follow-up services needed after the free clinic will be at the referral attorney's ordinary rate.

Residents of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton and Holbrook are encouraged to take advantage of this clinic.

Illegally Parked Cars In Shipyard Area To Be Towed

Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi warns that illegally parked motor vehicles in the area of the Quincy Shipyard will be towed in conformance with city ordinances.

Raymondi said he has been in communication with the City Solicitor's office, the Purchasing Agent, the Chief of Police and the Traffic Division to discuss the problems in an effort to bring about an effective implementation of the towing ordinances in the shipyard area.

Raymondi said towing was implemented in this area last year, but had to be halted because it did not conform with state guidelines. The entire process had to be sent out for bids. However, this procedure was not followed by the previous administration. Under the new administration there were some minor difficulties with the bidding procedures, but the problems have been resolved and the police department has the go ahead to tow.

Raymondi said he has been advised by Police Chief Francis Finn a concentrated effort is being made to remove the illegally parked vehicles in the shipyard area, and the effort will continue until the problem has been resolved.

Raymondi said he is hopeful the action will be helpful in alleviating the hazardous traffic problems in the area.

ARTICLE 3

What is greenware? This term refers to unfired clay objects. These objects are made by pouring liquid clay [called "Slip"] into a plaster mold. While the clay is in the mold,the plaster absorbs the water from the clay. When the proper thickness for the object is accomplished the excess clay is poured out of the mold. The shape formed from the mold is carefully removed and allowed to dry. Before it is completely dry it is called "leather hard". When it is completely dry, ready for sale, it is called "greenware". In all stages these forms are very fragile and must be handled with care.

Visit us at GLORIA'S CERAMICS, 221 W. SQUANTUM ST., QUINCY. Mon. thru Sat., 10-4, evenings 7-9. Friday night workshop, 7-9. No instructor, so you'll need ceramic know-how. DUNCAN and CERAMICHROME DISTRIBUTORS.

TIPS AND HINTS:

If you find you break a lot of greenware, or you find a piece too fragile to handle, you can fire them first to cone 020. This is called soft bisque, and can safely allow you to clean the piece thus avoiding breakage.

Plans To Return To Court

Fabrizio To Seek 'Specific' Reasons For His Firing

Attorney for ousted assessor Hugo (Flip) Fabrizio plans to return to court this week to "try to get more definite and specific reasons why he got fired."

Fabrizio's bid to halt the appointment of a new assessor in the $21,700 a year post by preliminary injunction was denied last week by Judge John Paul Sullivan in Norfolk Superior Court.

Judge Sullivan ruled that Mayor Arthur H. Tobin must give specific reasons for the dismissal of Fabrizio but he added that the Mayor is under no obligations to reconsider his action.

"If you read the statute the way the judge interpreted it," said James P. Sullivan, Fabrizio's attorney, "all the Mayor would have to say is he didn't like the way he parted his hair. I don't think the legislature that passed the law meant it that way."

Fabrizio's suit also seeks $250,000 in damages from Mayor Tobin, charging that certain statements made by the Mayor were "made with actual malice" and "with reckless disregard on whether they were false or not."

Fabrizio claimed the statements appeared in the Patriot Ledger, The Quincy Sun, and the Boston Herald American, causing damage to his reputation and humiliation.

In a letter Oct. 2 firing Fabrizio, Tobin charged him with "a continued failure to properly assess property; improper assessments resulting in a detriment to the city; and general inability to comprehend the governing statutes on assessments."

A week later, Tobin named Patricia J. Ceriani, a real estate broker who lives at 386 Quarry St., to fill out the remaining 16 months of Fabrizio's three-year term.

Auxiliary Police Back On Duty

The Quincy Auxiliary Police were back on duty last weekend after a five-month work stoppage in a dispute with the city over insurance coverage for the 50 men and women volunteers.

The dispute ended when the City Council voted $987.50 out of federal revenue sharing funds to cover the auxiliaries for injury or death while on duty.

Auxiliary Sgt. Frank L. Davis said five auxiliary officers in two cruisers were back on duty Saturday and Sunday nights checking school grounds for vandalism and congregations of youth.

"Our training involves vandalism and we intend to crack down on it," said Davis. He pointed out that the auxiliaries do not accept paid details.

The insurance plan provides death benefits of $10,000 and $100 a week for up to two years if an officer is off his regular job due to injury in the line of duty.

Jewelry, in its way, can grow old, become dirty and out of fashion. But, good jewelry is almost always redeemable. If cleaning isn't enough to make an old-fashioned piece treasured again, consider having it reset in a modern, attractive setting. If a complete change of style is preferred, have an old ring or pin turned into a necklace. Professional cleaning and resetting can do wonders.

All jewelry should be cleaned periodically and checked for loose prongs and stones. For these and other services come to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Will Tobin Seek Re-election?

Some people close to Mayor Arthur Tobin are beginning to get a "feeling" he may not seek a second term next year.

Shortly after his defeat by Paul Harold in the Democratic state senate primary, Tobin said:

"Right now, I'm contemplating running for re-election. If the people feel I'm doing good as mayor and they want to re-elect me to solve their problems, fine. If not, then I'd accept that also."

That was Sept. 28 and he sounded pretty much like a candidate for re-election. But right now some people would hardly be surprised if next September he is not on the ballot.

The loss to Harold, there's no getting away from it, was a jolt. In politics its either victory or defeat and defeat usually comes one day and it comes hard.

But what really hurt Tobin more than the overall defeat was losing Quincy which went to Harold.

Just a year ago, Tobin was elected mayor after the city had been torn apart during the LaRaia administration and he has been doing a pretty good job putting it back together again.

He has his critics, of course, as any man who occupies the mayor's office has had. The chief executive's chair is a hot seat and you lose ground in it the first day you sit in it.

We had corruption during which Quincy became the butt of bad political jokes and became known as the "Revere of the South Shore". It's been clean since Tobin took office.

A year ago people voted for him for mayor even though in doing so they knew it meant if elected, he would be holding two political offices simultaneously.

But that didn't bother them then. They preferred then to have a mayor-senator rather than the mayor they had.

A year later, some of those very same people then went to the polls and voted for Harold because he said he would be a full-time senator.

So, some of the people who made Tobin a two-job man, turned around a few months later and took one of them away from him.

Of course, the one-job issue Harold rode to victory on, was also an issue a year ago during the Tobin-LaRaia battle. But the corruption-scandal issue was bigger.

Some voters are fickle. And some do strange things with a pencil and a ballot in front of them. There was, for example, the voter who said, after it was all over, that she didn't vote for Tobin for senator because she wanted to be sure he would stay on as mayor.

You couldn't really blame Tobin if he should feel that some people who voted for him for mayor and then voted for Harold for senator kind of let him down because they helped put him in the two-job situation that Harold took full advantage of.

Next year he could very well say the hell with it. He probably could have a judgeship [if the next governor is a Democrat] or he could return to his law practice and live and work comfortably forever after.

If he decides not to run, who would?

Well, Paul Harold can't. After this year's campaign he could never hold two jobs simultaneously. From here on, he's got to be a one-job man.

Possible candidates would be Councillors James Sheets, John Quinn, Francis McCauley or Daniel Raymondi. McCauley might run anyway.

Politics is a fascinating game. There's always something doing and those in office come and go. There's always a challenger waiting for the right time to take on the incumbent.

This was the year for Paul Harold. At age 30 he is now king of the local political mountain. But, somewhere in Quincy today there may be a 10-year-old kid in elementary school who a few years from now could be the one to pull Harold down.

That's politics.

Half-Century Of Birth Records Bound

Fifty years of birth records, stored in cardboard boxes in Quincy City Hall since 1925, have been sorted, collated and bound, Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has announced.

The work, a nine month CETA project, is being completed this week. Eight CETA employees under the direction of Thomas Burke, assistant city clerk, have also stamped titles and dates on the front covers and sides of the volumes to protect a permanent record of the vital statistics.

The bound books will be stored in a vault at city hall where they will be accessible for future reference and research.

The Mayor said he hopes that a similar project can be undertaken to preserve other historical and legislative data relative to the city.

Charges 9 City Employees' Jobs Being Illegally Protected

The city of Quincy has been accused of circumventing the State Civil Service laws by authorizing changes in job classifications to preserve the jobs of nine "unqualified" city employees.

The City Council's Oversight Committee, chaired by Councillor Paul D. Harold, has been assigned to look into the accusations.

The charges were levelled by Robert B. Warmington of 35 Dale Ave., South Quincy, a retired police officer whose bid for reinstatement has been blocked by the City Retirement Board.

"I don't know what he's talking about," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "I hope the City Council and Councillor Harold can find out what it's all about."

Warmington, in a letter to Council President John J. Quinn, laid out his charges like this:

"In April, 1977, the Department of Personnel and Administration held an open competitive examination for the positions of administrative assistants in the cities and towns.

"On May 26, 1978, the list of successful candidates for these positions in the city of Quincy was published for the purpose of filling these positions with the most highly qualified personnel.

"From what I have been able to find out as a private citizen, nine administrative assistants, who were employed by the city of Quincy, had their job classifications changed.

"The Personnel Administration was notified that the city of Quincy had stricken these jobs from the budget and therefore none of the 65 successful candidates would be appointed.

"There is a strong indication that this was done to circumvent Chapter 31 of the Massachusetts General Laws for the sole purpose of retaining unqualified personnel in positions that pay as much as $17,000 per year."

Warmington cited only one of the alleged classification changes in his letter to Quinn.

The administrative assistant in the City Hospital Pathology Department, he said, was terminated on July 6 and later the job title was changed to central time coordinator at a reduced salary of $16,000.

"But," he added, "to this day, this same person is representing himself as administrative assistant to the Pathology Department and is affixing this title under his signature."

Warmington did not identify the other eight administrative assistants whose jobs classifications he said were changed.

Tobin said he queried the hospital on the change of positions in the Pathology Department and was told "that particular job classification was not needed. They needed a technician, not an administrator."

"The change was made at the hospital level," he said. "Once they changed the position, the comptroller just didn't fund the job. He was told by the Pathology Department that it was not needed.

"I hope once the committee gets into these facts they will determine what happened."

In a letter to Harold, Warmington requested access to a number of city documents "one week prior to the first meeting of your committee...in order to make a fair and intelligent presentation before your committee."

Harold was not available for comment on Warmington's request.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Della Chiesa, McIntyre In Campaign Exchange

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and his challenger for re-election, City Council President James R. McIntyre, exchanged heated remarks in appearances in Houghs Neck and Quincy Point.

Oct. 19-25
1959
19 Years Ago
This Week

Della Chiesa told the Men's Club of the Quincy Point Congregational Church that "you'll have Boston politics here in the city of Quincy as sure as I'm standing here" if McIntyre is elected mayor.

McIntyre told the Houghs Neck Legion Boosters Club that the coming election will decide "whether the people of Quincy want the special interest groups of Quincy Square or the people running their government."

Meanwhile, Clifton H. Baker, 81, and George G. Burke, 27, rival candidates for the City Council from Ward 5, clashed over remarks about age attributed to Burke in the Patriot Ledger.

"If you had read this article," Baker told a Koch Club candidates night, "you might have expected me to come in in a wheel chair or at least with a cane but I managed to make it under my own power."

INCINERATOR STUDY OKAYED

The City Council approved $3,500 for an engineering study of a municipal incinerator over the objections of Councillors McIntyre and William C. Ellis, who thought the Council should decide to build before appropriating money.

An incinerator with the capacity to meet the city's needs for 25 years, located on Quarry St. near Hardwick's Quarry, was recommended by a committee of Councillors Joseph E. Brett, Edna B. Austin and David S. McIntosh.

"If the councillors here want rats, vermin, flies, mosquitoes, cockroaches and sea gulls, don't vote for the appropriation," said Brett. "But the people of West Quincy and South Quincy will remember those of you who dare to vote not to appropriate the money."

WALSH SETS RECORD

John Walsh ran a kickoff 109 yards for a touchdown, the longest scoring run in Quincy High School's history, but the Presidents bowed to Malden, 16-6, in a Greater Boston League game.

The Quincy lineup included:

Smith, Monroe, Chase, Merrill, ends; Sacchetti, Underwood, MacLean, O'Brien, Johnson, tackles; Schofield, Harold, McGee, Pennio, guards; Whiting, center; Murphy, Dixon, Mowbray, Darracq, Moore, Gacicia, Landry, Pulsifer, Walsh, Leone, O'Connell, White, backs.

SMOKE IRKS RESIDENTS

Residents of North Quincy and Squantum were plagued by heavy acrid smoke from a fire in a private dump off Hallet St., Dorchester, that was inaccessible to Boston firefighters.

The water supply to the area had been shut off during the building of the Southeast Expressway and firemen were unable to soak the fire area which was 20 to 25 feet below ground.

Koch Club Anniversary Charity Fund Over $4,000 Mark

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, announces that the 30th anniversary charity fund has to date realized $4,040 of the $5000 goal to establish a Koch Club Christmas Charity Fund.

The amount came from the proceeds of the Koch Club 30th Anniversary Booklet containing the historical highlights of the organization in pictures and stories.

Over 2,500 copies have been distributed to families with children or adults participating in the baseball, basketball, bowling, softball and social activities of the Koch Club.

Koch said the cooperation of advertisers, patrons, sponsors boosters printed in the souvenir booklet resulted in the total received.

Persons interested in receiving a copy of the Koch Club 30th Anniversary publication may contact Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

When the goal is reached, the total will be invested with a special account in the city of Quincy accumulating interest and in 1998 on the Golden Anniversary of the Koch Club, the interest accumulated from 1997 to 1998 will be used to provide food and gifts for needy families and children. The practice will be continued each year.

The fund will guarantee assurance that the tradition of the Koch Club Christmas Charitable Programs will continue perpetually should the organization no longer exist.

The Koch Club, on its 25th Anniversary Year in 1973, established a $5000 perpetual Scholarship Fund which also will take effect on the 50th Anniversary of the Koch Club and continue each year thereafter with the annual awarding of scholarships to a boy and girl graduate of the Quincy school system.

Interest and additional gifts since 1973 have raised the original sum to $8500 and will guarantee that this heritage established by the Koch Club will continue.

The Koch Club and its officials will continue the active annual scholarship awards and Christmas charitable projects.

In the three decades of community service of the Koch Club, over 50,000 boys and girls and 10,000 adults have enjoyed the recreational, charitable and social endeavors of the organization.

Basically, the philosophy of the Koch Club has been to place enjoyment first and competition second to allow all children to participate without restructions because of physical or mental handicaps, to blend in the love of country (annual Flag Day Parade) education (the scholarship fund) and charity (the Christmas Charity and Health Agency fund raising activity) by the organization.

Any persons wishing to be involved or participate in the 30th Anniversary Year Christmas Charity Fund may contact Koch at his home.

At Quincy Armory Friday

Msgr. James Scally To Be Honored On 30th Ordination Anniversary

Rev. Msgr. James J. Scally, pastor of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, will be guest of honor at a dinner dance at Quincy Armory Friday evening marking the 30th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m.

In recognition of Msgr. Scally's anniversary Mayor Tobin and the Quincy City Council passed a resolution commending his service to the community "with dedication and devotion, giving generously of his time and efforts, showing compassion and concern for all who sought guidance and help."

Msgr. Scally was ordained May 6, 1948 and was temporarily assigned to St. Joseph's parish, Roxbury. In September he was transferred to Immaculate Conception Church, Weymouth and served there until July, 1949, when he moved back to St. Joseph's.

In 1961 he was assigned to the Cathedral of the Holy Cross and five years later was named rector of the cathedral. In March, 1966, he was named a domestic prelate by Pope Paul VI with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor.

In March, 1974 he became pastor of St. Ann's.

Due to the limited seating capacity of the Armory the committee has been unable to accommodate all who wished to pay their respects to Msgr. Scally on this occasion.

Francis Williams, president of St. Ann's Men's Club, has suggested those who were disappointed might drop around after dinner to say "hello".

Members of the committee, with Williams, are, John Greene, vice president; George Fandel, treasurer; Richard Duwan, secretary; John Guinan, Peter Scheele, Nicholas Fasano, Charles Ayers, Kenneth Runge, John Dunlea and Walter MacKerer.

THE LINCOLN-HANCOCK Community School symbolizes Community Education Week.

April 3, 1972 A Major Milestone

Community Education: A Fresh Approach

By HELEN E. JOHNSON

On April 3, 1972, after years of labor by community people, school administrators, and city officials, ground was broken for the Lincoln-Hancock Community School..

A fresh approach to education began for citizens of Quincy.

Looking back, the need for a new school was apparent, but why a community school? Only community people could determine where the neighborhood stood and where they wanted it to go. A task force of concerned citizens gathered, analyzed, and discussed data about their community, then submitted a proposal for a community school program to the Quincy School Committee. The community has since maintained the support of the Committee.

Central to the task force were parents of children who represented families of the phased-out Lincoln and John Hancock Schools. Schools both with long proud histories and traditions in the community. A new community school emerged as a way to consolidate and address the issues of Southwest Quincy.

The enterprising spirit of those determined citizens, some who were members of the task force and many who were not, prevails today in an environment that keeps the community active through learning. Our community people have shaped our community school.

WHAT IS COMMUNITY EDUCATION?

The notion of a neighborhood getting together to work on community based projects has long been a part of American life. Neighborhoods are the lifeblood of the city and the community school can add the heartbeat to community life by responding to the wants and needs of the neighborhood.

People need to learn skills to help them maneuver through changing social, economic and political currents, and to just have fun. Our community school is the vehicle for educational, recreational, cultural and social services and programs for the entire community.

Community education provides people the opportunity to work together for their neighborhood and for themselves. It allows for a personal touch in education while it:

- Involves all people in the community of all ages.
- Advocates the maximum use of all human, physical and financial resources of the community.
- Promotes life-long learning by encouraging all people of all ages to come to school.

For these reasons community education makes sense while it encourages the greatest return on the tax dollar. The increased use of school facilities cuts down on vandalism. It also serves as a community center and easily incorporates other publicly supported programs with those at the school. As declining school enrollments lean toward staff reduction, community education will increase the utilization of staff resources. In these ways the school's output will equalize its

A New Dimension

What Is A Community Council?

By RON IACOBUCCI

Citizen demands for involvement in the affairs of the school is not new to the 20th century.

Citizens have sought participation in the schools since the Graeco-Roman era. Indeed, lay involvement in the schools is as old as the schools themselves.

In Quincy, the concept of citizen participation in the school has taken a new dimension. Citizen participation doesn't stop at involvement in the affairs of the school, it continues through open school doors that allow citizens to determine the needs of the entire community and respond to those needs with cultural, educational and recreational programs and services provided at the school for all citizens. This concept is called community education and it is founded on the principle of citizen participation.

Community education means that the school facilities and personnel are available in the late afternoon and evening hours as well as at summer time, that school facilities are adapted to multiple use for persons of all ages; that the curriculum and many of the activities are developed from the continuous study of peoples basic needs; that the daytime, after school and summer programs for children, youth and adults are considered with equal importance; that school leadership is expanded and diffused throughout the community; and finally that a sense of unity and solidarity are developed in the neighborhood by the school.

In Quincy, the concept of citizen participation and community education are embodied in the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Council. The community school council is composed of twenty-one members elected at large by the community.

The community council is governed by rules and by-laws and meets monthly. The community councils program budget and staff are funded by tax dollars approved by the Quincy School Committee.

The community council serves as a forum for developing local leadership. Councillors deal with the community through a variety of channels; education and information, assistance to other clubs and organizations, council sponsored activities, and communication with social agencies.

The community council is responsible for determining the needs of the community and making decisions regarding cultural, educational and recreational programs and services. In addition, the community council's function is to serve in an advisory capacity to the Community School Coordinator, Principal and Quincy School Committee.

The principle which seems to be most vital for the successful involvement of people in community education is that of ownership. Citizens must understand that the programs and plans involved belong to them and not to the school or community coordinator.

With this realization people begin to invest energy and make a commitment. The cornerstone of the ownership principle is that all persons have a right to be involved in decisions which affect them and the belief that all people have the capacity for learning constructive skills for such participation.

Unfortunately, community involvement is a little like spinach. No one is against it in principle because its good for you. And like spinach, while we talk about the need for citizen involvement, few of us truly wish to partake of very large quantities.

However, the struggle to overcome community apathy through community education is essential because citizen participation and communication do much to establish confidence in the minds of the people that they can indeed solve cooperatively most of their community problems.

For community education to work successfully The Lincoln-Hancock Community School Council needs your support in program development and participation.

The community council believes that local people are always local experts when it comes to assessing community needs and designing community programs for the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Join us in restoring a sense of community.

Community Education: A Fresh Approach

increasing costs in the future.

THE PEOPLE

The most significant part in a community school is people. Through the active participation, support and involvement of individuals and families, community education comes alive. People become involved at all levels of the education process.

The Lincoln-Hancock Community Council provides people with direct input to their community school, giving residents the potential to affect change. The Council is an elected body of 18 neighborhood residents responsible for assessing the needs and interests of the community and planning programs to meet those needs. They work to establish goals and priorities and stimulate participation and involvement. This group represents parents, senior citizens, school and agency people.

The Community School Coordinator serves as the facilitator by bringing resources to the community's attention, by encouraging cooperation and responsibility, and also acts as a catalyst to foster actualization of goals in the community.

The Community School principal is primarily an overseer, stressing that education is not limited to the children enrolled during the day. Close cooperation with all agencies and institutions, formal and informal, can have a positive effect on all members of the community.

When people get involved, community education works. Members of the community come together to be both teachers and students in a variety of situations. Community members reap the benefits only through active involvement, only people make it flourish.

INTERAGENCY COOPERATION

The partnership with people and community resources is what makes community education exciting. Cooperation between agencies eliminates overlapping and duplication of programs. The school provides the site from which the agency can deliver their services to the community. The community school is a natural setting for programs especially those supported by tax dollars.

One of the goals of the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Council is to develop closer cooperative relationships between public and private agencies and the community school. In the past year the school has provided a delivery site for over 40 agencies and organizations. These programs attracted over 100,000 people to the Lincoln-Hancock.

The expanding role of the community school as an agent bringing services and programs to the neighborhood makes it a real catalyst for community growth and development.

WHAT'S OFFERED?

Social and Disco Dancing, Sign Language, Community Theatre and Fitness classes are but a few of the many offerings at the Community School for people of all ages. Programs have attempted to address the needs and interests of the community. The course developed by the Council are designed to augment those offered by other community agencies, creating a richer, more extensive community school program. A key resource is the Quincy Recreation Department, which runs an extensive recreational program in the pool and gymnasium. Also, the Norfolk County Extension Service offers an ongoing program of diet workshops and nutrition services.

And the Greater Quincy Chapter of the Red Cross conducts their safety courses on a continuing basis, including Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and Advanced Life Saving. These are only a few of the many self-learning opportunities offered through the school. Here the school and other city, state and national agencies come together under one roof for the community. The resources are available and abundant.

THE FACILITIES

The community school's facilities are unique to Quincy. They were designed to serve the community, to be available to all its citizens. Situated between Granite and Water Streets, the school is a visual enhancement to the Southwest area. The first floor entrance encourages access to the Charles Djerf Community Center, and includes these features:

- An AAU National competitive swimming pool with a gallery capacity of 300.
- A full size gymnasium which can be divided by an electronically retractable wall.
- Locker rooms equipped with showers and hair dryers.
- A 350 capacity cafeteria-auditorium with stage and dressing rooms.
- Two community meeting rooms.
- Music suite with vocal and instrumental practice rooms.
- Art and woodworking rooms.
- A recreation room and weight room.

From the start the Lincoln-Hancock Community School has been a story of people involved in their school and their community, and without whom the school would be unproductive.

The idea is certainly not a new one; community schools and community education are simple ideas with a significant potential. In Quincy, Community Education is still in the infant stage; community schools should be the center of neighborhood activity, as it was in days past.

It is the policy of the Quincy Public School Committee not to discriminate on the basis of sex, race, color, religion, or national origin in its education activities or employment practices as required by Title IX of the 1972 Federal Education Amendments and to provide equal educational opportunities for all students of the Quincy Public Schools as required by Chapter 622 of the Masssachusetts Equal Education Opportunity Act.

'Star Wars' popularity . . .

Boost for outer-space decorating ideas

By LIS KING

Great interest in decorating themes related to outer space has followed on the heels of the immense popularity of Star Wars.

Environmental Graphics, a young Minnesota company in the wall murals business, has been looking to outer space for inspiration long before Darth Vader and the robot team invaded the movie theaters. But David Nordahl, Environmental's chief designer, admits that the movie took the firm's space-type murals way beyond the ranks of professional decorators.

"Since Star Wars, our futuristic photo murals have become as popular as our nature graphics," says Nordahl. "And at first that was a surprise to us for our space murals are VERY sophisticated . . . But we've found that it's the adults, who loved the movie but wouldn't be caught dead in the subsequent poster/T-shirt craze, who are putting our space murals on their walls."

Among Environmental Graphics offerings for interplanetary armchair travelers is a photographic view of the old moon and trillions of twinkling stars to add drama to walls or ceiling.

"This mural is almost nine ft. high and over 20 ft. long," says Nordahl.

"But you don't HAVE to have a 20-ft. wall to put this dramatic graphic to work. It looks great wrapped around corners, too. And it's a fantastic idea for ceilings.

"OR you might paste the moon panels on one wall and then use the remaining star panels on the ceiling. See, it has 12 panels in all, and that gives terrific decorating versatility."

Another Environmental mural shows Mother Earth rising above the horizon of a cratered moonscape. Called "Earthrise," this stunning 8-panel mural received the interior decorating community's 1977 nomination for design excellence.

Nordahl recommends this graphic for den, office, family room or contemporary living room. He feels it's particularly effective with contemporary glass and chrome furnishings. He also likes the idea of contrasting scrumptious, comfortable seating with the bleak moonscape.

"Both of these murals also look particularly good in contemporary apartments," he says. "And that's why we've made them strippable. That means they peel right off the wall when it's time to move. So the landlord won't object."

And for those who don't want to devote an entire wall to their outer-space interests, there's a door mural featuring a space vehicle atop a sci-fi landscape, all ready for take-off. This spot mural is called "Eighty-Eight," in honor of the group of earthlings who've set 1988 as the target year for space colonization.

Space themes will increase in popularity for years to come, predicts Nordahl, who feels that decorating is directly related to sociological conditions.

"Traditionally, people become hopeful towards the turn of a century, and in the 20th century hope lies in space travel and colonization," he explains.

"Consequently, people will be looking for space-related home furnishing elements long after the Star Wars craze has subsided."

IT'S OUT OF THIS WORLD! Environmental Graphic's dramatic "Earthrise" wall mural, already enormously popular prior to "Star Wars," has become an all-time best-seller since the invasion of Darth Vader and the robot team.

New siding adds years to home life and beauty

That beautiful clapboard, brick or fieldstone home down the street that you've admired so often may not be clapboard, brick or fieldstone at all. It could be finished in any of a number of siding materials, made to resemble the real thing. And unless you examine it carefully and at close range, you'd never know the difference, says the National Home Improvement Council.

The installation of new siding can dress up a home as no other single improvement can. It can, depending on texture, pattern and color, make the home appear taller, wider, more rustic or modern. It protects the home and adds years to its life. And it certainly can cut upkeep costs and maintenance.

Among the siding materials currently available are:

Aluminum, which gives your home complete protection, even from electrical damage. Properly installed, it prevents moisture buildup, paint and wallpaper peel, plaster cracks and mildew.

Aluminum siding can be depended upon for years of low maintenance service and is available in a virtually unlimited selection of colors, styles and textures.

Vinyl, like aluminum, is impervious to weather, rot, mildew and termites. Surface mars and scratches don't show because the color is in the material and goes right through it.

Vinyl siding insulates against cold, heat and noise, won't support combustion and can't rot or peel. The rain washes it clean. Stubborn dirt can be removed by washing with a mild detergent.

Prefinished mineral fiber siding is made of cement, mineral fibers and wood, and retains the best characteristics of each. Like cement, it won't warp, burn or rot.

Like mineral fibers it won't split, or swell. And like wood, it can be sawed and shaped. If your home presently is finished in wood shingle or wood shake, this might be the siding for you.

Hardboard has a lasting appearance and is easily maintained. Many hardboard sidings come primed from the factory, while others are completely prefinished.

There are a wide range of architectural effects possible with horizontal lap siding, grooved, ribbed or striated vertical panels or plain panels for use with battens. The color possibilities are also varied and interesting.

Other siding materials include redwood, plywood, steel and a variety of specially treated paints.

But no matter what type of siding you select, remember that the installation is as important as the material. A qualified contractor is your best assurance of proper installation, done according to the manufacturer's recommendations.

It's always a good idea to consider insulating your walls when new siding is being applied. The cost of insulation can be reduced if it is done in conjunction with a siding job. Discuss it with your contractor.

Saving Energy With Solid State Dimmers

Using a dimmer on a light will save on electricity, unless you have a very old style dimmer. It's true that dimmers once saved little or no energy because they worked on a resistance principle, but the new solid-state dimmers commonly sold to homeowners are close to 100 percent efficient. Technically known as silicon control rectifiers, the solid-state dimmers work by knocking down the voltage so that little, if any, electricity is drawn beyond that needed for the fixture.

By using dimmers it is estimated that a fifty percent reduction in light might save twenty-five percent in power, so dimmers are worth considering as an energy saving device.

Dimmers work only with incandescent bulbs and will extend the life of the bulb since the bulb isn't burning at maximum capacity.

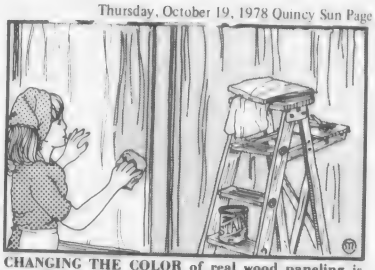
MORTGAGE MONEY AVAILABLE

Real wood for easy refinishing

Restoring and renovating old homes is a popular way to invest money and a favorite pastime for many people. Often, do-it-yourselfers are confronted by real wood paneling that is dull and worn from years of neglect. The National Paint and Coatings Association says amateur renovators need not panic; real wood paneling is easily refinished, just like wood furniture.

First, smooth the surface by sanding. This can be done by hand or with a power sander. Be sure to sand with the grain of the wood. Go over the surface using a coarse paper, then with a medium grade paper, and finally with a fine grade paper.

Now countersink any protruding nailheads, and fill holes and cracks with wood filler. Sand the filler flush to the rest of the surface by hand.



Then, dust thorough' , so that specks of dust will not show in the finish and mar its appearance.

If you want to change the color of the wood, use a stain or a bleach before applying the new finish. Try to buy the stain and the finish from the same manufacturer to ensure their compatibility.

Varnish and polyurethane are clear finishes which allow the wood grain and color to show through. They are easily applied with a paint brush and can withstand "wear and tear."

Oil finishes are another alternative. They give paneling a more natural appearance than varnishes because they are less glossy, but they are also less resistant to wear.

A varnish is applied in three simple steps: brush it on with a top quality brush, let it soak in and then wipe the paneling dry.

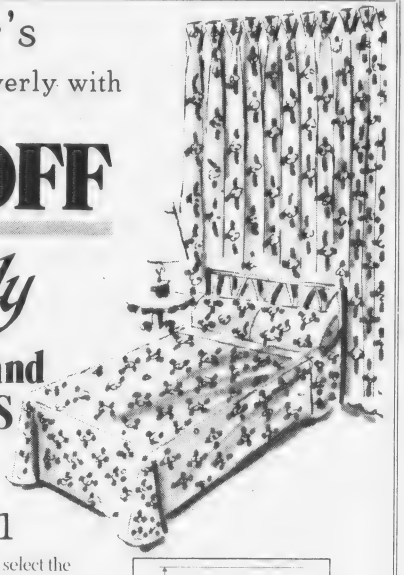
CHANGING THE COLOR of real wood paneling is easy! Use a stain before applying the new finish to darken or even out the color of your paneling. Rub the stain into the wood with a soft, lintless cloth, let it stand for a few minutes, then wipe off the excess.

How to calculate amount of insulation coverage needed

You know where you want to install insulation. You've decided what "R" number to select. Now, how much should you order to cover the job?

According to the Johns-Manville Insulation Center, to decide how much insulation you need to cover a ceiling, wall or floor, multiply the total area (without deducting for joists or studs) by .90 if framing members are 16" on center. If framing members are 24" on center, multiply by .94.

Here's a simple example: 1,000 square feet of ceiling area with joists spaced 16" on center requires 900 square feet of insulation (1,000 sq. ft. × .90 = 900 sq. ft.).



A roll of blanket insulation measuring 15" wide by 32' long provides 40 square feet of coverage. You need 23 rolls to complete the job.

Before you start to work, be sure to check building codes

If you plan to add a room to your home or convert an existing one, first familiarize yourself with your local building codes, says the National Home Improvement Council.

Building codes are on the books of virtually every town, city and country in the nation, but they vary widely from one municipality to another.

As a general rule, however, a building permit is required whenever structural work is involved or when the basic living area of a residence is to be altered.

For example, if you plan to partition off an unfinished area of your home and complete it as a room, you'd need a building permit in most localities. This is because you'd be changing an area in your home from storage to living space.

Code requirements and details respecting building permits are usually available at your town hall. You simply pay the required fee and assume responsibility for failure to file required permits.

BEAT THE HEAT

Take the heat out of the kitchen by installing an exhaust fan in a convenient window. It'll do double duty by helping to keep the rest of the house aired out.

For comfort and safety be careful around lit hearth

The fireplace exudes warmth in a very real sense, and is therefore a natural as an entertaining center. For centuries, families and their guests have gathered around the hearth of an evening, chatting and enjoying each other's company till bedtime.

Today, with the resurgence of interest in working fireplaces, all of this is possible once again. In city apartments, as well as comfortable country places, fireplaces that have been long bricked up are being opened and rendered usable, and fireplaces are being installed for the first time where none were before.

Of course, there are some rules to observe when using a fireplace, to ensure both the maximum in pleasure and the maximum in safety.

First, make sure the flue is open before lighting fire and, once open, that it is not blocked up in any way. If it is open and clear, you should be able to feel a draught coming down it. When you build your fire, direct your logs toward the flue to allow for easy escape of smoke.

Be sure to build your fire as far back in your fireplace as you can. Use twigs, if possible, to start your fire. If not, wadded up newspaper around your logs will work just as well.

To prevent sparks from flying into the room, make sure to set up a screen in front of the fire.

And make certain, if you intend to do any cooking over your fireplace, even roasting marshmallows, that you are using natural firewood, and not one of the chemically formed logs.

Then, sit back and enjoy yourself as a winter of warm and cozy nights stretches ahead.

Home energy use and the facts of insulation

Our homes consume about 25 percent of all energy used in the United States, or about one and one-half times more than all our cars consume.

More than half of all home energy is expended on heating and cooling.

Insulation prevents heat gain and heat loss several times more efficiently than building materials such as brick, concrete or wood.

Weatherstripping and storm windows are efficient, easily-installed energy savers.

Attic insulation can save an average of 20 percent on winter fuel bills, and even more in the summer, according to industry experts.

Insulated homes have a higher resale value than similar, uninsulated homes, say real estate people.

Some experts put the percentage of under-insulated American homes as high as 80 percent. How do you know if your home is adequately insulated?

Check the following:

Is there any insulation between your attic floor joists or rafters?

Measure the thickness of existing insulation throughout your home. If you don't know its "R" value—resistance to heat flow—and it is less than R-13, chances are you need additional insulation.

Attic ventilation to permit air circulation is extremely important. There should be at least one square foot of louver venting for every 150 square feet of attic floor space.

In cold weather, place your hand at several places on an interior wall and compare its temperature to that of an exterior wall. If your home is adequately insulated, the exterior wall will feel only slightly cooler.

Feel for air drafts around cabinets on outside walls and around baseboards.

Check for insulation over unheated crawl spaces, garage or basement.

WINTER SAFETY CHECK

Fire is one of the greatest hazards during cold months, warns the Mass. FAIR Plan. As people spend more time indoors, increased use of electrical and heating systems puts extra strain on power sources. Check out furnaces, fireplaces, heaters and appliances before winter sets in.

HOME FIRE ALARMS

There is nothing new in having fire warning systems in the home, reports the Mass. FAIR Plan. The Chinese placed firecrackers in the walls of their homes before America was discovered. Early pioneers used bullets in the same fashion. Modern smoke detectors can do a more efficient job.

KEEP GAS OUT OF CELLAR

The Mass. FAIR Plan says one two-gallon can of gasoline has an explosive power equal to 28 sticks of dynamite. Yet many householders keep such a hazard in their basement. Keep gasoline and other flammable liquids away from your property.

Tool box for all occasions

Every home should have a tool chest, and a few basic items to fill it. You never know when an emergency might occur, and it's best to be prepared beforehand.

Therefore, make sure to have, in a spot where it can be reached with ease, a box containing the following: hammer, pliers, screwdrivers (small, medium and large), a selection of various sized nails and screws, some wall anchors, strong tape, a pair of scissors, glue, wrench, a pencil, ruler, tape measure and of course, anything your particular environment demands.

Be careful with your tools, cleaning them thoroughly after each use, and making sure they are perfectly dry before replacing them, in order to prevent rusting.

ALUMINUM STORM WINDOWS can reduce heat loss through the windows as much as 40 per cent because they create an insulating air space. Worker tightens screws on frames which have multiple tracks to make both storm sash and screens self-storing. Photo courtesy: the Aluminum Association.

Storm windows will slash fuel bills and add comfort

Another cold winter is predicted and fuel prices may soar again, so it's time to consider energy-saving measures.

One of the most practical is to install aluminum-framed storm windows and doors, because they reduce heating loss through the windows by as much as 40 percent and add to your comfort.

According to the National Bureau of Standards, old unprotected windows and doors can be the single biggest cause of energy loss in our homes. Together they account for 70 percent of the heating loss.

Room heat works its way out through the glass and cold air leaks in around the frames, causing drafts.

A storm window is designed to provide a second window over the original glass and its low-maintenance aluminum frame helps reduce air leakage around the perimeter of the prime window.

To be most effective, there should be an air space of one inch or more between the two windows because it is this air space that acts as insulation.

The window should fit snugly, but not too snugly, so that there is sufficient allowance for "breathing" to the outside to reduce condensation on the window panes and sill.

Today's most popular type of storm window is the "triple track" aluminum-framed window with self-storing screens which slide easily into place in the spring.

Storms come in mill, anodized and painted finishes or can be painted to match any decor.

Standard shapes and sizes fit a wide variety of windows including double-hung, two and three-lite sliders, single, double and triple horizontal and vertical picture windows, and even patio doors. They can be custom-cut where necessary.

Before you add storm windows, be sure your prime windows are in good condition. If not, repair them by caulking or weatherstripping or consider new aluminum replacement windows.

Shop around for storm sash before you buy and compare the quality of the various windows available. The joints should be neat and strong, and the heavier the frame and general construction, the stronger and more durable the window.

The best windows have thick weatherstripping and glass that weighs at least 18 ounces per square foot.

Installing storm windows can prove to be an economical investment that may pay for itself within three to six years.

In a home in Detroit, for instance, which has a 6200 degree day climate, a family heating with oil at 49¢ a gallon could save approximately $105 a year by adding storms. If they use electricity they could save considerably more; with gas somewhat less.

FIRE "EARLY WARNING" SYSTEMS

Many fire deaths are caused by toxic gases seeping into bedrooms from a fire smoldering in the home's living quarters, reports the Mass. FAIR Plan. Moderately-priced smoke detectors installed in your home can be a safeguard against tragedy.

North Scares But Bows To Brookline

The North Quincy boys' soccer team, handicapped by a lack of depth, continues to play excellent ball, but lost to three of the top Suburban League teams during the past week.

Paul Bregoli's Raiders lost, 5-3, but gave powerful Brookline a scare, taking an early lead in a goal by Tom Gerry with John Sullivan assisting. After Brookline had tied it up with 10 seconds left in the first period, Dave Donovan out-hustled Brookline's goalie to a loose ball chipped in by Bill Harrow and lofted a 20-yard shot into the empty net.

But that was all the North scoring until a fourth period goal by Chris Sullivan on a penalty shot. Except for a one minute span in both the first and second period North dominated the play.

Bregoli singled out Tom Reney, Joe Flynn, Mark Will, Greg Madden and goalie Rick Forrest for their performances.

The Raiders lost to Waltham, 4-0, but played the league leaders on even terms for most of the first half. North goalie Arunas Kleinas kept his team in the game with several outstanding saves.

Martin Koch, Ron Holland, Jon Badger, Chris Sullivan and Harrow were outstanding in a losing cause.

North also jumped off to a quick 1-0 lead over Newton North's second place team Monday but dropped a 5-2 decision. The Raiders' goalie, Kleinas, was kicked in the head making a save and had to be replaced and three other key players, Madden, Will and Flynn also were injured, leaving the game. Mark Alcott did a fine job replacing Madden. These injuries hurt as Bregoli had to switch players around due to a lack of substitutes and several played out of position.

Donovan scored the early North goal with Harrow assisting. Gerry got credit for the second goal on which a Newton fullback accidentally kicked the ball by his own goalie. Reney played his best game of the year and Flynn, Holland and Will all stood out.

"These kids are great and haven't quit in any game this year despite our lack of depth," Bregoli said. "They all have given me 125 percent but are frustrated with the results. It is difficult to take consolation in playing well but continue losing, but this team has a lot of guts and has great North Quincy pride. They are all good sports and never alibi and always congratulate the opposition on their wins. We continue to improve and if we get even a couple of breaks we will win some games before the season ends."

Quincy Blanked By Weymouth North

The Quincy Soccer team continues to have its troubles as it dropped a 4-0 decision to Weymouth North last week. Goalie Bill Concannon turned in another fine performance for the Presidents, who have yet to win.

The North Quincy girls turned in a fine effort to tie Waltham, 1-1, on Jeanne Burke's goal. Denise Chase had an assist.

The Raiderettes bowed to a strong Brookline team, 4-0, despite outstanding games by goalie Cheryl Ayles and defenseman Lauren Apollo.

The Quincy and North boys faced each other yesterday (Wednesday). The Raiders earlier topped the Presidents for their only win.

Friday the Quincy boys will host Newton and Tuesday it will be Waltham at Quincy and North Quincy at Weymouth South. The Quincy girls play at Newton Friday and Tuesday will go to Waltham while the North girls host Weymouth South.

Apaches, Elks In 12-12 Standoff

The North Division leading North Quincy Apaches and the South leaders, West Quincy Elks, played to a 12-12 standoff in Quincy Youth Football League action Sunday at Merrymount Park.

Mike Cullen scored both Apache touchdowns and Kevin Riggs and Mark Righini had the Elks' touchdowns.

In other league games the Quincy Point Panthers topped St. Gregory Raiders, 14-8, and the Squantum Sailors defeated the Houghs Neck Manets, 14-0, for their first win.

Sunday the Apaches will face the Sailors at Merrymount, the Panthers will face the Manets and the Elks will take on the Raiders at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Raiders Host Tough, Undefeated Waltham

By TOM SULLIVAN

A remarkable showing by North Quincy's defense went for naught last week and Raider coach Dave Burke is hoping for a better offensive performance Saturday when North hosts undefeated Waltham in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Waltham has one of the outstanding teams in Eastern Mass. and among its four straight wins was a 27-6 decision two weeks ago over Quincy.

The Raiders dropped a heartbreaking 8-6 decision to previously winless Weymouth North last Sunday at the stadium in a game rained out Saturday. The winning touchdown late in the game came on a highly controversial play on which the official missed an apparent pass interference on Weymouth's Larry Crowey, whose catch of Evans' pass was allowed.

It appeared to just about everyone in the stadium that Crowey shoved off the North defender before catching the pass but the protests of the North Quincy coaches went unheeded.

Particularly incensed was Ken McPhee, one of the defensive coaches. "That was just plain incompetence, everyone saw him shove our player, it was the worst 'non-call' I ever saw," he said.

The Raiders came right back and came within inches of winning it but a desperation tackle by Tim Leahy caught Tom Quinn from behind on Weymouth's 13 on a pass-lateral play that covered 74 yards. But a North fumble ruined the chance and gave Weymouth its first win.

North's attack was pretty well bottled up by a stubborn Weymouth defense and it was the Raiders' brilliant defense which enabled the team to lead until the final minutes.

In the third period North's Pat Ennis had to kick into a stiff wind and his short punts kept North deep in its own territory. Once Weymouth had a first down on the five, but the Raiders held and took over on the one.

Just before the winning touchdown North had held inside its 15 and several other times it held deep in its own territory.

"The defense was fantastic and, although every one of them was outstanding, I'd like to single out Eddie Miller, who was playing in his first game and did a tremendous job at tackle," said defensive coach Jack Raymer.

Weymouth's defense was also excellent and the only North runner to gain consistently was Quinn, who rushed for 66 yards in addition to his long run on the end of the thrilling pass-lateral play.

North actually lost the game on two punt situations in the final period.

After the Raiders had held on their one-yard line and still going against the stiff wind, Burke called for an intentional safety on the final play of the third period in order to have North going with the wind.

However, after Joe Cremins' free kick, North held on its 27 but Ennis was unable to handle the pass from center on a punt situation and Weymouth had the ball on the Raider 15. Ennis halted the threat with a pass interception in the end zone, the second for North (Brian Hewitt earlier had intercepted in the end zone). On the next punt situation Cremins was rushed and got off only a 10-yard punt which Gerry Cody returned to the 15 and then came the highly disputed winning touchdown pass.

"We couldn't get untracked offensively," Burke said, "but our defense was superb. This Weymouth team isn't as bad as it's record indicates and I think they'll win some more games. On their winning pass it certainly did look like their receiver pushed our boy, but what can you do?"

North Quincy drove 65 yards the first time it had the ball with a 22-yard run by Quinn, a 14-yard pass from Kevin Corbin to Jim Holleran and a 15-yard penalty against Weymouth paving the way. John Conley scored from the two but a pass for the points was no good.

This was the first touchdown this year in which Quinn didn't have a hand, although help set it up with runs of 22, nine and two yards.

Cobban ran out of the end zone on the intentional safety at the end of the third period.

"I thought it would be a good call because we would have the wind with us, but it just backfired," said a dejected Burke.

On the electrifying pass-lateral which nearly pulled the game out of the fire, North was on its 13 with fourth and 19. Cobban passed to Dan McIntyre, who lateraled to Quinn. Quinn took the ball on about his 25 and looked to be off to the races until stopped by Leahy's desperation tackle.

Quarterback Evans was the outstanding player on offense for Weymouth with some fine running and passing.

Presidents To Make Changes For Malden

There will be some changes in the Quincy lineup Saturday when the Presidents try to stop a two-game skid at Malden where they face the Golden Tornado in a 1:30 p.m. non-league game.

Although the teams are now in different leagues, Malden is an old Quincy foe, the schools having met for several years in the Greater Boston League. Malden is still in that league while Quincy is in the Suburban League.

Quincy dropped its second in a row last week at Newton when the host Tigers thumped the Presidents, 21-0, in a game played under atrocious conditions.

"We didn't want to play in the rain but Newton's field was being used Sunday for a parochial school game so we had to play it," Quincy coach Tom Fitzgerald said. "The field was in terrible shape and the only thing the game did for us was give a lot of the players colds."

Quincy faced the strong Tigers at a decided disadvantage. Starting quarterback Dave Austin was sidelined as the result of an injury suffered in practice and Fitzgerald was forced to go with a young sophomore, Pettinelli, playing in his first game.

"Austin injured his shoulder on Wednesday and it didn't give us much chance to work with Pettinelli," Fitzie said. "The kid did a good job in his first game, but we really missed Austin. I hope he will be back for the Malden game. Young Pettinelli handed the ball off well and we had no fumbles on handoffs. He is going to be a good player."

The Quincy coach, who saw his team drop to 2-3, was unhappy with the offensive line and it is here he plans several changes. "They just haven't been opening up the holes and we'll have some new boys in there this week," he said.

Quincy moved the ball well at Newton but bogged down inside the Tigers' 20. The game ended with Quincy in possession on Newton's five-yard line.

Two of Newton's touchdowns came on passes and its second score came after the Tigers' Eric DeMartino recovered a fumbled punt on the Presidents' 20.

Tom Brennan ran well for Quincy and Vin Harte, returning after missing two games, and Russ DiPietro played well in the line.

Fitzgerald had good words for Ralph Pickering, Harte and Jeff Giordani on defense.

Newton opened the scoring early on a 43-yard pass from Charlie Slack. Gary Frechette, one of the top runners in the Suburban League, scored the second from the 11 after the fumble recovery later in the opening period and another pass from Slack for 16 yards accounted for the last touchdown in the final period.

ENC Women's Volleyball Team Record At 3-3

The Eastern Nazarene College women's volleyball team evened its record at 3-3 last Saturday by defeating Williams and MIT and losing to Smith.

ENC defeated Williams, 15-10, 15-11, and easily defeated MIT, 15-7, 15-8. The Crusaderettes topped Smith, 15-12, in the first game but lost the next two, 15-10, 15-10.

Saturday the ENC women will host Southeastern Mass. and Rhode Island College at its Lahue Center.

The ENC Women's tennis team lost to Emmanuel and three Crusaderettes competed in the Bonne Bell Marathon Monday in Boston.

Representing ENC were Diane Mattmueller and Connie Underwood, members of the cross country team, and Laurie Weir, one of 1700 running in competition for the first time.

Underwood was the first ENC finisher, doing 48:17. Mattmueller finished in 56 minutes and Weir, posted a 59-minute time running the six-mile distance for the first time.

Seamans Wins 50-Mile AAU Masters' Division Road Race

By TOM HENSHAW

Bob Seamans' late-flowering athletic career has peaked at the age of 49.

Seamans, who lives at 20 Moreland Rd., Merrymount, recently won the Masters' (over 40) Division of the New England AAU 50-mile road race in six hours, 54 minutes, 11 seconds.

"That's eight minutes faster than last year, so it has to be my best effort ever," said Seamans, who has now run the course, 20 laps around Fresh Pond, Cambridge, on two occasions.

Seamans, the head of a Boston advertising firm, started running long distance road races about 18 years for health reasons but with the famed Boston Marathon in the back of his mind.

He has run Boston's Patriots Day classic a dozen times and has never failed to finish. His best time: Three hours, 10 minutes. His best finish: "Call it 666th," he says.

In all, he has run more than 40 true marathons, 26 miles, 385 yards.

"I run to keep in condition."

BOB SEAMANS

said Seamans. "If you're in better health you can work better and provide a living for your family."

The Seamans family totals seven kids, one of whom, Jennifer, 17, shows signs of following in her father's footprints as a runner.

The high point of the year for the Seamans family comes on the third Sunday in June, when Dad piles as many youngsters as possible in the car and heads for the footrace up Mount Washington in New Hampshire.

He has run the eight-mile course up the Mount Washington auto road 12 times, more than any other roadracer. The event has been held only 16 times.

While the other runners come down the mountain in cars, Seamans has taken to running down also, sometimes taking one of his boys with him.

"I like to view the White Mountains scenery coming down," he said. "You can't enjoy it while you're running up."

Seamans, the veteran road runner, has a word of caution for those who have recently taken up jogging.

"Stay out of the streets," he said. "It's dangerous. There is plenty of sidewalk to run on. The streets are for cars."

Boosters Club To See North-Weymouth N. Films

Films of last Sunday's game with Weymouth North will be shown at Friday Night's weekly meeting of the North Quincy Football Boosters Club at 7:30 at the high school.

Final plans will be made for the Monte Carlo Night Friday, Oct. 27 at the K. of C. Hall. Bill Ennis is chairman of this event.

President Bill McIntyre announces plans are complete for the yard sale to be held the following day in front of the high school. Articles can be brought to Room 119 on Friday, the 27th from 3 to 9 p.m.

10-Mile Braintree Road Race Sunday

Quincy Panthers Defeat Randolph, 7-5

The Quincy Panthers, this year's most improved team in the South Shore Hockey League, defeated the Randolph Shamrocks, 7-5, last Sunday.

Quincy finished last in the league last year and Randolph nearly won the division.

Quincy Coach Dave Mullen, who said he had to make changes in order to be a contender this year, added Danny Imperato, the league's top scorer, goalie Jim Tennant and Scott Gosselin, all from Quincy, and a few other new players.

Many thought the Panthers' earlier win over the Quincy Flyers who won the South Shore Division last year, was a fluke, but Sunday they proved they will be a contender.

The win boosted the Panthers into a three-way for the division lead with Bridgewater and the Flyers.

SHYO Skates To 6-2 Win Over S.S. Panthers

The Sacred Heart Youth Organization hockey team, coached by Fr. Thomas Garrett, skated its way to a 6-2 win over the South Shore Panthers last week.

Having formerly skated in high school leagues, the team has joined with several other South Shore teams in a Class B league.

Goalie Ron Beresniewicz gave up only two goals in the first period. Jim Sayers scored an unassisted goal for Sacred Heart in the first period and Sacred Heart exploded for four goals in the second period. Steve Genetti scored two and Tim Murphy and Brian Bertoni one each. Mark Sayers and Steve Ryan had assists. In the final period Murphy scored again.

The Sacred Heart players are Gary Kearney, Bill Bent, Paul Hurpey, Beresniewicz, Mark Sayers, Paul McDonald, Richard Ryan, Michael Halloran, Paul Healy, Jim Sayers, Steve Ryan, Tom Nee, Bill Joyce, Keith Blaney, Dan Flynn, Genetti, Bertoni and Murphy.

Fr. Garrett said there are two openings for older players up to age 24 and he can be contacted at the Sacred Heart Rectory.

All games are played at the Rockland South Shore Sports Center.

CHOLESTEROL COUNTDOWN

Today, numerous studies link coronary disease to the excessive intake of fat. Symptoms of a higher cholesterol count can be controlled as well as prevented through diet, doctors say.

High levels of cholesterol, a type of fat found in a number of foods, including meat fats, egg yolks, salad oils, whole milk and yellow cheese is often held responsible for arteriosclerosis [accumulations of fat deposits that clog arteries and can lead to heart attacks].

A typical American diet, according to doctors, still contains at least 10-15% more of its calories in fat than it should. If you want to avoid it through a more sensible diet, you should turn to foods that are lower in cholesterol, doctors advise. This means eating less fatty meats, concentrating on the leaner, non-marbled cuts and choosing more poultry and fish.

A number of substitutes for cholesterol-adding foods are available today. Among these are yolk-free products of egg white, and corn oil, margerine as an alternative to butter, and non-fat dry milk, skim or low-fat milk as substitutes for whole milk.

COMPARATIVE TAXATION

Your house is for sale. The location is great; the price is right; and the community is desirable. But prospects keep turning it down because they claim the tax rate is too high. How do you meet this objection?

It just may be that the taxes in your town are actually lower per dollar value than neighboring, less desirable communities. Remember, taxes are not determined by tax rate alone. They're also determined by the valuation practices of the local assessors. In some areas, homes may be assessed at only 25% of true value. In other areas, it may run 50% or 70%. So you must take both the tax rate and the local valuation practice into consideration. Don't be misled by an apparently low tax rate.

This is one of the reasons why it pays to sell your house through President Real Estate. It's our business to be familiar with this vital information. We are expert negotiators and have the facts to back up our claims.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

7 Promotions First Step

Propose 'Ward Gangs' To Fight Snow, Litter

By TOM HENSHAW

The city plans a return to the old concept of the "ward gang" in an effort to keep up with burgeoning requests for public works services such as cleaning up litter and making repairs to potholes and sidewalks.

Public Works Commissioner James J. [Pete] Ricciuti has proposed the creation of such gangs, made up of a foreman and four or five men, to be permanently assigned to each of the city's six wards on a year round basis.

In times of a snow emergency, like last February's great storm that paralyzed the city for a week, the ward gang could perform invaluable service in opening up the streets through its intimate knowledge of the area.

The first move in putting together the gangs would be the promotion of seven men in the department to the posts of foremen at a cost to the city of less than $18,000 in new salary classifications. There would be no new hiring right now.

"There used to be ward gangs until about 20 years ago," said Ricciuti. "Those were the days when the Highway Department took care of the rubbish and garbage pickups and a lot of other little chores.

"The ward gang in West Quincy, for instance, used to be stationed in the West Quincy Fire Station. Their tools were kept there; they'd report there in the morning, the foreman would read them in and take their time.

"Then machinery came in, like street sweepers, and someone made a decision that we didn't need ward gangs any more. They forgot that the more sophisticated the machine the more problems you have with breakdowns."

Ricciuti said his department has five street sweepers but rarely are they all out at once, due to breakdowns or vacations for qualified drivers.

"The reason our city is clean today is that we've gone back to the 1890's and resorted to little push carts, brooms and shoyels to sweep up the streets," he said.

"Parked cars keep the mechanical street sweepers from getting in to the curbs. We have to sweep the sidewalks by hand because the machines won't go

Board Denies License For Proposed West Quincy Restaurant

The Quincy License Board Tuesday denied application of a proposed restaurant at 184 Willard St., West Quincy, for a common victualer-all alcoholic license on the grounds the application had been "improperly filled out".

Nicholas V. Trifone and his son, Nicholas V. Trifone, III, sought the license to operate a restaurant to be known as La Vinia. The request met with strong opposition when first brought before the board a week ago.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the board, said the board had received a letter containing information not included in the application. Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Police Chief Francis Finn told the applicant that in view of the information the board had no alternative but to deny the license.

Atty. James Castleman, representing Trifone, after conferring with his client, told the commission:

"My client has never had a liquor conviction anywhere in the United States. We will provide documentation."

Castleman then said the board's decision will be appealed to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

Gillis demurred when Castleman asked to see the letter. The attorney pointed out it had been introduced into the record as part of a public hearing.

The board chairman said the letter will be made available, but cautioned the attorney "it might involve personalities."

It was learned later that the letter made reference to the 30-day suspension of the license of a Holbrook establishment 10 years ago. Trifone contends the suspension was overturned.

Gillis said the letter will be sent to the ABC.

Residents of the area were joined by Rev. John McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's Church and City Councillor James Sheets, in objection to issuance of a license when the matter came before the board a week ago.

Volunteer Students Clean Up

$10,000 Vandalism At Atlantic Junior Draws School Committee's Ire

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy School Committee expressed disbelief when informed that there are no laws making parents responsible for acts of vandalism committed by their minor children.

The question came up during a discussion at last week's meeting at which School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon spoke about $10,000 worth of damage recently caused at Atlantic Junior High School.

Dr. Creedon said nothing was stolen but considerable damage was done to files and records. The walls and blackboards were defaced with grafitti .

A volunteer group of 20 students has cleaned up the damage.

Dr. Creedon said he had asked Carmen Mariano, a research assistant, to look into the statutes regarding vandalism.

He informed the committee that "No statute exists relative to holding parents accountable for vandalism done by minor children."

He said the law holds no person is subject to criminal action on behalf of another and this includes parents being held accountable for the actions of children.

"I can't believe it. I cannot believe it," Committeewoman Joan Picard said, visibly upset. "I cannot possibly imagine that two or three kids can go in and do $10,000 worth of damage and nothing can be done about it.

She asked the superintendent if legislation could not be sought to correct the situation. Creedon said he doubted if such legislation would get very far since it is seemingly in conflict with the U.S. Constitution.

Committeeman Christopher Kennedy said that recent legislation has been passed to compensate victims of a crime and that vandalism might be placed in that category.

Mariano mentioned the "Earn-It" program at Quincy District Court. Under this program the court can have an offender take a job and earn money to pay the person they have victimized.

Brownell Urges MDC Speed Traps On QSD

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has urged "an immediate and persistent patrol and supervision" of Quincy Shore Drive between Furnace Brook Parkway and Sea St. as a safety measure.

Brownell told MDC Commissioner John Snedeker in a letter that "a frequent and regular speed trap in the area would be helpful" in the late afternoon and between 12 midnight and 2 a.m.

"A week hardly goes by without some serious accident accurring at this location," he said. "Recently, a car crashed through the sun porch of a home. It is extremely fortunate that no one was on the porch at the time."

House Of Pancakes Given 2 A.M. Closing Trial Period

The International House of Pancakes, 111 Washington St., Quincy, has been granted a temporary permit to remain open until 2 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays until Jan. 1.

The Quincy License Board issued the permit for a trial period and said continuance would depend on the noise and the general conduct of patrons.

Paul M. Morrison, holder of the restaurant franchise, told the board that he paid $19,000 annually in taxes to the city and needed the extended hours. He said that church groups and bowling leagues often arrive to find the restaurant closed.

Morrison also pointed out that International Pancake House has 35 units in this state and the Quincy one is the only one in the chain which closes at midnight.

Board members commended Morrison for the changes he has made at the restaurant since taking over early last spring.

Common Cause Questionaire Shows:

Brownell, Cerasoli, Morrissey Think Alike On Reform

Members of the Quincy legislative delegation who are running for re-election think remarkably alike when it comes to matters of governmental and election reform.

Reps. Robert A. Cerasoli, Thomas F. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey, all Democrats, differed very little in their responses to a questionnaire put to them by Common Cause.

All three gave an unqualified "yes" to the following proposals:

- A sunset law that would require periodic termination of state regulartory boards to assure that they are continued only after a full evaluation.
- Representation by one less than a majority on state regulatory boards of people who have no direct interest in the matters that come before the boards.
- Legislation that would require full state funding of all state-mandated local programs.
- A change in the House rules to require that all bills reported out of committees include a recorded roll call of each member's vote.
- Radio and television broadcasting of floor proceedings of the House on a regular basis.
- A prohibition of conversion of campaign funds to the personal use of the candidate.

Morrissey indicated his approval of a proposal to establish an independent non-partisan reapportionment commission for Massachusetts while Brownell didn't like the idea and Cerasoli was undecided.

All three said they would vote for a public financing bill that would permit taxpayers to allocate a dollar of their tax liability to an election fund.

But Morrissey answered "no response" to a proposal that a mixed system of small private contributions matched by public funds be used to finance campaigns.

Both Cerasoli and Morrissey said they were undecided on plans to cut the powers of the speaker of the house and make legislative rules more democratic.

Brownell said he favors election of the speaker and the chairmen of the various House committees by secret ballot in party caucus.

But he does not favor the election of the majority leader, the minority leader and the assistant minority leader in the same manner.

The Quincy Building Department during September issued 109 permits for work to cost an estimated $383,168 according to Allan F. MacDonald, building inspector.

In the same month a year ago 93 permits were issued for working costing an estimated $739,-258.

One permit was granted for construction of a mercantile building to cost an estimated $40,000. Permits were also issued for 65 residential alterations at a cost of $155,103 and 16 for other alterations costing $137,000.

The department issued permits for six removals at a cost of $15,-500 and 12 sign permits for work at an estimated $7,215. Nine permits for miscellaneous work were granted. That work will cost an estimated $28,350.

All interested parties are urged to attend this hearing which is sponsored by the Department of Planning and Community Development.

Criticizes Massport, FAA

Hatch Supports CAAN In Battle Over Jet Noise

Rep. Francis W. Hatch Jr., the Republican candidate for governor, announced his support for Quincy's Committee Against Airport Noise (CAAN) in its flight with Massport.

His administration, said Hatch in a letter to CAAN Chairman Bernice Mader "is strongly committed to working with community groups as the FAA prepares its environmental statement this winter and next spring."

"We will be strongly advocating a flight pattern which maximizes an overwater alignment in contrast to the present pattern over Quincy," said Hatch, whose home in Beverly is out of Logan Airport's patterns.

"I support your contention that neither Massport nor the FAA has done an adequate job in involving citizens in the decision-making concerning noise from aircraft flight patterns.

"I pledge to you that, under my administration, I would instruct the Massport management to confer with citizen groups before flight patterns are changed, not after."

Hatch noted that his opponent, Democrat Edward J. King, is a former director of Massport whose "priorities were elsewhere" when it came to working with community groups on issues such as noise.

"For example," he said, "Mr. King has continuously advocated bringing the Concord SST (supersonic transport) to Logan Airport. Think what that would to to your noise levels over the South Shore."

Hearing Oct. 31 On LeDisco 2 A.M. Closing, Game Room Permit

The Quincy Licensing Board will hold a continued hearing Tuesday, Oct. 31, on the request of Le Disco, 79 Parkingway, for a 2 a.m. closing license and a game room permit.

The board previously granted the proposed discotheque an all alcoholic license. Action on the late closing and the game-room was held up until the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission approved the license.

The hearing was placed on the agenda after the board received a letter from City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., voicing objection to the issuance of the permits.

"During the past few weeks, I have been meeting with members of St. John's parish and the executive boards of the Presidents and Cranch Hill Association," Lydon wrote, "and they are unanimous in opposing a facility of this nature so near the community.

"I feel that a game-room license in a downtown area is only the start for other types of entertainment in our downtown stores."

The hearing will be held in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

Sheets Plans Survey On MBTA Walkway

City Councillor James A. Sheets says he plans to conduct a survey of residents who live near the new South Quincy MBTA Station to determine their feelings on a pedestrian walkway from Independence Ave.

Original plans for the station called for such a walkway but it was eliminated after nearly 200 residents protested at a meeting July 13, 1977.

Sheets said recent meetings with Braintree residents have revived interest in the walkway and he wants to determine if the views of the Quincy residents have changed.

Quincy LWV Told:

Decent Home For Every American Goal Of Block Program

"A decent home in a suitable environment for every American is the goal of the Federal Communits Block Grant Program," Gerald Marquis of the Quincy Planning Department told members of the League of Women Voters of Quincy at their first discussion meeting of the 1978-79 season.

Marquis recounted the history of the program which has brought more than $1 million to Quincy each year since it began in 1974. Following federal guidelines, grants have been targeted to Houghs Neck, Southwest Quincy, and in smaller amounts to Atlantic, largely for housing rehabilitation, but also for public works and related social service.

"The public is invited to hear a progress report Oct. 31 at 8 p.m. at City Hall," said Marquis.

In December, the Planning Department will hold meetings to give the public an opportunity to suggest projects and inform the Department of needs that should be met in the next fiscal year.

League members and guests were welcomed by Mary Flavin, President. Marion Marsh described the Quincy LWV's cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Quincy Junior College Women's Center in sponsorship of a "Women in Government" Conference to be held at the Lincoln Hancock School Saturday, Oct. 28 and accepted pre-registration for workshops.

Nearly 35,000 commended students throughout the United States represent the top five percent of more than one million participants in the merit program.

Stay Alive!

THE PALGUE IS BACK

It must seem ridiculous today to worry about the Black Plague - the dreadful bacterial disease that in a single year in the 1600's slaughtered more than 1/4 of the population of Europe.

Yet the Bubonic Plague is at work especially in the summer in many parts of the United States. Last year, more than 90 cases were identified - many died. More cases are expected.

The carrier of the disease is a simple flea that infests squirrels, chipmunks, and other wild woodland rodents, and can hop off them onto you.

For those who are in the outdoor woodlands in the summer, don't fool with wild creatures. Don't seek to feed them by hand. Don't go anywhere near them especially if they seem docile or sick.

If you do touch one and then feel suddenly ill after an outing, see a doctor fast. Bubonic Plague strikes rarely these days - but it strikes swiftly and its deadly.

$10 Million List To Be Released Soon

$50 Million Waiting To Be Returned To Owners, Estimates Crane

By TOM HENSHAW

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane figures that there is another $50 million in forgotten money laying around in corporate vaults in the state waiting to be found and returned to its proper owners.

Very shortly, he said, his office will release a list of names of people who are entitled to some $10 million in lost money.

There are those, of course, who view it as something more than fortuitous that the list should become available just before the November election, just as earlier lists were made public during Crane's primary campaign.

"It's part of our job," said Crane, who has been treasurer for 14 years and wants to keep the job. "The only ones who are complaining are our opponents who wish they could be doing the same thing."

Crane, on a campaign visit to The Quincy Sun, explained how the release of the money lists during his campaign for re-election was only a coincidence.

"The legislature only recently saw fit to give us an appropriation so we could hire people to work in the Abandoned Property Division," he said. "For the past few years they never appropriated any money.

"Now we have investigators and examiners that we can send out to the banks and insurance companies and large corporations to find this money and return it to the rightful owners.

"Right now we have about 25 people working there. Many of them are on loan from other parts of the treasury because we really haven't enough money to have all the people we need."

The lists of names that were released at one week intervals during the summer resulted in some $3 million being returned to people who had forgotten it or never knew it existed.

Crane singled out the Medford Mercury, the Lynn Item and The Quincy Sun for their prominent display of the lists that resulted in thousands of dollars winding up with rightful owners.

The money comes mostly from big companies that have written checks for people who never cashed them, never received them or never knew they were written. The money goes back to the company – until one of Crane's investigators finds it.

"For instance, Blue Cross-Blue Shield agreed to pay out $224,000 with another $224,000 coming next year," he said. "Blue Cross-Blue Shield had never filed an abandoned property claim prior to that."

The largest award so far, said Crane, was one for $13,000, but there is a much higher one, $43,000, coming out in a future batch of names.

"Tom Winship, the editor of the Globe, got $137 that he had forgotten for 20 years," said Crane. "One woman told us she only got $5 but she heard from three people she hadn't talked to in 10 years."

"We were just inundated with calls. We worked to 8 o'clock at night, Saturdays and Sundays. The summer help saved us. We had 48 of them this year and we couldn't have done it without them."

The procedure was to find your name on the list published in the newspaper, then call a number in the Treasurer's Office and see how much money you were entitled to.

"But people were calling us even if their names did not appear on the list," said Crane. "They'd say, 'Hi. Joe Brown in Holliston. Would you check and see if my name is on the list.' We had hundreds of those calls."

Crane, who is running for re-election, told The Sun he is best qualified because he has held the office for 14 years.

Three special anniversary events are planned by the committees of the parish.

Felice Pomranz of the New England Conservatory will present a half hour harp concert of early American selections on Sunday, Nov. 5, at 4 p.m. Louisa Catherine Adams, wife of John Quincy Adams, studied the harp.

A display of early stone cutters' tools that were used in the Quincy granite quarries will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 8, with Gordon Carr, an authority on the granite industry, explaining the Quincy quarries at 7:30 p.m.

The Wednesday program at the church will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m., a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m. and, following the lecture and display, Episode 10 of the Adams Chronicles will be shown.

The big celebration will take place Sunday, Nov. 12, at 10:45 a.m. in the main auditorium of the church, with the North Quincy High School Concert Chorus, under Maurice Carbonneau, providing the music.

A model of the building in its original form reflecting the classical colonial period of the 18th century will be presented to the church by John Hemphel.

Thomas Boylston Adams, a descendant of the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, will speak about Quincy 150 years ago.

Dr. Robert E. Senghas, vice president of the Unitarian Universalist Association, will bring congratulatory remarks from the denomination.

The Rev. Keith C. Munson, minister of the church, will read excerpts from the diary of Charles Francis Adams, written on the day of the dedication in 1828.

THE FIRST Sacred Heart Church at Hancock and Hunt Sts., was built in 1903. The parish is marking its diamond jubilee this year.

SACRED HEART CHURCH, North Quincy, is now a stately stone edifice which was completely rebuilt in 1948 after a disastrous fire.

Present, Former Priests To Participate

Cardinal Medeiros To Celebrate Sacred Heart Diamond Jubilee Mass

By PETER BARNICLE

Umberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston, will be the chief celebrant of a Mass of Thanksgiving at noon, Sunday, marking the diamond jubilee of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Designated con-celebrants are Rev. Cornelius Heery, pastor of the parish, and his associate pastors, Rev. Thomas J. Reilly, Rev. Robert Sullivan and Rev. James Hawker.

Rev. Thomas Garrett will direct the choir.

Other priests who formerly served in the parish have been invited to take part in the Mass. All priests and religious who grew up in the parish have also been requested to join in the service.

A collation will follow in the school auditorium.

The Mass is the climax of a series of events held over the past several months to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the founding of the parish.

The first Sacred Heart Church was built on the corner of Hancock and Hunt Sts. Rev. John P. Cuffe was the first pastor, 1903-1916.

Rev. Thomas Coughlan was named pastor in 1916 on the death of Fr. Cuffe. During his pastorate it was found the parish had outgrown its small wooden church and in 1919 land was purchased at Hancock and Glover Sts., for construction of a new church and rectory. Fr. Coughlan died before work was started on the new edifice.

He was succeeded by Rev. John J. Casey and in 1924 work was begun on the new church. Mass was celebrated in the basement a year later and in 1929 the old church was torn down and the land sold.

Mass in the upper church was first sung on Christmas Eve, 1933. At this time a summer mission was established in Squantum and Rev. Francis Murphy, a curate at Sacred Heart, was placed in charge. He became its first pastor when it became a separate parish in 1945.

Right Rev. Irving L. Gifford, D.D., became the fourth pastor of Sacred Heart, succeeding Fr. Casey in 1938.

During his years at the parish the Sodality and Holy Name Societies were formed. A number of social and cultural affairs were organized.

On Jan. 20, 1948 a fire destroyed the church. The parishioners set about immediately on the task of raising funds for a new church.

The new edifice in English Gothic was dedicated on Dec. 18, 1949. Six years later a rectory was constructed.

In Sept., 1961, the Sacred Heart School opened with 129 boys and girls in the first three grades. Sisters of St. Joseph staff the school.

Msgr. Gifford was 80 years old when he died March 20, 1967. Msgr. Richard J. Hawko, from neighboring Star of the Sea in Squantum was appointed pastor by Richard Cardinal Cushing.

Rev. Cornelius J. Heery came to the parish as its sixth pastor Jan. 9, 1976.

Matching Grant Approved

$14,000 Study For Wollaston Business Area

The Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council has given final approval to a matching grant for a $14,000 study of the Wollaston Business area.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath said the study, which will be conducted by Sasaki Associates, will address itself to parking problems, public works improvements and store-front upkeep.

Half the total cost will be paid by the county and the other half from a Community Development Block Grant appropriation.

The Norfolk County Council, said McGrath, "was impressed by the commitment on the city's part to fund part of the study as well as the city's record of following through on implementation.

"In North Quincy, for example, the city appropriated $180,000 to fund some of the public works improvements suggested in the study which was also performed by Sasaki Associates of Watertown."

McGrath noted that the study proposal also calls for several neighborhood meetings to enable area residents to have input into the consultant's recommendations for upgrading the area.

Tax Abatement Info For Seniors At Atlantic Center

Teenagers who like to swim may join the Thursday evening Teen Swim Program. Teens interested in learning ceramics should contact Carol Bray at 328-1708 about joining the Monday afternoon class.

Wednesday is Senior Citizens Day at the Center. Seniors meet at 10 a.m. for knitting and crocheting and at 1 p.m. for Beano.

On Friday, there is a blood pressure clinic from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. This is free to all Atlantic residents and no appointment is necessary.

Hazardous Situation

Fire Lanes To Be Designated At. N. Quincy MBTA Station

The MBTA has promised to do something about illegal parkers who are blocking the fire lanes and creating a hazardous situation at the North Quincy MBTA Station parking lot.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] said the MBTA will designate fire lanes at the parking lot and paint curbs yellow in the next couple of weeks.

"We may have to resort to the city's towing program," he said.

Morrissey toured all three MBTA station parking lots in the city recently with Walter Henneberry of the MBTA, pointing out the things that concerned him and other city officials.

"Back in May," he said, "the MBTA rewrote the specifications for concessions to put more people on and charge 25 cents more for a cleaner parking lot and more security.

"This is happening to some extent but there are still some areas that need to be worked on."

He said the tour disclosed a lot of activity at the Wollaston parking lot, with one attendant manning the booth and another busy cleaning up when they arrived.

Part of the North Quincy lot was in fair shape, he said, but he described some parts as poor and others as "horrendous".

Morrissey said City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has been working with Fire Chief Edward Barry to close rear entrances to the Wollaston and North Quincy lots at certain times.

"Those entrances are so far away from the attendants that people can sneak in without paying or steal cars and sneak out," he said.

Anna Lucey Honored At Wollaston Park Dinner

Mrs. Anna H. Lucey, of 39 Ridgeway St., Wollaston, one of nine charter members of the Wollaston Park Association, Inc., was presented a gift for her many years of service to the organization at the 22nd annual dinner meeting held recently at Walsh's Restaurant, North Quincy.

Mrs. Lucey is retiring as treasurer, but will retain her seat as director.

Officers re-elected at the meeting were Benjamin Rudner, president; Thomas F. Dowd, vice president; and Dorothy Kelly, secretary-treasurer.

Directors of the association also re-elected were Harold S. Crowley Jr., Leonard C. Delaney, Madeline Falcetta, Dominic Falcetta, Anna H. Lucey, William M. Macdonald, and Eleanor Sharkey.

Representatives Thomas F. Brownell and Joseph E. Brett, and Councillors Paul D. Harold and Steven McGrath, attended the meeting and spoke on Property Classification Question 1 on the Nov. 7, ballot.

Ward Five Councillor Steven McGrath spoke on the revitalization of Wollaston Center for which he hopes to obtain planning grants from Norfolk County and other governmental agencies.

By vote of the Association, a contribution is being made to the CAAN organization in their fight to get planes rerouted over the harbor rather than over Quincy homes.

Just about everyone is and has been concerned with time. Many of the earliest archeological finds have to do with time telling systems and calendars. Stonehenge, the mysterious set of rocks in Salisbury England, is suspected to be a gigantic calendar. Sundials were among the earliest time tellers, but Stonehenge and sundials are too heavy to carry around. People began trying to make time tellers that were small enough to be carried. From chain watches, we progressed to wrist watches, and from the numbered dial we progressed to digital dials. Watches today are a combination of ancient calendars and ancient clocks.

For modern time pieces stop in and see our fine selection of watches and clocks at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. All types of clocks are appraised and repaired, and for our craftsman it is a "labor of love". We handle Chelsea, Seth Thomas and Cornwall clocks and Bulova and Seiko watches. We also have estate pocket watches. Some are over 75 years old, run perfectly, and are truly beautiful pieces. Lay-Aways are available for Christmas. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat.

Whatever Happened To The GOP?

Whatever happened to the Republican party?

That question pops up every state election when you need a magnifying glass to find local Republicans on the election ballot.

Like this year for example, the only Republican listed is Jens Thornton, running against Paul Harold for state senate from the Quincy-Braintree-Holbrook-Avon district.

All the local state representative seats were won in the primary election by Democrats without a single challenge from the GOP.

And, can you remember the last time a Republican ran for Congress in the 11th Congressional district? And, can you remember his name? Give up? James Hofford of Quincy who took on James Burke in 1966. [He went down to defeat 141,000 to 47,000 votes].

Less than 30 years ago, Republicans held all the state representative and senate seats in the Quincy area. But they are on the outside now, looking in.

Well, what did happen to the Republican party? Maybe John W. Sears Republican candidate for Secretary of State had the answer, or part of it, during a campaign visit to The Quincy Sun last week.

Asked what he would recommend to rebuild the Republican party, he noted:

"I went into a town headquarters the other day in an adjoining suburb of Boston and the manager said, 'Gee, sorry you had to use the side door; we had to lock the front door because there were all those people out there waiting for the bus.'

"I said, 'Waiting for the bus? Why don't we ask them to wait in here?'

'Well,' said he, 'they might take something.'

'Take what,' said I. 'Some campaign literature, maybe?'

"There is this extraordinary notion that you can't quite sully your hands with the public and that's got to go."

QUOTES [AND QUIPS] from the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors candidates night at the Neighborhood Club:

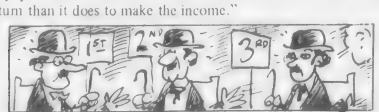
ROBERT AMBLER [D-Weymouth] referring to Robert Cerasoli as, "my new colleague, Bob Cerasoli. He's the junior representative from Weymouth." [They traded bitter words over redistricting last winter.]

LEWIS CRAMPTON, Republican candidate for treasurer: "I'm running for the vacancy in the state treasurer's office."

ALLAN McKINNON, Democratic state senator from Weymouth going against the Proposition 13 tide: "There is no magic turnaround. It isn't that easy. If someone proposes that we spend a million dollars to hire 15 more people to handle child abuse, am I going to vote against it? I am not."

TIM O'BRIEN, Republican candidate for state auditor [he replaced William Casey of Springfield who withdrew from the ticket]: "The first question I'm asked is, 'What does the state auditor do?'" ... "It's the last parttime constitutional office in the state." [Referring to charges that Thaddeus Buczko is practicing law in Salem while auditor."

JENS THORNTON, Republican candidate for state senate, talked of building new communities underground so as not to disturb the environment. Then, prefacing his remarks with "This is a joke," he said: "You know, the human body gives off radiation just like a nuclear plant. Maybe the Clamshell Alliance should picket the mattress manufacturers to outlaw the double bed."



PAUL HAROLD, Democratic candidate for state senate: "I knocked on 8,000 doors during the primary. If I didn't win the primary, I could have become a realtor myself."

SPEAKING of Harold, his campaign committee is sponsoring two fund-raisers to offset the deficit from the primary campaign. A cocktail reception is on for Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Monatiquot Village Clubhouse, Braintree. Tickets are $25 per person. Harold expects Senate President William Bulger to be among those attending.

A dance and rally is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 3 from 8 p.m. to midnight at Montello's, Quincy Point. Tickets for that one $5 per. [Tickets for both events are available at the Harold headquarters, 4 Maple St., Quincy Sq. [472-6188].

AND, supporters of Councillor Francis McCauley, a rumored potential candidate for mayor, are sponsoring a buffet and dance Saturday, Dec. 2 at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St., Houghs Neck. Hmmmmmmmm!

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy pharmacist and jogger around town, passes along this observation: "America is the only place where it takes more brains to make out the income tax return than it does to make the income."

At a Charlie Chaplin look-alike contest in the 1920's, the third place winner was Charlie Chaplin.

Money, Education On Their Minds

Kennedy Meets Student Edito

By TOM HENSHAW

Money is very much on the minds of young America today, particularly the money to finance their educations.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy [D-Mass] found that out the other day at a news conference for editors of high school, prep school and college newspapers held in the offices of The Quincy Sun.

"What about some sort of relief fund for students who attend private high schools?" asked one concerned editor.

"I'm all for assistance going to the schools that is within the constitutional definition," answered Kennedy. "But there is some that has been clearly proscribed.

"There have been some sources of funds for science, food and transportation and I think that's worthwhile. But any kind of direct aid program runs into constitutional problems."

"Do you feel that the tuition tax credit is the answer to rising higher education costs?" asked another youthful editor.

Kennedy said he didn't think so, adding that he favors "a fund that would provide tuition and minimum living expenses with eventual repayment by the student."

"It seems to me to provide the best hope and opportunity to fund the student's education, make the student accountable and relieve the parents of the burden," he said.

"A revolving fund that would be self-perpetuating and fiscally responsible seems to me to offer the best opportunity for government financing of higher education."

YOUNG EDITORS of high school and college newspapers give Sen. Edw their close attention as he explains his plan to advance tuition and living loan basis. Kennedy held a news conference for the editors in The Quincy S [Quincy Sun

Kennedy estimated that it would take from six to eight years to make such a fund self-supporting.

He told the young editors that, of the top one-third percentile of students in aptitude tests, "the middle upper income have two times the chance of getting into college" than those from low income families.

"It's basically because of resources," he said. "You have to deal with the student on the basis of his talent and his ability and free him and his parents from the financial burden."

The senator said repayment of the tuition advances by the student would have to be enforced better than such loans are today in order for the program to be successful.

"Quite frankly," he said, "I think the Department of Health, Education and Welfare [HEW] has been pretty lackadaisical in the pursuit of repayment of student loans.

"Students are conscientious and they will

Sybil Really

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Do you believe that "People Who Need People are the Luckiest People In The World?" I'm sure we've all sung this song—it's so popular, the melody is so beautiful and the message so thought-provoking—but it is really just a lot of sentimental drivel. We all know that they are not lucky—those people who really NEED people.

I have a dear and treasured friend who has needed a lot of people in the course of her life. Her name is Sybil Mattson and she lives at 7 Carter St., Quincy. She has been in the news many times. Her story is not a new one to most readers—the theme of her story is a tragic one.

To save you the time and trouble of reviewing your records, Mr. Editor, I will remind you that Sybil is a victim of the 1955 polio epidemic. That's a long time ago, isn't it—about 23 years? At that time, Sybil was immediately taken care of by the March of Dimes. There is no praise extravagant enough to commend the March of Dimes for the care, equipment, concern and financial assistance they furnished Sybil.

But, since the danger of polio has diminished, the March of Dimes has not been able to raise enough funds for patient care and they had to decrease her funds about four years ago and now have notified her that effective Dec. 15, 1978, they will discontinue financial help entirely.

For about 20 years, Sybil was taken care of by the March of Dimes and a private fund organized by loving and loyal repay them. But if they find out one month that they didn't repay and nothing happened they don't repay the second month and nothing else happens.

"There has to be enforcement."

Kennedy also told the student editors:

- He is hoping the next Congress will consider favorably his National Health Insurance proposal for the 23 million Americans who have no health insurance coverage and the 53 million who are undercovered.

- Such things as Proposition 13 and 2 1/2 are really state issue although "There is a good deal to the argument that with 2 1/2 you are going to give more power to the state rather than the local communities."

"Do you plan to support either of the Massachusetts gubernatorial candidates," asked one editor.

"Well," said Kennedy, "I'm voting Democratic."

Editors and photographers who attended the news conference represented high school, prep school and college newspapers produced by The Quincy Sun. The representatives:

Katy Carlisle of the Pony Express [Quincy High School], Cindy Burgess and Cathy Mullaney of the Challenge [Quincy Junior College], Bill Nichols and Dan Whitney of the Campus Camera [Eastern Nazarene College].

Laurie Hall and Will Sawyer of the Tiger's Eye [Thayer Academy], Kimberley Carey and Ronald Affsa of the Spectrum [Archbishop Williams High School], Mimi and Caroline Wampole of the Harborlight [Hingham High School].

Bill Ryan and Mary Burke of the Mercury [Canton High School], Mark O'Friel and Jude Mulcahy of The Walrus [St. Sebastian's Country Day School], and Fred Hessler and Nancy Parks of the Masthead [Marshfield High School].

Faculty advisors accompanying them included: Jan Dragoon of Canton, Andy Holgate of St. Sebastian's and Tom McMillan of Marshfield.

y Needs Someone's Help friends. When the March of Dimes had to decrease their financial help, the fund was discontinued so that Sybil could apply for welfare. She had to apply for welfare since no private fund could raise the money necessary for her around-the-clock care.

The welfare has now notified Sybil that they can no longer allot funds for the "chore persons" (people who attend her) since the laws regulating welfare payments do not allow them to provide payments for "chore persons".

The welfare has also notified Sybil's family doctor that they intend to move her to an institution—anyone familiar with the cost of institutional care knows that it will cost many times over the cost of maintaining Sybil in her home. The attendants who care for Sybil have been trained to give her the special care she requires—they are devoted to her and love her so much, that some of them have not even been paid for several weeks. They work for a minimum wage so you, Mr. Editor, can see that she has kept her financial care to a bare minimum.

Mr. Editor, Sybil does not need someone to move a mountain—Sybil needs a person or persons who can perform a harder task: find an agency or a law that allows an agency to take care of Sybil in her home—where she is praying so hard to remain.

Who can she turn to? Who will answer? If there is someone, please call Sybil at 472-4856. There will be someone to answer who will discuss Sybil's case with you.

RESTAURANT CLEANUP

Mayor Charles A. Ross said he was considering a new city ordinance "with teeth in it" to correct unsanitary conditions in Quincy's eating and drinking establishments.

Unofficial reports had it that a recent federal inspection found that one out of every four bars, restaurants and lunch counters in the city failed to meet U.S. Health Service standards.

Said Clarence Edwards, the city's food inspector:

"I understand that after the federal report is received, Dr. Richard M. Ash will take steps to call proprietors together and talk things over.

"We must have clean restaurants and we can have them if the proprietors are willing to cooperate."

Dr. Ash was the city's health commissioner.

Made Honorary Quincy Citizen

Dana Andrews' Best Performance: Winning 3-Year Bout With Alcohol

By PETER BARNICLE

All the experts are in agreement on one point about alcoholism and that is they don't know what causes it, according to film star Dana Andrews, who was in Quincy last week as a guest of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism.

After a three-year bout with alcohol he found that the answer for him was to quit drinking completely.

"And I haven't had a drink—nor any inclination to drink—for the past 10 years," he said.

Andrews came here to speak at the Harvest Ball sponsored by the South Shore Council at the Weymana in Weymouth.

Prior to the dinner he was made an honorary citizen of Quincy by Mayor Tobin and spoke to a group of about 100 in the City Council chamber. Many of his listeners were social studies students from Quincy High School.

Most of them were too young to remember Andrews when he was starring in such films as "The Purple Heart" (1943) and "Laura" (1944).

He is still active in films and will have a role in "The Pilot" which goes before the cameras in Florida next month.

"I play the part of president of an airline. When you get older they give you those big-shot roles," he explained.

HONORARY CITIZEN -- Film star Dana Andrews accepts citation naming him an honorary citizen of Quincy. Presentation was made by Mayor Tobin during Andrews' visit here to address the South Shore Council on Alcoholism at their Harvest Ball at the Weymana Restaurant in Weymouth. A member of the National council on Alcoholism, Andrews is a former alcoholic.

Andrews said he never drank while working on his films, but on other occasions he drank heavily.

"I'm now on the Board of the Council on Alcoholism and have talked with psychiatrists and other experts and they admit they have no ideas why one person becomes an alcoholic while others who drink just as much seem to be able to handle it."

He said some alcoholics have psychological stresses, but others have no visible problems. The experts have found that depression is not necessarily a factor.

"A person may be happy with his success and still be prone to alcoholism," he said.

In his own case, he was told by a doctor that if he did not stop drinking he was endangering his life.

Now in his mid-sixties Andrews' most recent films were "Airport" and "The Last Tycoon". He has appeared on the stage in "Man For All Seasons", "Plaza Suite", and "The Odd Couple". He also finds time to appear in summer stock and road productions.

Propose 'Ward Gangs' To Fight Snow, Litter

over them.

"You'd be amazed the amount of time we have to spend on litter.

"The light at Sea St. and Southern Artery, for instance, is a slow light. As the people stack up around the China Star and it takes about four turns of the light to get them to the light you can follow the trail of cigarettes from all the ash trays that are emptied into the street. We have to address ourselves to that daily.

"If I have 14 foremen to direct the gangs I can do a better job. Quite frankly, we could be working three shifts around the clock and never finish the legitimate complaints that we receive."

Ricciuti said the Public Works Department, which once employed more than 200 men, is now down to a complement of 133.

"In past years," he said, "most of the people who worked for the Highway Department lived in Quincy because of the residency rule. That does not exist today.

"I have as many people living outside of Quincy as I have living in the city. One of the complaints I get from my supervisors is that our people don't know the geography of the city.

"People in the ward gangs would get to know the streets by name so when the winter comes the snowplowing efforts will be automatic because the men will know where the streets are."

Eventually, said Ricciuti, the foremen of the ward gangs would be able to spot problems almost before they occur, thus cutting down on complaints to city councillors and the mayor's office.

Mayor Tobin said he plans to put the ward gang idea into effect by executive decision once the Council approves the reclassification of seven workers to the job of foreman.

Quincy Oil Co. In Corporate Restructuring

The Quincy Oil Company is in the process of corporate restructuring and renovation of its physical properties, Atty. John Corcoran informed the Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday during a continued hearing on conditions at the firm's locations in various parts of the city.

William Prang, a management consultant, is now chairman of the board of directors and executive operations officer. Fred Bergfors remains as president of the company.

Atty. Corcoran, counsel for the firm, said several buildings will be razed and the corporate offices will move to McGrath Hwy., where the company has acquired the former John Hancock offices. The building has been renovated since a fire several months ago.

Theodore DeCristofaro, president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, said the area around the company's plant on Southern Artery is still "overgrown with weeds."

Police Chief Francis Finn in commenting on the changes in the company said "We are talking about a housecleaning task. Perhaps the company should take care of that as one of its first priorities."

DeCristofaro suggested that the company's board chairman meet with members of the civic association to discuss conditions which he indicated have been a constant source of annoyance to Quincy Point residents.

On a motion of Chief Finn, the board continued any action on the hearing for two weeks.

Sheets, Morrissey Would Restrict Massport On Flight Patterns

State Reps. James A. Sheets and Michael W. Morrissey are drafting legislation to put restrictions on Massport's power to recommend changes in flight patterns from Logan Airport.

Sheets said the proposed bill is the result of an unlivable increase in airplane noise over Quincy during the past summer due to changes in departing flight patterns.

"We are not quite sure at this point what form the legislation will take," said Sheets, "but we want to make sure that in the future no community will go through the grief that we did."

Connolly Praises Quincy Election Workers, Pushes For Public Campaign Financing

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy Election Department, which has taken some flak ever since the controversial city election of 1975, has gotten a good word from Michael J. Connolly, the Democratic candidate for secretary of state.

"I worked up at the Wollaston School from 8 a.m. to 12 noon on election day," he said on a recent campaign visit to The Quincy Sun office, "and I saw how well Quincy handles its election system.

"No one gets within 150 feet of the polls in Quincy. Then you travel into Boston and go to Hyde Park and you see people trying to get in to vote and they're mauled by the poll workers."

Campaigning is a subject close to the heart of Connolly, particularly the financing of political campaigns. He's pushing public financing to reduce the influence of special interest groups.

"Public financing of campaigns is meaningless because we haven't put the money behind it," he said. "Here's an area where we could revolutionize political campaigning.

"If we invoked the federal system of voluntary tax check off we could really build some monies into this account during the three-year hiatus between elections.

"If we had every state agency cut by one $10,000 a year job or if we eliminated some of those $25,000 a year jobs that seem so plentiful we'd go a long way toward getting the $4 million we would need to fund adequately a public financing account.

"What it would do to elected officials to be able to serve without being indebted to groups or individuals would be dramatic. It would be a sweeping change. We need to take that kind of outrageous action."

Connolly, who has been a state rep from Boston since 1973, is one of those rare politicians who will not only admit but announce that he was denied the endorsement of a major labor organization, the State Labor Council, in his case.

"The reason I was denied the endorsement," he said, "was because I refused to buckle to labor and kill the legislation to reform the MBTA pay scale, the $17,000 and $25,000 jobs which were grossly out of whack.

"I believe in spending the taxpayers money in wise fashion. Elected officials who waffle on the tax issue, who waffle on the idea of government spending, are not going anywhere politically. They're for all purposes dead."

If elected, said Connolly, he would seek a second four-year term and maybe then look for greener political pastures.

"I think it was a mistake for Paul Guzzi to have run for the Senate after one term as secretary," he said. "He would have been better off politically and personally and the state would have been better off, too.

"People ought to exercise a little more discretion and show that they can do a better job of mastering their own egos. They don't have to climb the ladder in such a short period of time."

Connolly said he is running for state secretary, partly because he can't afford to be a state rep anymore.

"I have two kids and a wife and I was getting nickel and dimed to death by so many charitable organizations that expect you, as an elected official, to share your wealth," he said. "And there is no wealth as a state rep."

Board Satisfied With Clean-Up At Knotty Pine

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday expressed satisfaction with repairs and clean-up of the Knotty Pine Restaurant, 518-526 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Dr. Samuel Solomon, city health commissioner and member of the board, reported that owner, Peter Saxonis, has made a number of repairs which the board demanded.

He told the board the parking area has been paved and fenced. Inspectors found the kitchen floor has been replaced and ceramic tile has been installed on the walls.

"The owner has made major progress in the past three weeks," Dr. Solomon said.

Saxonis assured Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, a board member, that structural problems and other exterior work will be completed by Dec. 1.

The board voted to place the matter on file with the understanding the work will be completed to the satisfaction of city health and building inspectors.

Previously the board said it would revoke the restaurant's license if conditions were not improved.

Chapter 766 Forum At Lincoln Hancock School

A forum for parents entitled "Your Child and Chapter 766" will be held Wednesday, Oct. 25 at 7:30 p.m., at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St., Quincy.

The forum is sponsored by the South Shore Council for Children and is directed towards parents of special needs children in Quincy.

Chapter 766, the Special Education Law, requires school departments to provide the necessary and appropriate services to each special needs child to enable him or her to achieve academically. The law requires a core evaluation to determine, from specialists, the child's educational needs.

A panel of speakers from the South Shore Council for Children and the Quincy Public Schools will address questions of concern to parents. Included topics will be: the intent of the 766 law, parents' rights and responsibilities, and the core evaluation process, what it is, what testing procedures are used, and how long the process takes.

For further information, call Connie Peirce, Child Advocate, at the South Shore Council for Children, 472-4224.

Human Rights Coalition To Meet Nov. 1

Sears Hits Commerce Department On 'Lousy Tourism Job'

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy helped bail out the state of Massachusetts during the Bicentennial in 1976, says John W. Sears, and if he's elected Secretary of State he'll see that it doesn't happen again.

"The Department of Commerce is doing a lousy job on tourism," he said on a recent visit to the Quincy Sun. "The fact that the department has been in the tourist business for so long is simple proof that it can't do the job.

"The Secretary of State has a small tourist operation on Beacon Hill. Why shouldn't he give the same moral leadership to tourism that Secretary Paul Guzzi has given to the operation of dispensing information.

"Quincy is birthday conscious and the Commonwealth has a birthday coming. It will be 350 years old right in the middle of the term of the next Secretary. I would like to provide the moral leadership nudge that I see needed here."

The Secretary of State, he noted, is also the chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission and the Commission has done an exceptional job in helping to generate jobs and prosperity in the city of Worcester.

"If you walk into Mechanics Hall in Worcester," he said, "you will see a plaque acknowledging that a grant from the Commission sparked the preservation and rehabilitation of the hall.

"This has done a most extraordinary thing for an entire area of Worcester. Everybody is fixing their property up. They're bringing events to Worcester that couldn't have come before.

"Millions of dollars worth of economic activity has come to Worcester because of a $134,000 grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission. Small businessmen are picking up sales. Visitors are dropping money and paying sales taxes.

"The opportunity for the Secretary of State to create jobs and ouild tax revenues in history and tourism and preservation is extraordinary. Tourism is now our third or fourth biggest business."

Sears said he agrees with his Democratic opponent, Michael J. Connolly, that something has to be done to take the financing of political campaigns out of the hands of "powerful contributor and special interests."

But, he said, he differs on methods from Connolly, who is an exponent of public financing.

"Public financing is also taxpayer financing," said Sears. "I'm not as happy as Mike is to go all the way with taxpayers contributing the funds that eventually go to television and radio stations.

"I like a limited form of taxpayer support.

"My favorite plan actually would be to ask the TV stations to provide time to politicians. That would help enormously. Three quarters of my $80,000 campaign budget goes to buying television time.

"The best way to handle the campaign financing dilemma is to attack the cost problem instead of continuing this nightmare where folks are forced to go to powerful contributors and special interests for money.

"I don't think that large sums of money ought to be adrift in political campaigns but I'm not in favor of solving the problem solely by making the taxpayers pay every penny of campaign expenses."

Sears said it took him eight years to pay off campaign debts arising from runs for mayor of Boston and sheriff of Suffolk County.

"This is the curse of politics," he said, "and we need help."

Sheriff Marshall Turns $7,962 Over To Treasurer

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall announces he has returned to the county treasurer $7,962.99 for outside-earned income for the first quarter of the fiscal year 1978-1979. The calendar period is July 1 to Sept. 30.

This figure represents $7,520 received from the federal government for the reimbursement of room and board of Federal prisoners incarcerated at the Norfolk County House of Correction and Jail during this period.

The remaining $442.99 is income earned from inmates participating in the work-release program at the house of correction. These inmates have room and board expenses deducted from their outside earnings.

Discount Book For Seniors Being Updated

Mrs. Marion A. drews, acting director, Quincy Council on Aging, announces the Quincy Council on Aging is updating its' discount book for senior citizens.

Many local business concerns throughout the City have been contacted regarding discount prices for Quincy residents over 60 years old.

Those businesses who are offering discounts that have not been contacted and would like to be listed in the book, free of charge, can obtain further information by calling Mrs. Kathleen Earle at the Council on Aging office, 1 Cleveden Street.

North In Encore Win Over Quincy, 3-1

The North Quincy soccer team defeated Quincy for the second time, 3-1, in an emotion-packed game last week.

The win was the second for North, both over winless Quincy.

The Raiders were forced to play the final six minutes with only eight players, as three players were ejected for unsportsmanlike conduct and for rule infractions.

"This was an emotional game for both teams," North coach Paul Bregoli said. "Both teams were frustrated because of the types of seasons they are having. Combine this with the natural rivalry involved and you had the ingredients for this type of situation arising. I thought the officials did a fine job, although two of the objections may have been questionable calls. The kids felt badly too. Usually after a win you are very emotional, but some of the edge was taken away."

North took a quick lead on a head shot by Ed Kearney three minutes into the game. Fullback Tom Reney set up the goal, blasting a high shot in on Quincy goalie Bill Concannon, who had trouble with a tough sun and a stiff wind. Concannon, a sophomore, was outstanding for Quincy stopping several tough shots by Dave Donovan, Chris Sullivan, Tom Gerry and John Sullivan.

"I felt we had great pressure in the first period and controlled the ball well but credit Quincy's defense with making the plays," Bregoli said.

North scored its second goal in the second period. Bill Harrow had a throw-in deep in Quincy territory and put the ball into a maze of players in front of the Quincy goal. Chris Sullivan got a head on the ball and knocked it in.

North goalie Rick Forrest, when tested, was equal to the task and has some good saves.

Raider halfbacks Harrow, Sullivan, Joe Flynn and Martin Koch, repeatedly broke up Quincy's thrusts at midfield. The fullback line of Reney, Mark Will, Greg Madden and Mike Alcott played well.

Jim McGuire's Quincy team came out flying in the third period keeping the ball in Raider territory. Peter Ryan, Gary Wilcox and Marc LaFleur applied most of this pressure for the Presidents.

North was finally able to connect on its corner kick play as Gerry lofted one in front of the goal which Chris Sullivan rifled high into the net.

"We had worked on that play for a half hour in practice the day before and my assistant, Steve Miller, should get credit for that one," Bregoli said.

Quincy averted a shutout in the final period on a goal by Bill Joyce.

"I thought we played pretty well as a unit and my co-captains, LaFleur and Wilcox, played exceptionally well," said McGuire.

Cullen's 4 TDs Spark Apaches Over Sailors

The North Quincy Apaches defeated the Squantum Sailors, 28-12, Sunday in the Quincy Youth Football League.

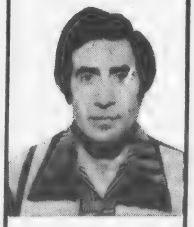
Mike Cullen played another outstanding game and scored all four of the Apaches' touchdowns, the first on a blocked punt, followed by runs of 80, 20 and 65 yards. Kevin Mahoney and Jim Quinn added two-point conversions.

Jeff Woodward scored the first Sailors touchdown on a 60-yard pass and Colin McLeod had the other.

Paul Melanson, Richie Milano, Rickie Reardon and Steve Varnado all played outstanding ball for the Apaches and Pat Burke, Jack McDonald, Jack McDonough and Mike Panaro excelled for the Sailors.

In other games the Quincy Point Panthers blanked the Houghs Neck Manets, 14-0, and the West Quincy Elks topped St. Gregory Raiders, 22-8.

Next Sunday the Raiders will meet the Sailors and the Manets will face the Elks at Veterans Memorial Stadium and the Panthers and Apaches will clash at Merrymount Field.



Bantam A's Edge Canton

The Bantam A team squeaked by Canton, 2-1, on goals by Richie Stevens and Mark Sayers. Bill Bradley had two assists and Kevin Duff and Kevin Craig one each.

GOOD TRY -- North Quincy's Larry Baker makes a good try to stop Waltham's Bill Cusick but Cusick scores first touchdown on a pass from Mark Tabor in Waltham's 14-7 win over the Raiders.

Raiders' Hopes Up For Brookline Sunday

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's football team turned in its finest two-way performance of the year last week despite its fifth loss in six games and Coach David Burke hopes for a repeat Sunday when the Raiders face Brookline in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Northeastern University's Parsons Field.

The game is being played Sunday because Northeastern has a game there Saturday. Brookline plays all home games there.

North's offense was the best it has been all season last Saturday and the defense was again superb but it wasn't enough as unbeaten Waltham, the Suburban League leader and a good bet for the Super Bowl, pulled out a 14-7 decision at Veterans Memorial Stadium to improve its record to 5-0.

Fumbles and penalties proved costly to North as they halted promising drives and Waltham's second touchdown was set up by an on-side kick which caught North by surprise. The ball bounced off a North Quincy player and was recovered by Waltham.

Waltham played without its brilliant halfback, John Giusti, but the Hawks showed they aren't a one-man club and had three other fine runners in George Melanson, Jerry Cappadona and Don Aucoin.

Waltham out-rushed North, 188 yards to 97 in the first half but the Raiders controlled the ball for much of the second half and added 93 yards rushing to 54 for Waltham.

NORTH SCORING

Quinn	7	0	42
Holleran	1	4	10
Conley	1	0	6
Cobban	0	6	6
Spinale	0	1	1

Tom Quinn, who has had a hand in virtually every North point this year, had 82 yards rushing and scored his seventh touchdown. Fullback John Conley had his best day with 72 yards rushing and Jim Holleran also ran well. Cappadona, whose 53-yard run set up the first Waltham touchdown, picked up 159 yards rushing, 140 in the first half.

"We have nothing to be ashamed about today, the boys played a fine two-way game and with a break here and there we could have upset them," Burke said. "Our kids came here to play and it had to be the toughest game Waltham has had this year. They missed Giusti but they have some other good runners and we did a good job stopping them."

Burke installed some new plays and the Raiders' razzle dazzle had the Waltham players and the fans confused and resulted in some good gains.

Burke hailed the running of Quinn, Conley and Holleran and said he was very pleased with the improved attack after a disappointing game the previous week against Weymouth North.

George Liset, who coaches the offensive line, said, "We did what we had to do today and the boys did an excellent job and enabled us to control the ball for much of the game."

He singled out Pat McKenna, back at center after missing the Weymouth game, Mike Spinale, Brian McGilvray, Dan McIntyre, Paul and John White, Paul McNamara, Dan McIntyre, John O'Leary and Larry Baker.

The defensive coaches, Ken McPhee and Jack Raymer were delighted with the defense once again.

Praise was heaped upon John Hernon, Mark Hemphill, Glen Healey, Joe Cremin, Eddie Miller, McKenna, Paul White, McIntyre, Dave Howley, Rich Schaetzel, Pat Ennis, who was outstanding in the secondary, Baker, Brian Hewitt, Leo Graham and Dave King, a first year player seeing his first extensive action.

"We are starting to come and we will be tough the rest of the year," Raymer said.

Waltham fumbled the opening kickoff and John McNamara recovered for North on the Waltham 38. The Raiders advanced to the 23 but fumbled the ball back to the Hawks on the 13.

Waltham staged a long drive which was halted by Ennis' pass interception and North then marched to its touchdown.

Quinn and Conley keyed the drive and Quinn scored from the one. Spinale kicked the point.

Waltham then came right back with Cappadona's 53-yard run setting up a 15-yard touchdown pass from Mark Tabor to Bill Cusick. Cappadona rushed for the two points which put his team in front, 8-7.

Waltham's surprise on-side kick then set up the second touchdown and Tabor capped the drive by scoring from the one.

North Quincy took the second half kickoff and drove to Waltham's 15. But, with fourth and one, Quinn slipped, the Raiders missed the first down by inches and Waltham took over.

Waltham recovered a fumbled punt on its 45 and drove to North's 27 where the Raiders held.

North staged another good drive but two successive penalties set it back.

With fourth and 21, the Raiders caught Waltham by surprise when, on a fake punt, Holleran raced around left end, almost broke into the open but was tackled after making 22 yards and a first down. Waltham held and took over on its 25.

Ted Sadowski's North Quincy sophomores rolled over Waltham, 27-8, last Friday to improve their record to 6-0. The young Raiders, who had topped Weymouth North, 7-0, in its previous game, have outscored the opposition, 99-8.

Presidents Tune Up Offense For Weymouth N.

Quincy's football team continues to play well defensively but the Presidents have lacked an offense in the last two games and Coach Tom Fitzgerald hopes the attack will show some improvement Saturday when the Presidents host Weymouth North at Veterans Memorial Stadium in a 1:30 Suburban League game.

Despite losing to Malden, 18-6, in a non-league game last Saturday, for its fourth loss in six games, Quincy's defense turned in another good performance as it rose up several times and stopped the Golden Tornado. A disputed pass interference call in the end zone gave Malden one touchdown and a series of fumbles set up another.

"Offensively I was very disappointed again," Fitzgerald said. "We had a real good drive of 80 yards to score the game's first touchdown and it looked like we would be all right, but that was the extent of our attack. We have to do something to get our attack rolling."

Although Weymouth North has had its troubles this fall, it scored a highly disputed 8-6 win over North Quincy two weeks ago at the stadium.

Tom Brennan continued to run well for the Presidents and scored the touchdown in the opening period.

QUINCY SCORING	TD	PAT	Total

Donovan	0	2	2

Geoff Clafisch returned to action for the first time in three weeks and played well on offense as did Vin Harte, Scott Richardson, George McCarron, John Nichols, Russ DiPietro and Bob Ciardi, who centered the ball back well in punts.

Quincy's punting game was weakened by the loss of sophomore Greg Oriola, who may be out for the season. The youngster had been doing some fine punting.

On defense Ralph Pickering was again outstanding. "He was just fantastic," said assisting coach Bill Maver. "He was all over the place and it was probably his best game. He has been amazing all season long and today was at his best."

Also singled out for their work on defense were Dean Prescott, Glen Lydon, McCarron, Nichols, Steve Cacciatroe, Fran Donovan, Lou Matthews, George McCall, Jeff Giordani, Steve Venturelli, John Kavanaugh and sophomore Fran Duggan, who has also been starring for the sophomore and junior varsity teams.

"This is getting so frustrating," Fitzgerald said. "We get off to good starts and play so well defensively but the offense just bogs down."

After stopping a Malden drive, Quincy drove 80 yards with a pass from Dave Austin to Harte for 50 points highlighting the drive. Brennan dove over from the one for the touchdown but a kick for the point failed.

After that Malden dominated the game but several times was stopped by the Quincy defense.

Malden, an old Greater Boston League rival of Quincy, tied the score late in the first period when Dave McCarthy caught a pass from Steve Powell.

The Golden Tornado added two second period touchdowns on two-yard runs by Joe Pagno and Powell. Key fumbles and penalties were costly to Quincy on both drives and pass interference set up the first.

Mark Conroy's Quincy sophomores defeated Hingham, 20-6, Friday, to improve their record to 3-2.

Flyers, Panthers Seen As Strong Contenders

For the first time Quincy has two strong contenders in the South Shore Hockey League, the Flyers and the Panthers.

Head Coach Jerry O'Rourke and assistant Bob Pirtonine feel the Flyers will have a difficult time securing the South Shore Division lead this year. The team had little trouble winning the division title last year but the Panthers and Bridgewater loom as solid threats this season.

The three teams are tied for the division lead, with 3-1 records, after the first month of play. Last Sunday the Flyers defeated Randolph, last year's runnerup, 9-5; the Panthers bombed Braintree, 11-4, led by Bill Dailey's hat trick, and Bridgewater, overcoming a 4-1 deficit, topped the Quincy Braves, 7-4.

In the Greater Boston Division the Quincy Sabres lost to Jamaica Plain, 9-1.

Next Sunday the Panthers face Bridgewater at 9 p.m. at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham.

North In Division Title Meet

The North Quincy cross country team, which has managed a 5-5 record despite its thinnest squad ever, will seek the state Division 4 championship Saturday over the Franklin Park course.

The meet begins at 9:30 a.m.

The Raiders have been dropped to Division 4 due to a declining enrollment and, although they will face a real struggle trying to win the team title, Coach Lou Tozzi expects some of his top runners to finish with the leaders.

"I am very satisfied with our showing this year," Tozzi said. "We have the smallest squad ever but the boys have done an excellent job and have given me 100 percent at all times."

North will end its Suburban League season next Tuesday with the annual meet against Quincy at Veterans Memorial stadium. The meet will get under way at 3:30.

The Raiders lost their latest meet against Newton North, 23-38, last week with their top runner, John McGuiggan, sidelined with an injury.

Jim Coughlin finished second, Mike Ricciuti was third and John Barrett 10th for North.

In its previous meet North had rolled over Boston Latin, 19-40, in a non-league meet as McGuiggan won, Ricciuti was third, Coughlin fourth, Barrett sixth and Billy Timmons ninth.

Earlier the Raiders had topped Brookline, 26-29, with McGuiggan again pacing the pack, Ricciuti finished second, Coughlin sixth, Barrett seventh and Timmons 10th.

Track Club Runners Shine In Meet

The host Quincy Track Club came up with several outstanding performances Saturday as more than 70 runners from the Greater Boston area ran in the age group cross country meets at Pageant Field.

Kevin O'Brien took third and Mark Lindenfelzer fifth in the boys' Squirts, and Deirdre Murphy shaved 10 seconds off her time for the half-mile course in taking second in the girls' division. Her time was 3:14.

Harry Morash took second, Jamie McArdle fourth and Tommy Walsh fifth in the Bantam boys race. Although none of the Quincy girls made the top five, Donna Hassey, Joanie Lindenfelzer and Lorrie McNeill ran well under their previous best times.

In the Midget division, Dave Fahey took fifth.

In Youth girls Sheila Barrett, Linda Kenneddy and Eileen Crehan placed 3-4-5 over the two miles.

The final Quincy meet will be held this Saturday.

The QTC will travel to New York for the Nationals on Sunday, Nov. 5 and will host the New England Junior Olympics on Sunday, Nov. 12.

Conway Urges 'Yes' Vote On Question 8 For Tax Relief

"The last question on the ballot is the last chance anyone will have this year to vote 'yes' for property tax relief in Massachusetts."

So says Jack Conway, chairman of the Committee for Guaranteed Property Tax Relief and sponsor of the so-called Conway-Carlson Cap proposal to limit taxation in the state.

It will appear as Question 8 on the Quincy ballot.

"We have an opportunity to act now," Conway told a tax relief rally in Faneuil Hall, Boston, "to impress upon the next governor and state legislature the absolute importance of making property tax relief the top priority in 1979.

"This is the only way we can avoid further tax increases in the year ahead."

The non-binding public policy question will appear on the ballot like this:

"Shall the senator from this district be instructed to vote to approve the passage of a bill requiring the reduction and limitation of local property taxes by substituting revenue from state taxes, and providing that all state and local taxes combined shall not take a larger percentage of the total personal income in Massachusetts than the average percentage taken in the three-year period immediately preceding approval?"

The Committee for Guaranteed Property Tax Relief lists Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) as a candidate for reelection who has endorsed the Conway-Carlson Cap.

BURLGAR-PROOF SLIDING DOORS

Burglaries always increase during vacation periods when the homeowner is away. One of the favorite accesses is via the sliding glass door. Today's standard hardware for locking sliding doors is pretty flimsy and even an amateur will have no trouble in gaining entrance. But here's how you can outwit the culprit.

Cut a length of dowel [or broom handle] the right length and lay it in the track between the door and the opposite jamb. No way that sliding door can be slid without removing this wedge.

The groove at the top is twice as deep as the one on the bottom for easy removal. Foil this by cutting a piece of wood slightly less thick than the depth of the lower groove. Screw it into the upper groove, over the door when it's in locked position. Now the door can't be lifted out unless it is opened all the way.

Braintree May Ask Court To Force MBTA Access Ramp

By TOM HENSHAW

The town of Braintree may go to court to force the MBTA to build an access ramp from Independence Ave. to the Quincy Adams MBTA station, Councillor James A. Sheets told the City Council Monday night.

"There also has been a letter distributed to one of the officials of Braintree indicating that there will be an access route," he said.

"I am not going to sit back and not take action when I know people in Braintree are being very active on Beacon Hill."

Sheets made the disclosure and issued the challenge in defense of a questionnaire he is circulating to determine the feelings of the people of South Quincy on the access ramp.

"We serve under a lame duck governor," he said, noting that Gov. Michael S. Dukakis was defeated in the Democratic primary in his bid for a second term.

"One of the first things I'm going to do is sit down with the governor-elect and say, 'Here are the people. Here's what they think. They do not want the ramp. They're not going to have it and that's it.'"

Mayor Tobin was equally as blunt.

"I told an MBTA representative," he said, "that the only time you'll ever see any change up there is if you go back to the same neighborhood group that told you

'Uncontrollable Rowdyism' Closes Adams Shore Library Nights

The Adams Shore branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library has been closed evenings since Oct. 11 because of uncontrollable rowdyism inside and outside the building.

"It got to the point," said Library Director Warren E. Watson, "where absolutely no service was being given.

"All the adults who used the library regularly in the evening had drifted away and those who happened to wander in just grabbed a book and ran, saying they would never return."

"Merely ejecting the troublemakers doesn't help because they then pound on the windows, throw stones and shout insults at everyone inside and outside," said Watson in a memorandum to library trustees.

"Dispersal by the police is effective only momentarily until the police go on about their other business. Increasing the number of staff on duty doesn't help; it just means additional staff time wasted.

"The staff has been told that the object of the 'game' is to see how long it takes to get thrown out. While this is going on no real service is available to anyone."

Clergy Leads Opposition

Reject Le Disco 2 A.M., Game Room Licenses

In a decision greeted by cheers and applause from a crowd of more than 100 who jammed the City Council chamber, the Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday denied a 2 a.m. closing license and a game room permit sought by Le-Disco, 79 Parkingway, a proposed discotheque.

Clergymen, civic organizations and several members of the City Council voiced vigorous objection to the granting of the licenses.

City Councillor John J. Lydon expressed the apparent opinion of most of the audience when he told the board: "The board has always considered a 2 a.m. license a privilege based on a track record. This is a new establishment which has no record in Quincy."

Councillor James A. Sheets called on the board to protect the character of the city.

"We in the Council are trying

Sybil Lives In Fear Of Being Taken From Home

That Dreaded Day May Soon Arrive For Polio Victim

By PETER BARNICLE

Ever since she was stricken with polio back in 1955, Sybil Mattson has expressed a fear that some day she would be forced to go into an institution.

That dreaded day may soon by here.

Payments to the aides who care for her were terminated by the welfare department Oct. 15 and she was then notified that the March of Dimes would have to end its support payments Dec. 15.

Paralyzed from the neck down, Mrs. Mattson depended heavily on these supports to enable her to stay at home during her long confinement. Family, friends and neighbors have rallied round to ease her anguish over the years, but the financial support is essential.

Informed of her plight, Joseph Hanlon, executive director of the Mass Bay Chapter, March of Dimes, said it was "highly improbable" that the organization would cut off its support.

"We are re-evaluating Mrs. Mattson's case and I feel certain we will find some way to continue our support," he said.

Over the years the March of Dimes estimates it has expended $160,000 on her case. But now the organization is concentrating on birth defects, particularly since the incidence of polio has declined.

"Although we have moved into other fields, we would most certainly never abandon a case," Hanlon said.

He added that every effort will be made to explore all possibilities for continuing to sustain the Quincy woman.

At the same time the welfare department has decided that its rules and regulations will not permit it to continue payment of $2.65 an hour to the three aides, who among others see to her care and comfort.

The welfare people say she would be better off in an institution.

If the welfare department doesn't continue its aid—even if the March of Dimes does—Sybil may still have to leave her home.

Braintree Firm Planning 8-9 Story Office Building In Downtown

A Braintree-based development firm is working out a package deal with the Planning Department to build an eight or nine story office building in the Della Chiesa Parking lot, the Sun learned this week.

The prime tenant will be the administrative offices of Stop and Shop, The Sun also learned, and a second major tenant, a well known medical group, will occupy two or three floors.

Mayor Tobin refused to confirm or deny any of The Sun's information.

Tobin did say, however, that the developess told him "an office building of this magnitude could be a catalyst of the beginning of doing something for downtown Quincy."

Part of the proposal is a garage over the MBTA tracks, which would be paid for partly by a federal grant and partly by four Quincy banks, each of whom would put up $250,000.

The banks would be reimbursed from receipts of the garage.

The city now receives about $50,000 in taxes from the property occupied by the Presidential Cooperative Bank and the Norfolk Baybank on the site, it was learned.

The new building would bring in some $200,000 in taxes.

The two displaced banks would be ground floor occupants of the new building.

MBTA Votes $157,000 To Relocate Electric Feeder Line

The MBTA's board of directors has approved a $157,000 force account agreement under which Mass. Electric will relocate its aerial feeder line that runs through the garage site at the Quincy Adams station.

Mass. Electric will be the primary power source for the traction power substation now under construction at the site.

Mayor's Daughter Escapes Serious Injury In Crash

Tracy Tobin, the 18-year-old daughter of Mayor Tobin, narrowly escaped serious injury Monday morning when the car in which she was riding was in collision with the rear of a truck on Route 24 in Brockton.

The Mayor said his daughter was treated and released from Cardinal Cushing Hospital, Brockton, for cuts and bruises and an elbow injury.

Miss Tobin and three other Quincy girls were returning to classes at Bridgewater State College after a weekend at home when their car went out of control and went under the rear of the trailer truck.

The other girls, who were not injured, were Laurie Tuffo and Julie Falco, both of Quincy Center and Katina Speleos of Wollaston. They were riding in the Tuffo car.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Most people know very little about jewelry. Of course, the basics indicate that diamonds are usually used for engagement rings; gold bands for wedding rings, and that pearls look good on a black evening dress. But the business of jewels and gems is much more complex. For one thing, there are a tremendous number of gemstones that most of us aren't familiar with, which are extremely attractive and quite valuable. Value is an important item in any purchase. Be sure to consult a trusted jeweler.

...like us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Topaz, the birthstone of November, is a popular yellow gemstone. It has always been a symbol of friendship, and being comparatively inexpensive, it lends itself to the widest variety of uses, particularly in modern, multi-tones gold mountings, from tiny rings to huge brooches, bracelets and lapel ornaments. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:

Little Local Action

75%-80% Voter Turnout Forecast For State Election

By TOM HENSHAW

If you're looking for local political excitement you won't find it on next Tuesday's general election ballot in Quincy.

Locally, the only contest pits Democrat Paul D. Harold, who upset Sen. Arthur H. Tobin in the primary, against Republican Jens Thornton. Harold is the choice in a runaway.

And Rep. Brian Donnelly (D-Boston), the Democratic nominee for Congress in the 11th District, has token opposition from H. Graham Lowry, the candidate of the U.S. Labor Party.

It is the high degree of public interest in the statewide races for governor and the U.S. Senate and the classification amendment that leads City Clerk John Gillis to predict a 75 to 80 percent turnout of the city's 51,000 registered voters.

Four years ago, under similar circumstances, 71.4 percent of 48,490 registered voters showed up at the polls.

The governor's fight has Democrat Edward J. King going against Rep. Francis W. Hatch (R-Beverly) in a race that features a reversal of the usual party ideological roles.

King, former director of Massport, is considered to be a conservative, so much so that his stands on some issues have alienated many influential Democrats.

Hatch, the minority leader in the State House, is viewed as a liberal, or at least a moderate, which has cost him the support of a lot of right-leaning Republicans.

In the U.S. Senate race, Cong. Paul E. Tsongas (D-Lowell) is seeking to unseat Sen. Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass), who is the Senate's only black member since Reconstruction 100 years ago.

A great many liberal voters, who normally vote Democratic, are finding it difficult to vote against the Senate's only black man despite Tsongas' impeccable liberal record.

The Classification Amendment, which appears on the ballot as Question 1, could be called a local issue since Quincy has been in the forefront in the fight against 100 percent valuation.

Voter approval of Question 1 next Tuesday would permit the legislature to establish up to four classifications of property that could be treated differently for tax purposes.

The figures do not appear on the ballot but there is "shelf legislation," passed earlier this year, which would go into effect if the voters approve the amendment.

It would tax residential property at 40 percent of full value, commercial at 50 percent, industrial at 55 percent and open space at 25 percent.

Proponents of the amendment claim it is the only way to stop 100 percent valuation, which, they say, will transfer $265 million in taxes statewide from business interests to homeowners.

Opponents contend that passage of the amendment would give an untrustworthy State Legislature unlimited power to redefine classes of property for tax purposes at the political whim of the moment.

In other races:

The future of Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, a Democrat, is tied to that of King since governor and lieutenant governor candidates run as a team. Likewise, William L. Cowin, the Republican.

Democrats are favored for the other constitutional offices: Francis X. Bellotti over William F. Weld for attorney general; Michael J. Connolly over John W. Sears for state secretary; Robert Q. Crane over Lewis S. W. Crampton for treasurer; and Thaddeus Buczko over Timothy E. O'Brien for auditor.

Donnelly, who should have little trouble defeating the U.S. Labor Party's Lowry, actually won in the Democratic primary the seat in Congress being vacated by Cong. James J. Burke (D-Milton).

He proved a strong vote-getter in easily topping a field that included Patrick H. McCarthy, a 1976 candidate against Burke; Boston City Councillor Patrick F. McDonough; and Quincy City Councillor and Rep. James A. Sheets.

Harold, a Quincy city councillor, pulled one of the upsets of the decade in ousting Tobin in the primary. Tobin, who is also Mayor of Quincy, held the seat since 1971.

Thornton, a Squantum resident who lists his occupation as a commercial lobsterman, has run for office unsuccessfully many times and enjoys little if any support from Republican organizations.

The Norfolk senatorial district includes Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon.

New Program To Winterize Homes In Southwest Area

A new federally funded program to help residents to winterize their homes will begin soon in the Southwest Quincy area.

City Councillor James A. Sheets said the project, which will be administered by the Southwest Paint Program, will help homeowners to insulate their homes and weatherstrip doors and windows.

Some assistance toward purchase of storm windows may also be granted.

Interested residents who meet certain income guidelines should call Joyce Baker at the Planning Department, pick up an application at 34 Copeland St., West Quincy, or contact Councillor Sheets.

Scouts To Help Senior Citizens During Snowstorms

The Quincy Council on Aging plans to use members of the Boy Scouts and other youth groups to help senior citizens during snowstorms next winter.

"There are many elderly persons, not living in senior citizen complexes, who live in their own residential confines," said Tobin. "We feel that this group could and will benefit by this most worthwhile program."

'I Learned So Much'

Women Find Conference Informative

"I learned so much" was the consensus of participants in the Women and Government Conference held recently at the Lincoln Hancock School.

Jointly sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and Quincy Junior College Women's Center, the conference covered the workings of local and state government, job possibilities and the power women can and do have in the community.

Representative Barbara Gray (R-Framingham) addressed the role of women in government citing the importance of the Mayor's Commission, and reporting that her work on the Domestic Violence Bill has furthered "legal remedies which are now available on weekends and holidays. Police officers are required to make these rights known to victims of domestic violence".

The "Citizens in Local Government" workshop had speakers Bernice Mader, president of Citizens Against Airport Noise (CAAN), Saran Gillies, Braintree selectman, Mary Gougian, president of Squantum Community Assn., and Ann Kane, who has worked with the City Council and citizens, discussing the power citizens have when they are organized on an issue.

Ruth Paven, former registered lobbyist, Patricia Brent, Director of the Massachusetts Caucus of Women Legislators Committee, and Diane Hinzpeter, Governor's Commission Legislative Committee member, spoke on the importance of citizen input in a "Lobbying the Legislature" workshop.

The "Women in Office" workshop featured Marcia Crowley, Wayland selectman, Joanne Condon, City Councillor, and Pat Toland, School Committee member who discussed running successful campaigns.

Equal Rights Amendment Implementation Coalition members Dorothy Zenie and Betsy Dunn spoke of the remaining 49 bills to be passed in the "Equal Rights Amendment" workshop, stressing the importance of "tenants by the entirety" bill and the protective labor laws which will provide compensation to widows and widowers.

The "Job Opportunities" workshop, with Marge Schiller and Diane Modica of Massachusetts Legislative Education Dept., Betsy Munser, of the Dept. of Employment Services, and Nan McGuire, Division of Personnel, covered discovering marketable skills, applying for jobs, and assertiveness, as well as flex time scheduling and a state law requiring businesses to hire a percentage of part time employees.

A wrapup discussion completed the day's activities.

MANY BREAST LUMPS BENIGN

It is well known that often the fear of cancer keeps a woman from seeing her doctor about a breast lump, sometimes with tragic results when cancer is present.

Rosalynn Carter's experience - having a breast lump discovered, having it biopsied immediately, and finding it benign - reminds us of the other far happier side of the picture. The truth is that a large majority of breast lumps prove perfectly benign and harmless. If a woman finds a breast lump and doesn't seek treatment, the torment of waiting and wondering, fearful of what might be found, simply doesn't make sense.

Mrs. Carter's experience has been shared by thousands of women in this country every year. It takes courage for a woman to move fast when a lump is found. But knowing is infinitely better than wondering - even for a few days.

Remember, that many types of cancer have a good cure rate if treatment is begun in the very early stage.

City To Distribute 30,000 Flyers In Favor Of Question 1

Mayor Tobin and the City Council are planning to leaflet the city with some 30,000 flyers in support of Question 1, the so-called Classification Amendment, prior to Election Day, next Tuesday, Nov. 7.

The Council voted Monday night to appropriate $500 for the printing of the flyers and passed it on to he Mayor with the notation that they would like their names appended to the message, too.

The original order was to have the flyer included in the city's tax bills which were scheduled to go out around Nov. 1, but Auditor Charles L. Shea said he could not promise that they would be out on time.

"We are going through a massive conversion of our tax bills," he said. "We had to automate the procedure and we made the decision to do it this year. That is the principal reason for the delay."

Councillor Leo J. Kelly moved to have the message distributed by hand.

"I don't care how the letter gets out," he added, "just as long as it does. I believe that classification will allow the people in my area to hold their homes."

"Will this be a door-to-door drop?" Councillor Joanne Condon asked George R. Riley, the mayor's executive secretary.

"Yes," said Riley, "and if we find hat we are short of distributors maybe we will call on the councillors' supporters to help us distribute them."

"Will the Mayor be willing to let the councillors who agree with him to have their names on the flyers too?" asked Mrs. Dondon.

"I believe he would, yes," said Riley.

"That was the amendment I was going to recommend," said Councillor James A. Sheets.

"The chair was thinking along the same lines," said Council President John J. Quinn. "Mr. Riley, will you pass it on to the Mayor and have all the councillors names recorded on the message?"

"Pictures, too, John?" asked Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi.

The $500 appropriation was passed after Councillors Paul D. Harold and Francis X. McCauley suggested that the Mayor consider having the printing done by the School Department to save money.

"The $500 is a nominal expense to cover the city," said McCauley.

"The School Department tries to stay away from competing with private industry but this is kind of a city thing. Mr. Riley ought to note the comments of the councillors as to how we can do this as quickly and inexpensively as possible."

"I believe it takes 30,000 flyers to flyer the city of Quincy," estimated Kelly, who has never run for office citywide.

"If you're going to do it thoroughly, it's 30,187, councillor," said Quinn, who has.

Ceramic Highlights

How to clean greenware. One of the most important steps in ceramics is the cleaning of greenware. This step determines a good or bad finished piece. The primary function of cleaning is to remove the mold seam lines. This is done with a fettling or clean-up tool. Hold greenware firmly, not exerting too much pressure, because pressure can cause cracking which often appears only after piece is fired. Remove seam lines with side of the blade using a circular motion. Take as much clay off as to make line flush with piece, but not so much as to make a valley down into it. To further clean piece, go over lines with a piece of mesh cloth. Tool back needed detail and scratch your name on the bottom. When cleaning do not blow the dust off piece. Dust is the enemy of ceramics. When tooled to satisfaction, wash piece with a damp sponge and water. Don't drown the piece or scrub the piece, this seals the pores of the clay.

Visit us Mon. thru Sat. 10-4 Evenings 7-9. DUNCAN and CERAMICHROME distributors.

TIPS AND HINTS:

Too much wet sponging of greenware removes fine detail and features; the wetter the piece the easier to break. A few drops of white vinegar in wash water helps remove "hot spots". Do not wash a piece to be finished in antiques or airbrush.

Relax and enjoy working in our Friday Night Workshop. Phone for more info.

Koch Name On Next Year's Ballot?

You may find a fresh face with a well known name in next year's Quincy political arena.

The name: Richard J. Koch---Jr.

Young Koch who is 23, reportedly is giving serious thought to running for the City Council at-large seat Paul Harold will vacate in January if elected state senator. There doesn't seem to be much of an "if" for Harold. He is expected to easily roll by Jens Thornton, his Republican opponent.

If Joanne Condon decides to make a bid for the at-large seat, Koch might go for her Ward 6 seat instead.

"He's assessing the political picture," a close source says.

The fact Koch has been a regular observer at City Council meetings the past six months or so would seem to indicate he is really warming up for a council run.

He has been interested in politics for sometime now. And of course, that comes natural. His father, Richard J. Koch Sr., executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board and founder of the Koch Club, has been a strong influence in Quincy politics for many years. And he has coordinated local campaigns for both John and Ted Kennedy.

Dick, Jr.'s final decision to run or not will be his own. Dick, Sr. to date has only asked him to delay entering politics as a candidate until after he complete's college.

And that, coincidentally, will be in December when he finishes up at Northeastern U. where he is majoring in criminal justice. He'll receive his degree in June.

He is also considering entering law school. And will be married in February to Nancy Kelly of Bromfield St., Wollaston.

So, 1979 shapes up as an eventual year for young Koch.

Politically, it could be eventful for Quincy.

IF YOU CAN believe reports circulating along Quincy's political grapevine, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia is just a few paragraphs -- or a chapter or two -- away from putting the finishing touches to the book he says he's writing.

OBSERVERS are pretty much convinced Sarah Saccone, battling budget coordinator under LaRaia, is getting ready to do battle with Daniel Raymondi for the Ward 2 City Council seat.

I REALLY HATE to be a pain about those meters in the John Hancock parking lot. I seem to be always griping about them. But really, those things have got to be related to the one-armed bandits in Las Vegas. First cousins, at least. They are still [some of them, at least] ripping you off. You don't get full time for your nickels and dimes.

IF YOU WANT to hear some good music, listen to the Ricca-tones. The group -- Paul Ricca, trumpet: Joseph Ricca, tenor sax: Angelo Pagliocca, chordovox and Wally Farrell, drums -- give you a nice· big band sound. Easty to dance and listen to.

A FUND-RAISER reception for Rep. Michael Morrissey is set for Friday, 8 p.m. to midnight, at the Metropolitan Yacht Club, Arborway Drive, Braintree. Cocktails, refreshments, dancing. Tickets [$25 per couple] are available at the door or may be obtained by calling 328-0900.

FRANK McCAULEY has gone back to school. The city councillor is taking a course in Municipal Financial Administration at Bentley College. The course is being taught by Arthur MacKinnon, former comptroller for Massachusetts. Now, if it will only help the tax rate, Frank.

DID YOU KNOW DEPT: School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, City Solicitor Richard Barry and George Riley, executive secretary to Mayor Tobin, were all altar boys together at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, during the 1940's? Creedon was the head altar boy. [The executive type even then.]

BLACKBIRDS, BEWARE

The Town Meeting of Old Braintree voted on March 10, 1736, that "whosoever of this town shall kill any old blackbirds within the town, before the last day of June next, and bring the heads to the Selectmen of the town, shall be paid out of the town treasury three pence per head for all so killed and brought."

BENEDICT ARNOLD'S EXPEDITION

Non-commissioned officers and soldiers from Old Braintree who enlisted in Benedict Arnold's expedition to Canada after July 15, 1776, were granted six pounds, six shillings, eight pence "to be paid to them upon their receiving orders to march out of this Colony."

STRANGERS IN TOWN

Selectmen of Old Braintree voted on March 7, 1681, that "no inhabitant shall entertain any stranger or inmate into his house without leave from the Selectmen upon penalty of paying 10 shillings for every three days they shall entertain such person or persons or family."

Says Independence Ave. Access To MBTA Station Hazard To Children

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Mrs. Metayer, the representative from Braintree, is at it again. Claiming need for some 40 senior citizens, who al present, have a bus stop at their front door, she is quietly working behind the scenes to force an unwanted access to the T station on residents of South Quincy.

Lest someone accuse me of being anti senior citizen, let me remind all that for nearly four years, as Executive Director of the Quincy Council on Aging, I worked effectively to bring needed services not only to Quincy's seniors, but to those of the whole South Shore through RSVP and the Home Care Program.

However, in this instance, we are not talking about need, we are talking about convenience and in such an instance, the benefit of convenience for a few must be measured against the detriment to many.

South Quincy residents have repeatedly registered their vehement opposition to any access to Independence Avenue. We are not being obstructionist. We have serious concerns as to the impact particularly, as it will affect the safety of our children.

A major point which we have stressed time and again and which, I might add, seems to have fallen on deaf ears in the public sector, is that an Independence Avenue access will attract increased traffic especially during the rush commuter hours. This traffic flow will converge upon the access from three directions, through North Braintree via Hawthorne Road and Cedar Street, a point the North Braintree residents should be considering, across Penn's Hill via Franklin Street and Verchild Street, and Quincy Avenue to Faxon Park Road - Kendrick Avenue then across Verchild Street. These are the very roads our children travel to reach school and return home in the afternoon and for supper. These roads and those adjacent to or intersecting them are dangerous now. They will be even more dangerous when traffic from all over the South Shore is attracted.

Our children's safety is far more important to us, and should be to you, Mrs. Metayer and the 40 senior citizens, than the convenience of walking to the station or attracting a few votes.

A second concern, again repeatedly stressed, is the invitation to commuters from all over the South Shore to park their cars in our neighborhoods, saving the parking garage fee, and don't forget, Mrs. Metayer, North Braintree is within convenient walking distance, as is the whole of Penn's Hill.

Finally, access to, means access from. The easy convenience for local residents to travel to Boston is matched by the easy convenience for the criminal element to travel to South Quincy and North Braintree, a point the 40 senior citizens should seriously consider. Look out your windows at the beautiful parking lot you have, only a few hundred feet from the expressway, with no one but yourselves to prevent a car theft. Consider, as we have, the impact of a direct access to a poorly lit residential area, an area which has no well lit buffer zone as do the other three stations. Such a situation is an open invitation to all kinds of criminals.

I have said it before and it is still true. While the impact will fall upon South Quincy, the problem is city wide. Shall another community, for its' convenience, impose its' will on Quincy and its' residents. Will South Quincy, again, be sacrificed to satisfy the whims of Braintree? Must the quality of life in Quincy be continually reduced for the convenience of the South Shore?

One final point; Mrs. Metayer seems to exercise some mysterious power at the state level, despite Quincy's delegation of four. Be that as it may, Mrs. Metayer and the residents of Braintree will not walk to the T station over the broken bodies of South Quincy children.

LWV Supports Questions No. 2,3,5 Opposes No. 6

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The League of Women Voters will support referenda questions 2, 3, 5. The League will oppose question 6, and take no position on the others 1, 4, 7.

The League's decision to support or oppose a referendum is based on League positions which have been reached through member study and agreement. The League takes no position on questions where member agreement has not been reached.

Question 2 - State Budget Extension - would allow a first term governor eight extra weeks after the legislature convenes to submit the budget. The League supports this as an improvement in the budgetary process.

Question 3 - Distributing Voter Information - would require the Secretary of State's office to distribute ballot information to the residence of voters rather than to each voter. The League supports this as being more cost effective.

Question 5 - Charter Deadline - would allow local charter commissions 18 months instead of 10 months to submit a charter. The League supports this because it will allow adequate time for deliberation and voter notification and still retain a deadline.

Question 6 - Student Assignment to Public School - would provide that a student could neither be assigned to nor denied admittance to a public school on the basis of race, color, national origin or creed. The League will Oppose No. 6 based on the League's strong commitment to equal educational opportunity. Question 6 is misleading and dangerous because it reads as something we should support.

The League points out that cities under Federal Court order such as Boston and Springfield would remain under court order to assign students on the basis of race.

On Question 1 Classification, Question 4 Residence Standards for State Census and Question 7 Taxation of Open and Recreational Land the League of Women Voters has no position.

Any binding referendum receiving a majority vote will become part of the State Constitution. Any advisory referendum will only be used as opinion gathering.

N. Quincy Knights Say 'Thanks' For $3,976 Tootsie Roll Drive

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As Grand Knight of North Quincy K. of C. #2259, I would like to publicly thank the citizens of Quincy for their kindness, charity and help in our recent tootsie roll drive for the physically handicapped and mentally retarded. Because of your love for the least of our brethren we collected $3,976.17 to help us in this endeavor.

To us at North Quincy K. of C., it was a moving experience to have met so many wonderful people. We learned a great lesson in charity and love of fellow man and I'm sure you will be blessed a thousandfold for your part in this cause. We, like our fraternal brothers, Wollaston Lodge of Masons, Loyal Order of Elks, Sons of Italy and Veterans organizations, work tirelessly on community and charitable works of mercy. Sometimes together, and sometimes on our own, but always for you. So I urge you to always support people such as these—as you have—then our community will continue to grow. A very special thanks to his Honor Arthur Tobin for his proclamation and endless support to his Brother Knights.

About Those Couple Of Newlyweds . . .

Editor, Quincy Sun:

On page 7 of the current [Oct. 19] issue of the SUN, if you persist in claiming that "the couple are living", why don't you, under the other picture, say that "the newlyweds is living"?

Urges 'Yes' On Question 8

Manley Predicts Tax Rollback Bill Will Be Passed In 1979

The president of the Mass Taxpayers Foundation predicts there will be a property tax rollback bill passed by the state legislature in 1979.

And, Richard A. Manley told the Quincy Taxpayers Association, the best way to encourage it is to vote for the Conway-Carlson Cap which will appear as Question 8 on the Nov. 7 ballot in Quincy.

"The Senate President and his staff are convinced that there is going to be some kind of property tax rollback in 1979," he said.

"They are convinced of this because they are frightened to death that if they don't do it in 1979 there will be a Proposition 2 1/2 or a Proposition 13 put before the legislature."

A Proposition 2 1/2, which would limit local property taxes to 2 1/2 per cent of market value, he said, "would literally destroy us" by taking away some 70 per cent of a city's operating funds.

The Conway-Carlson Cap would limit all state and local taxes combined to not more than the average percentage taken from total personal income in the state over the past three years, or about 18 per cent.

"If the turnout of the vote [for the Conway-Carlson Cap] is the way we expect it to be," said Manley, "it is going to give the legislature one hell of a message."

Manley said the Mass Taxpayers Foundation is going to file in the 1979 legislature a bill to mandate tax rollbacks, including a recommendation for abolition of fiscal autonomy for schools.

"The only way you can live with mandated tax cuts in this state is to give the people on the local level an opportunity to run their own government," he said.

"That means an end to school autonomy. It's got to go. You know that there are towns where the school budget is 70 per cent of the entire municipal budget.

"We will also suggest that the county budgets be pulled out of the ball game up there [the legislature] and be passed on by the people who have to pay for them with their property taxes."

Manley said the so-called "taxpayers' revolt" is not anti-welfare, anti-poor or anti-education.

"The people are very, very pro getting a little value for their dollars," he said. "They're very, very pro getting rid of a lot of stuff they obviously can't afford.

"It appalls the hell out of me that my son was involved in what they laughingly call a summer tutor program. He was teaching a course in "aerodynamics via kite-flying.' He had 31 kids in class and two fulltime teachers.

"That's the kind of stuff that has to go."

Manley said it bodes well for the people that legislators have spent the summer and early fall campaigning for re-election and have gotten to know what is on the minds of their constituents.

"The fact that they know the club is out there is going to push this legislature to do some things it has never done before," he said. "We saw an example of it last year.

"Members of the legislature who had never in their lives voted against labor voted to abolish the quarterly cost of living increase for MBTA employees.

"This was a big step forward and it was taken because the pressure was on them."

Adams Shore Library

Watson told The Sun that similar things have happened in branch libraries all over the city "but never that severe."

The Adams Shore branch is constructed mostly of glass and, said Watson, "unlike other buildings, once you succeed in getting someone outside that doesn't end it."

He said he could not guess when the "temporary disengagement of service" will end but he is going to make some recommendation to trustees at their next meeting, Monday, Nov. 6.

"It is possible I will suggest that we open the library from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. for two or three days on a trial basis and see how it goes," he said.

"Perhaps we'll try to develop some form of attendance control. I don't like to do anything like that but the problem is not going to go away by itself."

Braintree May Bring Suit On S. Quincy MBTA Access

they didn't want it and they say now they do.

"They haven't told me that yet."

Tobin said there were several avenues open to him as mayor to block the walkway even if the MBTA insisted on it.

"As mayor, there are certain documents I have to sign pertaining to things they need at the MBTA station," he said. "I told them they might have trouble getting cooperation from me if they went ahead.

"They're not going to come out here and dictate policy to me."

Sheets felt called upon to defend his questionnaire when challenged by Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi, whose Ward 2 along with Sheets' Ward 4 includes the station area.

Raymondi was not sure that Sheets' commitment against the ramp was still strong so he asked the Council as a body to reaffirm its opposition expressed in a resolution earlier this year.

"I don't want the MBTA to feel that there is some movement among elected officials," he said. "When there's movement there's weakness and that's how things get done that we don't want to get done."

The Council, with Sheets seconding Raymondi's motion, voted unanimous opposition to the ramp.

Raymondi also questioned the commitment of Councillor Paul D. Harold, who probably will become the new state senator from Quincy and Braintree in January. He defeated Sen. Arthur H. Tobin (D-Quincy) in the primary.

"We should have Councillor Harold indicate to the Council what his positions are going to be," said Raymondi.

"Sen. Tobin has told the MBTA that as long as he is senator that ramp just won't be built, that no matter what it takes he is standing behind the people of South Quincy."

Harold said he is against the ramp.

"I think it is important that we go on the record again to reaffirm that we are opposed to it," he said.

"But we have people out in the great beyond who are making decisions into which we have no input.

"The problem we have with the South Quincy access is that the federal funding could be held up on the whole station if there is no pedestrian access.

"Also we had personal guarantees from the people in the Dukakis administration. But they are no longer in a position to make any guarantees."

It was noted that the environmental impact statement and the design plan the MBTA sent to Washington for federal approval contained plans for the access ramp to Independence Ave.

"There may be a move on the part of Braintree," said Sheets, "to legally challenge the right of the MBTA to withdraw that part of the plan after it was approved for federal funding."

Sybil's Dreaded Day May Soon Be Here

[Cont'd from Page 1]

The last thing Mrs. Mattson wants is to be moved from her modest, but comfortable home on Carter St., South Quincy, even though she has been confined to one room of the house for the past 23 years.

"My doctors have written letters saying I would be much better off at home," she told the Quincy Sun. "They are very much opposed to having me moved to a hospital or institution."

Dr. Leon Jacobs of Quincy and Dr. Rajnikant Patel of the Beth Israel Hospital, she said, are seeking some way to halt the proposed move.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, made aware of the plan by an article in last week's Quincy Sun, has also taken an interest in the case. He has assigned Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon to investigate the situation.

Dr. Solomon reported he is contacting various agencies and home care groups in an effort to locate the assistance needed.

Already the Quincy Public Safety Association has sent a contribution of $50.

In a letter accompanying the donation John E. Schmock, president of the association said: "Being the smallest union in the city we can't offer too much from our coffers, however, I am sure The Sun article will bring forth some small donations such as ours."

Mrs. Mattson, now 52, is bright and cheerful in spite of the adversities she has faced.

"My greatest need is to keep my nurses," she said. "They are not really nurses—I guess you'd call them aides. The state won't accept them because they have not been certified. They have been trained on all this equipment and they are very capable in the therapy I need."

Carmen Blaney of Fort Point Rd., North Weymouth, has been with Mrs. Mattson for 12 years. Eileen Kelly of Squantum St., Milton, has been on the case for three months, and Mary Deavan of Frost Ave., Dorchester, has been her night nurse for three years.

Her niece, Shirley Smith, 17, of Hillsboro St., Quincy, and Patricia Winquist, 17, of Whitwell St., Quincy, both seniors at Quincy High School, spend three afternoons a week with her.

"They are the greatest," she said. "They do wonders, not only in helping around the room, but in boosting my morale. I am up on all the news about their boy friends and what young people are doing. I guess I know the names of all the rock groups in the country."

The aides, the high school girls, friends and neighbors are all eager to make the long days a little brighter. They see to her personal needs, feed her, and try to bring a little more sunshine in the bright cheerful room.

In 1966 her husband Ralph died suddenly. He had been working two jobs and caring for his bed-ridden wife until his heart gave out when he was 43.

After his death she received a widow's benefit from Social Security and benefits from the Veterans Administration. Today, the Social Security payment is $156 a month and the VA pension for her Army Air Corps veteran husband is $212 a month. In the meanwhile there are mortgage payments, the cost of utilities has risen and all other living expenses are going up.

Her daughter, Deborah, 28, now lives in Hanson. She and her husband, Michael Jerome, bought their own home early this year after the birth of a third child. The house was just too small. It was Michael who worked around the house to make the many improvements.

Her son, Clifford Mattson, 26, graduated from Southeastern University, and for the past six months has been teaching and counseling with an awareness group in California.

Two years ago Mrs. Mattson underwent a tracheotomy and now breathes with the aid of an Emerson volume ventilator, connected to her throat by long tubes. She said she has found it much more comfortable and only uses the chest respirator a few hours a day.

"Once in a while I have trouble with breathing or the machine and we call the fire department," she said. "I can't say enough for them. They come, day or night. They are always so cheerful and willing. They even check out the entire machine."

The worry about her future has not faded the smile. She has faith that a way will be found to permit her to stay in her home, surrounded by her Hummels, photographs of her family and friends and two cheery finches.

She has plenty of visitors and she used to read a lot.

"I used a mouth stick to turn the pages, but my teeth won't take it any more," she said with a wry smile.

Favors 'Presumptive Sentences'

Bellotti: 'Mandatory Sentencing Doesn't Work'

FRANCIS BELLOTTI

By TOM HENSHAW

There comes a time in most political campaigns when every question has been asked and every answer has been given and there is really nothing pertinent that can be added to the clutter of information that has been accumulating in the electoral attic for nearly a year.

It was that way early one morning last week when Frank Bellotti, the attorney general who lives in Quincy, arrived for an interview, neat in a blue pin-striped suit and enroute to Worcester to check the report that there is an uncommitted voter there.

Fortunately, there arrived simultaneously the results of a poll showing Bellotti ahead by an overwhelming 68 per cent of the vote and a note from the Concerned Citizens for Drug Prevention endorsing his opponent, Bill Weld, because he favors mandatory sentencing for drug pushers.

Now there are a couple of straws that a candidate can not only grasp at but sink his teeth into.

"I see," said Bellotti, "that Mr. Weld hasn't tried many criminal cases. My experience is that mandatory sentencing doesn't work. It's a great catch phrase and symbolically it sounds wonderful but I'm afraid it just doesn't work.

"The problem with mandatory sentencing is that it removes all discretion from the judges and really makes police officers judges in the street.

"For example, take the Bartley-Fox Gun Law.

"Suppose you were walking down the street and you have seven or eight children and you found a loaded gun on the sidewalk. You're not going to leave it there because somebody might get killed. So you pick it up, put it in your pocket, walk into the house and call the police. You have violated Bartley-Fox and there's a mandatory one year sentence for that.

"To me that doesn't make sense."

Bellotti said he favors "presumptive sentences," which he explained as permitting judges to deviate from the required sentence only if they set forth their reasons in writing.

"What they [the Concerned Citizens] are trying to attack, and they're right in this sense, is the tremendous disparity of sentences among judges," said Bellotti.

"One judge can give you 20 years and the other judge can put you out on the street. That's not fair. They have a feeling judges are lenient. That's really not true. But you can't remove discretion from judges."

Bellotti accepted the 68-20 lead given him in the poll as more or less his due since he has been campaigning harder and spending more money than usual on radio and television commercials despite his role as a heavy favorite to win re-election.

"When I used to try cases," he said, "and I've tried about 2,000 of them, I considered every case a major case. In political campaigns I consider every opponent a major opponent and every campaign a major campaign and I conduct myself that way.

"I suppose I have a singleness of purpose. I just want to win. Aside from the day-to-day running of the office, all I can think about at the moment is the campaign. My thoughts do not go beyond Nov. 7. I want to win."

And with that he was off to Worcester to see if that report about an uncommitted voter were true.

Thornton Backs No. 1, Modified School Autonomy

JENS THORNTON

Jens Thornton, Republican candidate for the state senate, announces his support of Question 1, the so-called classification amendment, on the Nov. 7 ballot.

"People," he said, "especially the elderly and those on fixed income, will lose their homes without some form of immediate relief from the immoderation inherent in court-ordered 100 percent valuation."

Thornton said he also supports:

- Sunset legislation to control the growth of government programs.
- Modified school fiscal autonomy "wherein it would extend only to basic education, the Three Rs, reading, writing and arithmetic. Beyond that the superintendent of schools should be required to justify the cost of other school programs to the city council."
- Peaceful uses of nuclear energy "because it is useful and because opponents do not seem to present convincing argument against it."

He described himself as "basically a moderate person, cut from the same cloth as our next governor, moderate Republican Frank Hatch."

Human Rights Coalition Opposes Question 6

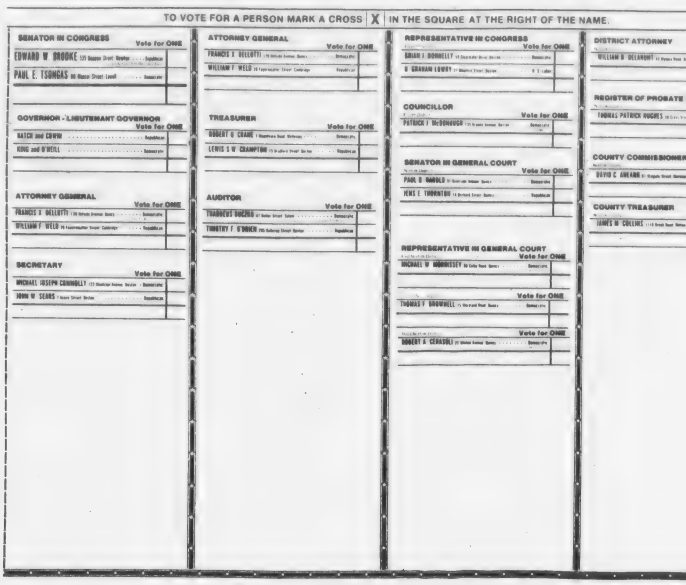
The South Shore Coalition for Human Rights has announced its opposition to Question 6 on the Nov. 7 ballot which would prohibit assignment of students to schools on the basis of race.

The Coalition called it "a seemingly harmless, proposed constitutional amendment" which "appears to be a step toward so-called racial equality."

"Legally," the Coalition said in a statement, "the proposed amendment would be a valuable tool for those seeking to block integration.

"Responsible communities should be able to assign students on the basis of race, color, national origin or creed as a remedy for past discrimination and as a step towards quality education for all.

"This amendment would cripple these voluntary measures and open up programs like METCO for renewed attack.



"Although the desegregation orders in Boston and Springfield are under federal jurisdiction, the amendment would be another weapon for opponents in their efforts to undermine these plans."

8 Referenda Questions Including Con

Eight referenda questions, including the controversial classification amendment, will be on the ballot that goes before the voters of Quincy next Tuesday, Nov. 7.

A list of the questions with a summary of each plus the meaning of a "yes" and a "no" vote follows:

Question 1

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Property Classification For Tax Purposes

Do you approve of the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution summarized below, which was approved by the General Court in joint sessions of the House of Representatives and Senate on May 28, 1975, by a vote of 220-53, and on September 7, 1977, by a vote of 243-29?

SUMMARY

The proposed constitutional amendment would permit the legislature to establish as many as four diffcrent classes of real property for tax purposes. Property in any one class would be required to be assessed, rated and taxed proportionately but property in different classes could be assessed, rated and taxed differently. The legislature could grant reasonable exemptions. The constitution presently requires all property (other than wild lands, forest lands, and certain agricultural and horticultural lands) to be assessed and rated equally at full value for tax purposes.

A YES vote would permit the legislature to establish up to four classes of property which could be treated differently for tax purposes.

A NO vote would leave the state constitution as it is.

Question 2

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

State Budget Deadline

Do you approve of the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution summarized below, which was approved by the General Court in joint sessions of the House of Representatives and Senate on May 28, 1975, by vote of 267-3, and on August 10, 1977, by a vote of 250-1?

SUMMARY

The proposed constitutional amendment would allow a governor who had not served in the preceding year as governor to submit a proposed budget to the legislature within eight weeks of the beginning of the legislative session. A governor who had served in the preceding year would still be required to submit a proposed budget within three weeks of the beginning of a legislative session.

A YES vote would give a new governor eight weeks after the legislative session begins to submit his first budget to the legislature.

A NO vote would keep the present three-week deadline.

Question 3

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Distributing Information For Voters

Do you approve of the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution summarized below, which was approved by the General Court in joint sessions of the House of Representatives and Senate on June 26, 1976, by a vote of 244-6, and on August 10, 1977, by a vote of 253-1?

SUMMARY

The proposed constitutional amendment would require the Secretary of the Commonwealth to send information about questions that will appear on the state election ballot to each person eligible to vote in the Commonwealth, or to every residence in the Commonwealth where one or more eligible voters live. Presently, the Constitution requires the Secretary to send this information to each registered voter in the Commonwealth.

A YES vote would require that information for voters be sent to each person eligible to vote and make it clear that this requirement can be met by sending one copy to each residence.

A NO vote would keep the pre

QUESTION 8
THIS QUESTION IS NON-BINDING
Shall the Senator from this District be instructed to vote to approve the passage of a bill requiring the reduction and limitation of local property taxes by substituting revenue from state taxes, and providing that all state and local taxes combined shall not take a larger percentage of the total personal income in Massachusetts than the average percentage taken in the three year period immediately preceding approval?
YES NO

Harold Endorsed By UAW

Paul D. Harold of Quincy, the Democratic nominee for state senate, has been endorsed by the United Auto Works Union, it was announced by the UAW Community Action Program Council. Vincent Ofria of Wollaston is chairman of the Greater Boston UAW CAP Council.

QCA Directors Back Question 1

Directors of Quincy Community Action have voted to support Question 1 on the Nov. 7 ballot, the so-called Classification Amendment, and work actively toward its passage.

The amendment would permit the legislature to classify real property in four different categories for tax purposes. Now, the state is under court mandate to value all property at 100 percent of true value.

Frank Myette, president of the QCSO board, said that passage of the amendment will mean that homeowners and renters will pay less in property taxes since residential property will be rented less than business property.

Valuation at 100 percent would be worse in the communities where poor people live, he said.

The board also approved the appointment of Robert Cosgrove as energy coordinator and accepted the resignation of Patricia Peers as director of the Germantown Service Center.

The next board meeting will be Thursday, Nov. 16.

World War II still haunts us; now it's the 'baby boom'

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Many of the social and economic problems we Americans face today can be traced back to World War II. One of the less obvious consequences of that holocaust was the delay in family starts with men and women in uniform and the subsequent "baby boom".

This huge wave of births over a twenty-year period from 1946 to 1965 produced 50% more babies than in the previous twenty years from 1926 to 1945. Trying to absorb these 27 million more babies than the 52.4 million born in the comparable pre-war period has affected every aspect of American life.

Empty elementary school buildings stand in mute testimony to the effort made to educate this vast army of youngsters. Businesses and industries catering to their needs experienced extraordinary growth and then decline. Demands for housing by this huge population now of family-forming age have pressed our capacity for supply and have prompted inordinate increases in home prices.

Unemployment and underemployment have become a grave problem for a nation incapable of fully absorbing the young working-age population. Someone has likened the predicament to throwing all of Canada into the American job market by forcing the United States to expand its labor force by 21.8 million people between 1970 and 1985.

If the growth in population had continued at postwar levels, of course, the gross national product would have risen to sustain it and the new work force would have found ready use for its services. But the decline in population in more recent years has reduced needs; grade school teachers, for example, are sadly in oversupply and other professions are fast reaching that state.

As we become a nation of older people, there must be serious concern for the younger generation and its capacity to sustain the heavy burden we are imposing upon it. The aged must be cared for, Social Security maintained, and national indebtedness borne by a relatively smaller work force.

The least we can do is creatively engage this well-educated post-war generation so that it can achieve rewarding careers that will help solve our social problems and meet the heavy national burden that lies ahead.

Ecumenical Mass Of Thanksgiving

Cardinal Medeiros Leads Over 700 In Celebration Of Sacred Heart Church's Diamond Jubilee

A solemn Mass of Thanksgiving was celebrated Sunday at noon in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, with Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston, joining more than 700 parishioners and friends in marking the Diamond Jubilee of the parish.

Cardinal Medeiros recalled the blessings and graces, the happiness and sorrows that marked the history of the parish over three-quarters of a century. He prayed that the Holy Spirit look over the clergy and laity of the parish in the days ahead.

Favored with clear, crisp October weather a liturgical procession preceded the Mass with priests and parishioners joined in an ecumenical spirit by the clergy from other churches in the area.

Cardinal Medeiros was chief celebrant of the Votive Mass in honor of the Sacred Heart.

Concelebrants of the Mass were Rev. Cornelius J. Heery, pastor of Sacred Heart and episcopal vicar of the Quincy vicariate; Rev. Thomas J. Reilly, Rev. Robert J. Sullivan, and Rev. James F. Hawker.

Rev. Daniel M. Graham of St. John's Church was master of ceremonies.

Rev. Thomas C. Garrett, associate pastor of Sacred Heart, directed the choir. The choir was accompanied by James E. Connors Jr., organist. The Sacred Heart Folk Singers were under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Brendan P. Ryan.

Members of the parish council participated in the procession. They were: Eugene Raux, Edith Donovan, Charles Smith, Joseph L. Bernasconi, James Maloney, Donald Campbell, Thomas J. Ward Jr., Mary Phelan, Sr. Dorothy O'Neill, Edward Flynn, Frederick T. Riley, John Murphy and John Salenius.

Others in the procession included a Knights of Columbus honor guard, Most Rev. Daniel A. Hart, Auxiliary Bishop of the Archdiocese, and members of the Interchurch Council, Rev. William Underhill of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church and Rev. Kenneth Lehman of Atlantic United Methodist Church.

Lectors for the readings were Ernest J. Raux, president of the parish council, and Sr. Mary Romula, C.S.J., principal of Sacred Heart School. The Gospel was read by Fr. Reilly.

The General Intercessions were read by Mrs. Albert Vasconcellos in Portuguese; John Salenius, Finnish; Dr. Alicia C. de la Rosa, Philipino; Michael Healey, Gaelic; Mrs. Lilla Malzone, Italian; Mrs. William T. Sullivan, French; Henry W. Lysakowski, Polish; Brendan Ryan, English.

In his prayer of intercession Cardinal Medeiros said for all present:

"Father, we thank you for all the blessings and graces, the happiness and sorrow in the history of Sacred Heart Parish, the holy and dedicated lives of so many priests, religious, laymen and women, who have labored to build the kingdom of God within our midst.

"Send us the Holy Spirit to move us today and every day so that the future may be even finer and richer for your honor and glory and for the prosperity and peace of our entire family. We ask this in Christ's name."

At the opening of the Liturgy of the Eucharist gifts were received by the Cardinal. Gift bearers were Miss Susan Barry, Mrs. Harold F. Crowley, Mrs. Daniel J. Flynn Jr., Thomas P. Koch, Sean McCloskey, Mrs. F. Garrett McSweeney and Edward J. Smyth.

Among the gifts were a fragment of a stained glass window from the old church, destroyed by fire on Jan. 20, 1948; a piece of Quincy granite and a model of an LNG tanker.

Other clergy attending the Mass were:

Rev. James Barry, Rev. William Burchkart, Rev. John Byrnes O.S.A., Brother James Connolly, Rev. Jerome Curley, Rev. James Curtin, Msgr. William Devine, Rev. Robert Deshais, Rev. Joseph Downey, Rev. Assisting In Dec. 19 Reception

Donnelly, Burke To Help Sheets Reduce Campaign Debt

Rep. Brian J. Donnelly (D-Boston), who was fighting him tooth and nail little more than a month ago will be the speaker at a reception for Rep. and Mrs. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) in mid-December.

And Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton), who endorsed Donnelly, will be the honorary chairman of the reception on Tuesday, Dec. 19, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Monatiquot Village Clubhouse in Braintree.

Receipts from the reception will go to reduce the debt incurred by the Jim Sheets for Congress Committee in the Democratic primary race against Donnelly to succeed Burke as congressman from the 11th District.

Donnelly won the nomination, tantamount to election in the 11th, with Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph a distant second and Sheets third.

William Fein, the Sheets campaign chairman, said there has always been a good relationship between fellow State Reps. Donnelly and Sheets and "that mutual respect grew during the congressional campaign."

Sheets, who gave up his State House seat to run for Congress, said he believes it is time for all candidates "to turn their energies toward helping to resolve the problems of the 11th District."

"The reception is a demonstration of mutual solidarity for the months and years ahead," he said.

Tickets and additional information on the reception may be had by calling 472-1631 or by writing the Jim Sheets for Congress Committee, Box 228, Quincy 02169.

2 Quincy Men 'Loaned' Executives For United Way

Two Quincy men have been appointed loaned executives to the 1978 United Way Campaign by their employers.

Robert J. Mahoney and George H. Mitchell will be working with the United Way Campaign full time until its conclusion Nov. 21. As loaned executives, they assist campaign chairmen in companies and communities with planning and executing their local campaigns.

Mahoney is an assistant vice president at the State Street Bank and Trust Co. He is a member of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Rotary Club and the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council.

Mitchell, a North Quincy resident, is a manager with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. He has served as a United Way Campaign coordinator at the company prior to being named a loaned executive.

The $20 million to be raised by the United Way this year will help to support 162 human care agencies serving 86 Massachusetts communities. Quincy United Way agencies include the Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross, the South Shore Mental Health Association, Homemaker Services of the South Shore, Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, Blue Hill Girl Scout Council, Quincy YMCA, Family Service Association of Greater Boston, Salvation Army, Greater Boston Legal Services, Quincy Jewish Community Center, (Combined Jewish Philanthropies), and Children's Protective Services.

'It's Really My Thing'

Downtown Development Prime Tsongas Concern

By TOM HENSHAW

Rep. Paul E. Tsongas [D-Lowell] says one of his primary areas of concern in the U.S. Senate would be the issue of downtown development in the older cities of Massachusetts.

"I intend to be part of what happens in downtown Quincy as I'm going to be part of what happens in downtown in every other older community in this state," he said on a recent campaign visit to The Quincy Sun.

Tsongas is seeking to unseat Sen. Edward W. Brooke, the Republican from Newton.

"I don't think there has ever been a congressman who has invested the time that I have in economic development in my district," he said.

"We have a job resources section that is involved in the whole range of downtown revitalization and the economy. I intend to expand that job resources section to include five people, one in northern Massachusetts, one in the southern part, one in Greater Boston, one in the west and one in Washington as liaison.

"One of their functions will be economic development in downtown areas. We've done a little of that in downtown Lawrence so I think I know how to go about doing that.

"The job resources section also spins off into things like a new Fore River bridge. But downtown is really my thing, something I think I am knowledgeable about."

Tsongas said he has no problems running on the same ticket with the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Edward J. King, who is not a notable exponent of revitalization of the state's older cities.

"The issue came up early in the campaign," he said. "It involved the whole issue of a grant and private sector proposal for downtown Pittsfield.

"The lieutenant governor [Thomas P. O'Neill III] spoke with him and I think caused him to rethink his position.

"But whoever becomes governor will still have to continue the present governor's emphasis on downtown urban revitalization. I intend to use whatever influence I have to make sure that happens."

Tsongas said he also hopes to play a role in development of a national energy policy, particularly as it affects the northeastern states.

He looks toward solar energy, hydro-electric power and bio mass conversion [the burning of trash] as long range solutions to New England's energy problems.

"I don't think coal is applicable to New England because of the environmental problems," he said. "Oil and gas over the long term will be phased out.

"Nuclear power is at best a short term solution.

"The light water reactor, like the one they're building at Seabrook, N.H., presents problems of waste disposal. The next generation, the breeder reactor, I'm opposed to because the by-product is plutonium.

"It may take 50 years to solve the problem. The technology is known. It's just a question of getting the people to make a decision to go ahead and do it."

BUYERS ARE NOT NAIVE

Your home represents an important financial asset. When the time comes to sell, put yourself in the buyer's shoes. He's in the same financial boat and will want the most house he can get for the money. Frankly, the stakes are too high to play the do-it-yourself game in this monetary arena. The best advice is - let an expert sell it.

"But why a Realtor, when I can sell it myself and save the commission?" you may ask. "Right?" .... WRONG!

The average buyer is far from naive. Before you even start serious negotiations, he'll expect you to deduct the Broker's commission for HIS benefit. Then you're on your own in the critical areas of financing, mortgages, contracts and deeds, etc. Your home will be exposed to any and all unaccompanied strangers who knock.

President Real Estate will save you these headaches and dangers. We'll protect your interest and sell your house at the best price. Statistics have proven this time and again.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

North Ties Weymouth S., Cambridge Rindge

The North Quincy soccer team, young and undermanned, picked up two points (four in the last three games) last week when it played to ties with Weymouth South and Cambridge Rindge and Latin, to make its record 2-9-3. The Raiders had lost to both teams earlier.

North played Weymouth South to a scoreless tie at Weymouth. "We played with two starters missing and three other players out for various reasons," Coach Paul Bregoli said. "I had only two substitutes, Bill O'Connell, whom I brought up from the jayvees, and Ed Kearney, who came despite not feeling well."

Weymouth pressed early but North's defense, which had given up only one goal in the last nine quarters of play, was equal to the pressure. Arunas Kleinas had 16 saves and scored his second shutout and Tom Reney kicked out a sure Weymouth goal as they keyed the defense.

"John Sullivan, who was outstanding in the Weymouth game, has played the whole year with severe shin splints which have clearly reduced his ability," Bregoli said. "But he is a kid who never misses a practice and gives all he has while on the field. He never uses his injury as an excuse and I wish all my players would take an example from him."

Bregoli, whose undermanned team has been further depleted by a series of injuries, also had good words after the Weymouth game for four other players, Kleinas, Joey Flynn, Dave Lapsley and O'Connell.

"Kleinas was outstanding despite playing with a sprained thumb," the coach said. "He has played some outstanding games for us despite being a first year player. He is another who plays hurt and does anything he can for the team. Flynn played a fine game at fullback, playing there for the first time.

"Lapsley, seeing extensive action at halfback, played extremely well and O'Connell, who only came out for the team two weeks ago, was also outstanding at halfback."

Last Friday Cambridge scored on a penalty shot with four minutes to play to catch the Raiders, 3-3.

North had struck early as Tom Gerry rifled a shot past the Cambridge goalie just 10 seconds into the game. The goal was set up by John Sullivan as he intercepted the opening kickoff and fed Gerry.

Bill Harrow scored the second North goal, finishing off an indirect kick from in front of the visitors' net as Chris Sullivan picked up the assist.

Harrow put the Raiders ahead, 3-2, with 8:45 left with a penalty shot.

The Raiders peppered the Cambridge goalie, who had 31 saves, many of them miraculous. Ron Holland, Dave Donovan, Gerry, Chris Sullivan and Harrow all had testing shots in the final period. Also playing well were O'Connell and three sophomores brought up from the jayvees, Paul Leonard, Bobby Bolster and Paul Gill. Holland, according to Bregoli, played his finest game of the year.

The Raiders wind up their season today (Thursday) at home against Weymouth North at 3.

With most of his players returning and hoping for more interest next fall, Bregoli is looking forward to the 1979 season with a good deal of optimism.

North Girls Defeat Cambridge, 2-1

The North Quincy girls' soccer team gained its second win of the season last week, edging Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 2-1, in a Suburban League game.

Sue Cahill and Chris Tedeschi teamed up for both North goals, Chris scoring in the first period with Sue assisting and the girls reversing the procedure in the third quarter.

Marjorie Ladas and Mary Costa played excellent defensive ball for the Raiderettes.

The Quincy girls lost to Duxbury, 3-1, in a non-league game.

This is only the second year of varsity soccer for both the Quincy and North girls.

Raiders Favored Over Winless Weymouth S.

North Quincy's football team avoided most of the fumbles and penalties which had hurt it in previous games and came up with its second win last Sunday.

The Raiders will be favored to get win number three Saturday when they host winless Weymouth South in a 2 p.m. Suburban League game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North had an excellent first half at Brookline and, despite a little letdown in the second half, was in command most of the way as it defeated Brookline, 24-20, at Northeastern University's Parsons Field.

"We had far fewer fumbles and penalties than we had in our previous games," Coach Dave Burke said. "Our attack clicked well and the defense was outstanding. On two of their touchdowns we held them for three downs before they managed to score. It was a good game to win and I just hope we stay free of errors against Weymouth Saturday."

Mike Spinale kicked a 20-yard field goal for the Raiders and he kicked all three extra points.

Tom Quinn continued to have a hand in nearly every North touchdown this fall as he scored his eighth touchdown and passed to Jim Holleran for the other two.

"The entire backfield did well," Burke said. "Quinn and Holleran played excellent games, John Conley ran very well and Kevin Cobban had a good day at quarterback."

The coaches heaped praise upon Larry Baker, who had his best game of the season. He caught several passes and was outstanding on defense.

Burke singled out Dan McIntyre, Spinale, Pat McKenna, Paul and John White, Brian McGilvray, John O'Leary and Baker for their work in the offensive line.

Hailed for their defensive performances were John Lothrop, Brian Hewitt, Dave King, Pat Ennis, Leo Graham, Baker, Dave Howley, McGilvray, Rich Schaetzel, Glen Healy, Jim Kenney, Chris Petrillo and Paul McNamara, who had been out since the 'opening game but returned for limited duty. He should be ready for this week's Weymouth South game.

Healy, a defensive end, came up with an excellent play which got us out of a lot of trouble," defensive coach Ken McPhee said. "They tried a screen pass and Glen knocked it down at the goal line, nearly intercepting it."

Howley blocked a punt early in the game and, when Brookline held, Spinale kicked his field goal.

In the second period North marched to its first touchdown which came on a Quinn to Holleran pass. Spinale kicked the point and the Raiders led, 10-0, at the half.

Brookline nearly scored late in the half but McGilvray forced a fumble and Ennis recovered on the North Quincy one.

North extended its lead to 17-0 in the third period on another pass from Quinn to Holleran and Spinale's conversion kick.

A long kickoff return set up Brookline's first touchdown which came after a pass to the Raider eight. North held for three downs but Brookline scored on the fourth play. The try for points failed.

North went to the Brookline 48 but fumbled and Brookline soon scored again, another pass putting the ball on the five. Again North held for three downs but Brookline scored on the fourth try.

North Quincy staged a long drive in the final period, eating up nearly nine minutes and with 1:30 left Quinn scored and Spinale kicked the final North point.

North substituted freely and Brookline, with time running out, scored after a long pass. But North recovered an onside kick and the Raiders had their second win.

Ted Sadowski's powerful North Quincy sophomores defeated Brookline, 21-0, Friday to run their record to 7-0. The young Raiders have scored 120 points to the opposition's eight.

North-Weymouth Game On WJDA

The North Quincy-Weymouth South football game at Veterans Memorial Stadium will be the play-by-play game on Station WJDA Saturday at 2 p.m.

Presidents' Offense Perked For Brockton

By TOM SULLIVAN

Let's hear it for the Quincy football team's offensive line.

For the past several weeks the Presidents' defense has received all the praise and Coach Tom Fitzgerald admitted the offense left much to be desired and the offensive line needed some changes.

But that all changed last Saturday when the offensive line, with some adjustments, turned in a brilliant performance which enabled the backs to roll up 325 yards rushing and the Presidents put everything together to end a three-game losing streak with a 22-0 win over Weymouth North at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy's best two-way performance of the season buoyed its hopes for this Saturday's 2 p.m. Suburban League game against co-leader Brockton at Brockton's Marciano Stadium.

"What a difference," Fitzgerald said. "We made some adjustments in the offensive line during the week and it was just tremendous. The boys really opened up the holes and made it easy for the backs."

In appreciation of his efforts, the players presented the game ball to Peter Chella, the offensive line coach. "Maybe now we will get some recognition," said a spokesman for the players.

"The boys deserve the credit, not me," said Chella. "They really did the job today. The tackles were especially outstanding. Geoff Caflish, who returned in the previous game after missing several games, and Fran Duggan, only a sophomore starting his first varsity game, were unbelievable. Duggan had been playing a lot but this was his first start and he was just great." [The youngster also plays for the sophomores and jayvees].

Chella also singled out George McCarron, Tom Rand, Jeff Giordani, Russ DiPietro, Paul Bandera, Vin Harte, Fran Barry, John Nichols and Bob Ciardi.

"The entire line found itself today and put things together and every one of the boys deserve credit," Chella said while thanking the players for the game ball.

Another major factor in the vastly improved offense was Fitzgerald returning Ralph Pickering to the backfield as a running back after using him strictly on defense the previous few games.

Pickering, probably the team's outstanding defensive player, continued his brilliance on defense and teamed up with little Tom Brennan to spark the running attack.

Pickering ran for 85 yards and scored a touchdown, while Brennan, the smallest back on the field, had his best day with 158 yards rushing and two touchdowns and he also played well on defense.

John Sullivan and quarterback Dave Austin ran well and late in the game, with the reserves in action, Bill Flynn, Darren O'Neill and Scott Richardson displayed some fine running.

On defense the Presidents were sharp again and held Weymouth to 87 yards rushing and 65 yards passing.

Quincy rolled up an impressive 20 first downs and Weymouth had 10.

Pickering, Giordani, Don Murray, playing for the first time after recovering from an injury; Billy Murray, Lou Matthews, Dean Prescott, Mike Trifone, Brennan and John Kavanaugh.

Sophomore Greg Oriola returned after missing the Malden game and did some fine punting.

Quincy dominated the first half which turned into a comedy of errors as fumbles, pass interceptions and dropped passes halted several drives and the half ended scoreless.

Quincy fumbled on the first play after the opening kickoff on its four-yard line but Weymouth fumbled the ball back on the next play. Quincy drove to its 45, had a fourth down and inches but Weymouth held and took over on its 46.

The visitors were held and Ken Evans punted to Quincy's 12. Giordani got up a head of steam and raced all the way to Weymouth's 30. One more block and he would have gone all the way.

After a 16-yard pass from Austin to Harte, a wobbly Austin pass was deflected and intercepted on the 17.

Following a punt, the Presidents drove to the Weymouth 18 but on fourth down a strike from Austin was dropped and Weymouth took over on its 13.

Quincy's defense again held, forcing another punt. Again the Presidents drove and reached Weymouth's 35 but here another perfect pass from Austin was dropped with a sure touchdown in sight. A long gain on a fake punt was nullified by a clipping penalty and on another punt situation, the pass from center went far over Oriola's head and Weymouth had the ball on Quincy's 32.

A Quincy pass interception was voided when pass interference was called, moving Weymouth to Quincy's 10. However, once again the potent Quincy defense held fast and took over on the four.

On the final play of the half Giordani intercepted a pass on his 30 and appeared to be on his way to a touchdown but was tackled on the Weymouth three as time ran out.

The turning point in the game came in the third period. Weymouth took the opening kickoff and drove to Quincy's 23 but fumbled and it was recovered by Quincy's Steve Venturelli on the 25. After moving to midfield, Brennan broke through the middle, cut to his left and raced 47 yards for a touchdown. He also rushed for the two points.

It was all Quincy from then on as the offensive line continued to open the holes and the defense shackled the Weymouth offense.

Later in the third period Steve Cacciatore recovered another fumble on Weymouth's 25, Brennan went for 20 and Pickering scored from the one.

In the final period the Presidents drove from their 25 and Brennan capped the march by scoring from the four. Austin rushed for the final two points.

If Quincy can put things together again this week it could make things interesting for Brockton, which is unbeaten in league competition and has an overall 5-2 record.

Mark Conroy's Quincy sophomores played to a 6-6 tie Friday with Weymouth North, making their record 3-2-1.

North Girls Again Outswim Quincy

The North Quincy swim teams continued their domination over Quincy last Saturday when the girls' team defeated the First Ladies, 99-73, before more than 200 at the Lincoln Hancock School pool.

Ten team records were set in the event as the Raiderettes improved their record to 5-9 while Quincy fell to 2-10.

North swept the diving competition with Lisa Costello, Mary Tenney and Carolyn O'Toole and the 100-yard freestyle with Maureen Santry, Eileen McKenna and Donna Walsh finishing 1-2-3.

Santry led North, winning the 50-yard freestyle and anchoring the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team, which also included McKenna, Jacqui Pike and Jill Sweeney. The relay team set a school record.

Pike set two other records, winning the 100-yard butterfly and taking second in the 200-yard individual medley. Sweeney set two school marks in taking seconds in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events.

For Quincy Donna Marcin established two school records in winning the 200 and 500-yard freestyles.

Janet Sines won the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard backstroke and helped the 200-yard medley relay team break the record. She was joined by Mary and Kathie Wright and Cindy Pitts. Mary Wright won the 100-yard breaststroke and set another school mark in taking second in the 100-yard butterfly.

The Suburban League swimming and diving championships will be held Friday at 3 and Saturday at 2 at the Lincoln Hancock pool.

Anxiously awaiting the opening of the Metropolitan Figure Skating School in Quincy are the Quintiliani girls, Susan, 14, Sheila, 13, Stacy, 10, and Sherrin, 6. Stacy recently won a silver medal at the Regional Recreational Figure Skating competition in Billerica.

Despite Rumors

No 'For Sale' Sign On QYHA, Boston Marina Ice Arenas

Quincy Youth Hockey Arena is not for sale.

Neither is the Boston Harbor Marina Ice Skating Arena.

And neither is Shea Rink in West Quincy, although the MDC would be happy if the city were to take over the cost of running it.

Reports in Boston newspapers over the weekend caused a furor when it reported that one of the rinks in Quincy was on the market.

"W're certainly not for sale," said Beverly Reinhardt, manager of the Youth Hockey Arena. "We're operating in the black now. Financially, we're doing great."

"The rink is not for sale," said Ron Courville, owner of Boston Harbor Marina in Squantum. "We could use some more business but we haven't reached the point of putting it up for sale."

"We'd like to see Quincy assume control of Shea Rink," said Tom McDermott, coordinator of cities and towns for the MDC, "but the city has not made any overtures and we can't sell it to a private party."

Mrs. Reinhardt guessed that the Boston newspapers were referring to the old Four Seasons Arena in South Quincy, which was sold a while back to make way for the Quincy Adams MBTA station.

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association, which built its own rink for $750,000 some five years ago, recently had its mortgage extended five years to make its payments a little easier.

"We were making mortgage payments 12 months out of the year," said Mrs. Reinhardt, "but our income was coming in only nine months of the year. Now we make nine payments a year. We pay more but in fewer payments."

The Youth Hockey Arena is located on land on Murphy Memorial Drive off Sea St. leased from the city of Quincy for a period of 25 years.

It charges $70 an hour for prime ice time and prime time is booked solid for the season with youth hockey games, high school games, senior amateur games and three major tournaments.

"I'll bet you that 50,000 people will go through this building this year," said Mrs. Reinhardt.

After 11:20 p.m., ice time is $50 an hour.

For several years the MDC, in an effort to cut expenses, has given communities an option to lease for $1 a year the MDC rinks within their boundaries.

"Legislatively," said the MDC's Michael Goldman, "we can only operate them 5½ months a year, which means that a $2 million building is sitting empty the other six months.

"We are negotiating with a number of communities now to take them over and double their use by putting in roller skating or tennis courts for the summer."

McDermott said that Arlington is the only community so far to have taken over an MDC rink but Weymouth, Medford, Canton, Milton and Waltham are thinking about it.

"We offer a 25-year lease at $1 a year," he said. "The MDC is responsible for major repairs for the first five years of the lease. There is also a 60-day cancellation clause for both sides."

One catch is that the community must make the rink available to skaters from other cities and towns in the park district, since the facility was built with MDC funds.

The MDC operates 25 rinks, about half of them in Boston, which has shown no disposition to taking them over. Ice time is $45 an hour and prime time is close to 100 percent booked up.

Boston Harbor Marina Ice Skating Arena apparently is not as busy as the others, a fact which Courville blames on their tax exempt status.

"The free enterprise person really can't compete against his own dollars," he said.

Boston Harbor Marina charges $65 for ice time and, said Courville, "we could use some more business."

Rugby Club Bows, 18-16

The Quincy Rugby Club couldn't overcome a first half letdown and came up on the short end of an 18-16 score against Central Connecticut last weekend. It was the second loss of the year.

All the scoring was done in the second half with Colin Riley kicking two field goals, Nate Hale coming up with a power run and Brian Morrissey having a heads up aggressive move. Quincy had its chances in the first half but couldn't cash in.

Quincy's B team came from behind to defeat Central Connecticut, 16-4, with Jack Hatfield scoring on two nice runs and Peter Barbadero and Dick Wilson also scoring.

Hale and Wilson were named the Most Valuable Players.

Quincy teams play their final games Saturday, hosting its Tournament of Champions with many of the top New England clubs entered. Admission at Merrymount Park is free.

Murphy, Corliss Lead Bantam A's To Win

Tom Murphy scored two of four St. Moritz Youth Hockey goals in the second period and Tom Corliss had 23 saves in leading the St. Moritz Bantam A team to a 5-0 win over Roslindale at the Pilgrim Ice Arena in Hingham.

Mark Coletti had converted passes from Paul Egan and Brian Donovan to score the first goal in the opening period and the other two second period goals were scored by Donovan and Dave Meehan. Murphy assisted on Meehan's goal and Egan had an assist on Donovan's goal.

The Bantam A's lost to the Pilgrim AA team, 4-0, and also dropped a 5-4 decision to Malden as a late rally fell short.

Tim Joy had two St. Moritz goals and Donovan and Egan had one apiece. Donovan also had two assists and Egan and Murphy had one each.

The St. Moritz Pee Wee A team topped Pilgrim, 8-5, as Sean Aruda and A. J. Puglisi scored two goals apiece. Brian Ricciardi, Jeff Murphy, Robbie Reidy and John Meade scored the other goals. Reidy, Jonathan Beniers, Mark Zimmerman and Barry Miller had one assist each and Aruda had two.

The Pee Wee A's and Pilgrim team will meet again next Monday night at 8 at the Shea Rink in West Quincy.

Caddy, Firefighters In Midget House Wins

Caddy Marines defeated Suburban Disposal, 8-6, in the Midget House League as Bryan Ofria had four goals, Steve Colman three and Wally Phipps one.

Ofria, Ed Campbell and Paul Flynn had two assists apiece and Frank McGinn, Chris Colman, Howie Chadbourne and Steve Colman one each.

Fire defeated Police, 7-1, with Rich Newcomb having the hat trick and Tom Smith and Parson two goals each. John Baylis, Steve Shoemaker and Parson had two assists apiece and Steve Burns, Mark Foley, Fran Foley, Fran Straughn and Newcomb one each. Steve Kraunelis scored for Police with an assist for Doug Loud.

Girls' A Team, Stoneham Tie, 3-3

Quincy Youth's Slapshot Photo Girls A team tied Stoneham, 3-3, Sunday in league action at the Valley Sports Arena in Concord.

Sheila Connolly, Lisa Norling and Kathy Flynn scored the Quincy goals with Kim Alberti and Eileen Marr having assists.

to redevelop the center of the city and I don't believe the establishment, such as a discotheque will help," he said.

Councillor Daniel Raymondi also registered his opposition to the granting of the extended hour and game room permits.

Rev. John Banks, minister of Bethany Church, Quincy Center, said he doubted that even with the assurances given by the operators of the discotheque they would be able to screen their patrons.

"Such an establishment brings an unsavory element with it," he told the board.

He was joined in his objections by Rev. Russell Metcalf, Church of the Nazarene, Wollaston, who said officials of Eastern Nazarene College were unalterably opposed to the petition.

"Being at the end of the 'T' it would mean the extension of lower Washington St. in Boston, into Quincy," he commented.

Also recorded in opposition were Msgr. James J. Scally, of St. Ann's, Wollaston, Rev. Robert Duncan, Fort Hill Presbyterian Church, Rev. Fred Lawson, Coventry Congregational Church and Earl Eaves, speaking for Central Baptist Church.

Richard Barker, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, told the board the association is not in favor "of anything that would demoralize our city."

He conceded the QCBPA had endorsed the discotheque, but added "perhaps we didn't inquire as much as we should have."

Arthur Foley, spokesman for the Cranch Presidents Hill Association, said the pinball and video games usually generate $200 to $300 weekly. This he said, would give Le Disco an income of over $200,000 for the $400 apiece on the 14 machines.

Ruth Linehan of 56 Monroe Rd., Quincy, presented the board with 1,000 signatures opposing the granting of the licenses. She said they came from people of all ages from high school students to senior citizens and were gathered in all parts of the city.

Board member Allan MacDonald moved to deny both requests of LeDisco and the motion carried on a voice vote.

Prior to taking the vote board chairman John Gillis reminded the audience that LeDisco has already received a common victualler's all-alcoholic license to operate a restaurant with a 1 a.m. closing.

Question 1 Gets Overwhelming Approval

King, Tsongas, Donnelly, Harold Win

By TOM HENSHAW

A hefty and heavily Democratic vote in Quincy helped Edward J. King and Paul E. Tsongas to victory in key state election races Tuesday.

King, the former director of Massport who upset Gov. Michael S. Dukakis in the primary, trounced Rep. Francis W. Hatch Jr., the Republican minority leader, to become governor.

His margin in Quincy was 22,385 to 12,862 for Hatch.

Tsongas, who is congressman from the Lowell area, triumphed easily over Sen. Edward W. Brooke [R-Mass] in a senatorial race that was decided about a half hour after the polls closed at 8 o'clock.

Tsongas had 21,213 votes in Quincy to 14,697 for Brooke.

Voters also indicated their approval of the controversial Question 1, the so-called Classification Amendment, under which real property may be valued at varying rates less than 100 per cent valuation.

The vote in Quincy was 29,059 for the amendment and 6,338 against.

The voter turnout in Quincy was 36,856, or 74.1 per cent of the city's 51,000 registered vote. City Clerk John Gillis had predicted a 75 per cent turnout.

One of the big winners in the election was Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy, who apparently topped the Democratic ticket with a re-election margin of nearly 5-1 over Republican William Weld.

Bellotti, once the "Peck's bad boy" of Democratic politics, ran a low-keyed campaign that again placed him in the forefront of the party leadership.

"An incumbent has an easy time," said Bellotti in a victory statement that preserved his low-keyed image. "You just run on the record and if it's good the people vote for you."

Paul D. Harold was easily elected to the State Senate from the Norfolk District, succeeding Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, whom he defeated in the September primary.

Harold had 29,071 votes to 5,378 for Jens Thornton, his Republican rival.

Shortly after the polls closed, Harold received a telephone call from Sen. William M. Bulger [D-South Boston], the Senate president, asking him how he was doing.

"We chatted about committee assignments," said Harold, whose election was a foregone conclusion. "He said let's wait until the dust settles and we'll see."

Harold said he has asked for assignment to the Urban Affairs and the Transportation Committees.

Harold's sister-in-law, Mrs. Elinor Geraghty Harold, grew up with Bulger in South Boston.

Unopposed and victorious were Quincy's three state representatives, Michael W. Morrissey, Thomas F. Brownell and Robert A. Cerasoli, all seeking re-election.

Democrats swept the less constitutional offices: Thomas P. O'Neill III as lieutenant governor; Michael J. Connolly as state secretary; Robert Q. Crane as treasurer; and Thaddeus Buczko as auditor.

The results in Quincy were among the last in the state to be recorded, largely because it is one of the largest cities in Massachusetts still using paper ballots.

The initial results, Precinct 7 of Ward 4, made it's appearance at 12:23 a.m. Wednesday.

City Clerk Gillis also reported difficulty in getting enough Republican counters to man the polls. There have to be three Republicans and three Democrats at each polling place.

Democrats outnumber Republicans in Quincy by about 5-1.

Elected without opposition to county offices were David C. Ahearn, commissioner; James M. Collins, treasurer; Thomas P. Hughes of Quincy, register of probate; and William D. Delahunt of Quincy, district attorney.

All eight referenda questions got a "YES" vote in Quincy. The results, and what they mean if carried throughout the state:

Question 2, "Yes", 23,482, "No", 7,497. It gives the new governor eight weeks after the legislative session begins to submit his first budget to the legislature. Former deadline was three weeks.

Question 3, "Yes", 23,246, "No", 7,960. It requires that information for voters be sent to each person eligible to vote by sending one copy to each residence. Presently, such information is sent to each registered voter.

Question 4, "Yes", 21,324, "No", 8,857. It provides federal census standards for residence be used in taking the state census.

Question 5, "Yes", 15,262, "No", 13,561. It gives a local charter commission 18 months to prepare a proposed charter or charter revision.

Question 6, "Yes", 23,798,

Tobin Spends Nearly $49,000, Harold Over $23,000

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] spent nearly $49,000 in an unsuccessful attempt to retain his seat in the September primary, according to preliminary reports filed with the State Secretary's office.

Paul D. Harold, the winner in the primary, spent slightly more than $23,000 on the campaign, it was disclosed in the first two of three filings of political receipts and expenditures.

The figures are required to be reported to the Office of Campaign and Political Finance eight days prior to the primary, eight days before the election and on Jan. 10.

The final eight days of spending before the primary election are not included in the figures. Neither is what Harold has spent or raised since the primary.

Tobin went into the campaign with $8,351.82, raised a total of $46,434.39 and spent $48,979.13, leaving him with a post election balance of $5,807.08.

Harold, starting from scratch, collected contributions of $21,115 and spent $23,167.06, leaving him $2,038.67 in the hole, according to the records.

Harold also listed $515 in 'in kind' contributions and noted that he had unpaid debts of $856.

'Today's Children Restless'

QEA President Urges More Parent Involvement In Education

By PETER BARNICLE

Parent involvement is today, more than ever, needed in the operation of our educational system, according to Mrs. Mary Curtin, president of the Quincy Education Association.

Schools can't function without parents cooperation and this year during American Education Week, Nov. 13-17, efforts are being made to develop the interest of parents in the work being done by the schools.

"The theme this year is 'Education Can Turn Things Around'," Mrs. Curtin said. "We are trying to get parents to come to the schools and see at first hand the classroom work, talk with the teachers and get acquainted with school procedures."

She said that in Quincy a number of parents volunteer to help out in the lower grades. They act as aides in helping with reading and math.

"We are trying to get parents into the schools to see what is going on," she said.

Mrs. Curtin, a teacher at Snug Harbor School, said she has seen a number of major factors which have influenced education in Quincy during the past 20 years.

"One of the things which has affected education is the mobility of families," she said. "Years ago families stayed for generations, now new elements are moving in, particularly in the north end of the city.

"Classes are declining in size and this creates all kinds of changes within the school system. It necessitates combination grades and many times teachers have to change from the grades they have been teaching for years."

Society itself is changing and this, she contends, has led to changes in education.

LaRaia's Central Maintenance Facility Ghost Haunts City Council

The ghost of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's ill-fated Central Maintenance Facility came back to haunt the City Council Monday night—$20,000 worth.

The Council was asked to transfer the $20,000 from the street maintenance account to pay the bills run up and apparently forgotten by Central Maintenance, some of them going back two years.

"There are certain suppliers upon whom we are dependent for certain parts who will not service the city because we are not paying their bills," said Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti.

The Central Maintenance Facility was set up by the LaRaia administration to service all city vehicles. It was to have saved money but the Council never funded it nor approved a salary for its director.

How come it's in such a mess and how come we're just hearing about it now, asked the councillors? City Auditor Charles Shea appeared delighted to explain.

"For about six months," he said, "there has been one girl working in my office trying to straighten out Central Maintenance. We also used a CETA girl to try and determine the actual amount of bills out there.

"It was probably the worst bookkeeping system I've ever seen in my life.

"We are hoping that the $20,000 will cover it but just today I had a call from a tire company with a $180 bill for which there is no money to pay. It was charged to Central Maintenance.

"What has made it difficult is that even the suppliers were wrong. They were giving stuff to somebody who said he was from Central Maintenance without even a purchase order to show that it was given.

"We found out that the delivery slips and some of the bills were being thrown into cardboard boxes in a closet in the Central Maintenance office without purchase orders being issued.

"It was impossible on June 30 for us to know what money was out there.

"When a person did claim he was owed a certain sum of money we felt an obligation to prove that the city did receive the product or service.

"The difficulty we are having with Central Maintenance bill claims is that there really was no department head. The bills were approved by the administrative aide to the Mayor.

"In order to verify their validity now we've got to go back and check with the individual who received it. This is what has been taking us so long."

Shea said he has in his office a box filled with verified bills for which there is no money to pay. They come to about $19,000, he said, "but we anticipate there may be a few more claims."

Most of the councillors had no objection to paying the bills. In fact, some insisted it be done quickly to restore credit so that supplies be readily available with the winter season approaching.

But they didn't think the street maintenance account, something close to the heart of every ward

PAP TEST SUCCESS

One of the biggest mysteries to medical authorities is why women don't take advantage of the PAP test. This simple, painless procedure is the surest way known to doctors to find a cure for cancer of the cervix.

Yet, millions of women fail to have the recommended yearly test [twice yearly after age 40]. If doctors can't convince women of the need for this life saving procedure, perhaps the new figures released from the University of Louisville School of Medicine can.

In a mass screening and treatment program lasting 21 years and involving hundreds of thousands of Louisville women, death rates from cervical cancer went down sharply in most age groups, thanks to the PAP test detection of the cancer in its early, curable state.

In women between the ages of 30 and 39, the death rate dropped 71% as compared to the pre-PAP test years. In women aged 50 - 59, the death rate dropped 59%.

Have YOU had your PAP test lately?

Coming: A program designed to encourage more efficient use of electricity.

Why. For a long time, we have been concerned with the higher cost of making electricity during peak demand hours. Soon, we'll offer a new program which could help meet this problem. New optional rates to be available March 1. Time-of-Use Rates. They're designed to encourage customers to use electricity at off-peak times – 9 pm to 8 am (EST) weekdays and throughout weekends – instead of during high demand periods.

During off-peak times, we can make electricity more efficiently and less expensively because we don't have to use less efficient generating equipment. If we can encourage people to use more electricity in off peak periods and less during peak periods, it will benefit everyone. And may help put off building costly new generating stations.

Are Time-of-Use Rates for you? For most customers, probably not. Most of you are unlikely to save with these new optional rates. While you would pay less for power used during off-peak periods, you would pay more than the standard rate during peak periods. In order to save, most families would need to have more than 70% of their total usage at off-peak times. Things like electric water heating, clothes washing and drying, bathing and, if possible, cooking would have to be done nights after 9 pm or on weekends. That could mean a big change in your lifestyle.

At this point. We just want you to think about it. If you're already evening-oriented and you use little electricity during the day...or you really feel you can change your lifestyle, then...Massachusetts Electric's Time-of-Use Rates might be of interest to you. In the coming months we'll provide more information to help you decide. Meanwhile, should you or your business wish early information, please write us at Massachusetts Electric, Box 5000, Worcester, MA 01613.

Condon Happy In Ward 6

Joanne Condon likes being the city councillor from Ward 6 and would like to keep it that way.

She's definitely not going to run for the council at-large seat Senator-elect Paul Harold plans to resign from in January to serve full-time at the State House.

"I am a candidate for re-election in Ward 6," she says, ending speculation she might make a bid for the soon to be vacated at-large seat.

"I never intend to run for a council at-large seat," she insists. "You are closer to the people as a ward councillor. There is more accountability. I like it that way."

Quincy's second woman councillor in its history, she has been mentioned here as a possible mayoral contender sometime in the near future with the chance to become Quincy's first woman mayor.

Well, how does she feel about that?

"I really don't see a woman mayor in a long time," she says. "But if one is elected, I don't think she should be thought of as a woman mayor but as a mayor. In the city council, I don't consider myself a woman councillor but a councillor."

Would she ever consider running for mayor?

"I really want to stay here [in Ward 6] and do what I can do for the people living here."

But if the circumstances were right sometime in the future, would she consider a bid?

"I really can't say that I would ever run for mayor. I certainly don't have the expertise and experience--yet.

"But, then, I once said I would not run for ward councillor, but I did...."

LATEST FROM THE local rumor mill has former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre being named to a judgeship by Governor Dukakis before the latter becomes an ex.

But, McIntyre, who has been Massachusetts senate counsel the past eight years says there's nothing to the report.

"I haven't even heard that one myself," he says. "I'm not seeking a judgeship and no one has offered me one."

And as for that other rumor he may run for mayor---forget that one, too.

As far as he's concerned, he plans to remain on as senate counsel.

FORMER MAYOR and Senator Thomas Burgin has long enjoyed having youngsters come to his door on Halloween. He personally greets each one and hands them their treats. This Halloween there were some 70 or so who showed up.

He was taken by surprise by a youngster in the final group that came to his home. The boy, about 11, looked him in the eye and asked, "Are you Mr. Burgin?"

The former mayor said he was and the youngster pressed on: "Did you buy Upland Rd. because there's a sign on it with your name?"

Burgin was about to laugh but realized the boy was quite serious. So he handed him some candy and replied: "No, son, I didn't buy it--and they didn't give it to me--they renamed it in my honor."

"Gee whiz," the boy responded. "Thanks for the candy, and good night, Mr. Burgin."

ELECTION SIDEBAR: Harry Roemer, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, was wearing a black suit, black bow tie, black socks, black shoes and black derby, Wednesday.

"Looks like you're going to a funeral," someone noted.

"I am," he said. "I'm in mourning for Quincy and Massachusetts for voting "Yes" on Question One."

CONGRATULATIONS to four longtime Quincy patrolmen and friends who were sworn in as sergeants in City Hall ceremonies. They are Joseph W. Nichol, Hubert J. MacLean, Daniel J. Mahoney, and James J. Mulloy Jr.

councillor, was the best place to get the money.

"With all the requests for street repairs that I get," said Councillor Joanne Condon, "I don't honestly believe that's the best account to take $20,000 out of. I suggest we look further for the money."

Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi agreed with her, adding, "We kept hearing from the prior administration how Central Maintenance was saving money and I can understand that now. They just weren't paying their bills."

Councillor Paul D. Harold noted that the city had "a similar situation with the hospital two years ago only they were throwing the bills in a bathtub and not in a cardboard box."

"Every time we were asked to vote on that it was the last payment," he said. "Didn't we pay some of these bills in April? Are we going to keep paying these for the next 100 years?"

Shea assured him that "to the best of my knowledge, at the present time, I believe this will cover what we have outstanding at Central Maintenance."

The Council sent the transfer order to the Finance Committee to see if there wasn't a more appropriate place to find $20,000 than the street maintenance account.

READER SPEAKS OUT

LeDisco's Side Of The Issue

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Your newspaper has reported a number of articles regarding Le Disco, Inc. in the past few months and I would be the first to congratulate you on your very fair and honest reports.

However, I feel that after a public hearing that was held at the Quincy City Hall on Oct. 31, 1978 it is my obligation to both my stockholders and the residents of Quincy to respond to many unfounded accusations and rumors that were spread throughout the City and again at this hearing.

In our initial presentation on Aug. 8, 1978 to Mayor Arthur Tobin and other representatives of the City of Quincy, including Reverend Baharian we outlined the entire concept of Le Disco. At a public hearing before the Quincy Licensing Board on Sept. 5, 1978 we again outlined in detail our proposed concept, at a public hearing before the Quincy Licensing Board on Sept. 19, 1978 we again reviewed our entire concept. At a meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association held in September, 1978 we again outlined our entire concept and underwent extensive questioning as to all details of Le Disco including our request for a 2 a.m. closing and Game Room.

Let me now for all readers of your very fine newspaper, explain what Le Disco, Inc. has always been portrayed as.

A European styled cafe that will open Monday thru Friday at 4 p.m. and will offer hand carved sandwiches of roast beef, ham and turkey, soups, salads, raw bar, featuring oysters, clams and shrimp, quiche lorraine and French desserts at moderate prices.

We hope to expand in the spring and offer Quincy's first European styled outdoor cafe, which will be opened for lunch, dinner and late night cafe menu.

Our bar will open at 4 p.m. and is designed for cocktail hours and will feature quiet recorded music and quality beverages, and we hope to attract those persons who work and live in the immediate area.

Le Disco will open at 9 p.m. for disco dancing and cover charges of $2 during the weekdays and $3 on weekend nights will be in effect and a paid police detail of at least one officer and two on weekends will be employed by the management of Le Disco, with no expense to the taxpayers of Quincy. Strict dress codes will be in effect at all opening hours and stringent control of identification will be employed.

We have obtained the services of Ron Robin, Disco Vinnie Perruzzi (a Quincy resident) and Joe Cervone to spin the latest disco discs and hope to offer to the many thousands of Quincy and South Shore residents the chance to avoid the Southeast Expressway and hassle free parking, under a well controlled and managed restaurant and discotheque, for those persons who would support our new business.

We also plan to offer to all interested patrons the opportunity to purchase a VIP membership card for an annual fee of $75 which will offer substantial savings on the door charges and will offer immediate entrance.

We also have always planned to open Saturdays from 12 noon until 5 p.m. for teenage disco days and will be charging $3 and all patrons must adhere to all LeDisco rules, including dress code and only non-alcoholic beverages will be served.

As for our game room, we plan to offer to our patrons the opportunity to enjoy a relaxing game of pool, the latest in digital and pinball games as well as games couples can enjoy.

Le Disco is a new business that has received necessary licenses from the Quincy Licensing Board, the support of the Quincy Planning Commission and the QCBPA and wants to establish the finest restaurant and discotheque in the Commonwealth.

We ask that the people in Quincy support our request for a 2 a.m. closing when we return to the Quincy Licensing Board for another hearing.

Opposes Disco In Parkingway

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I'm writing this letter in regards to the Disco on Parkway in Quincy.

I think Quincy has enough of these types of establishments. Quincy should go back to what Quincy used to be. We survived without Discos. I'm not against Discos, but they should be in the right place and Quincy needs no more.

I'm not against dancing, singing and a good time, but will this be that type or will we have another Saturday night fever.

Liked Cardinal Medeiros Photo Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun

I rejoiced when I saw the front page of your Nov. 2 issue. For Cardinal Medeiros and Fr. Cornelius Heery are peacefully at prayer in Sacred Heart Church—and in the pages of the Quincy Sun.

Since I pay attention to all Peters everywhere, I was again delighted when I saw Fr. Peter Martocchio's name on p. 19. May God bless all us Peters, especially Pope John Paul II.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Couple Fight Eviction Against Parking Lot

The eviction of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Ludwig from their home at 28 Cottage St., Quincy Center, to make way for the John Hancock Parking Lot was delayed three days when the Ludwigs refused to leave.

Nov. 9-14
1954
24 Years Ago
This Week

Members of the last remaining family living on Cottage St., locked themselved in their home and read Bible verses from the windows while two deputy sheriffs and a moving van waited outside.

The city took the Ludwigs' property last spring and Public Works Commissioner Charles R. Herbert said eviction notices had been sent at two-month intervals since April but the Ludwigs ignored them.

BURKE TO SUE

Thomas H. Burke, Quincy Democrat, threatened to take the matter to court after the Board of Voter Registration turned down his request for a recount of the State Rep vote in the First District.

Actually, the Board approved Burke's request for another count of the ballots in Ward 3 but refused to allow it in Wards 4, 5 and 6 because the petitions were not properly sworn.

Burke, who lost to Republican Carter Lee by a margin of 220 votes, conferred with Joseph F. X. Doherty, chairman of the Democratic City Committee and Boston Atty. Charles McGlue about court action.

MARKET OPPOSED

City Councillor Frank E. McDonald was leading the opposition to a proposed supermarket on the old Pope property at the corner of Quincy Shore Boulevard and East Squantum St.

"If that market is built it is just a question of time until a liquor license will be sought for the store," he said.

McDonald was a moving spirit behind a proposal to change the zoning of the property from Business to Residence A, which would effectively ban the supermarket from the site.

RAIDERS WIN ON PASS

Jack Crowley threw a 15-yard pass to Jim Jones in the first period for the only score of the game as North Quincy's football team dumped Braintree, 7-0, at Braintree.

The Raiders lineup included:

Grutchfield, Kelly, Adams, ends; Menslage, Harding, Dickson, Huber, tackles; Coughlin, Fallon, Frazier, guards; Trudeau, Steveneson, centers; Coletta, Crowley, Penzo, Jones, Creedon, backs.

Jim Colclough scored two touchdowns and ran for 171 yards to lead Quincy to a 34-13 victory over Nashua, N.H. The Presidents ran up 341 yards on the ground and added 70 more on passes.

Historic United First Parish Church To Celebrate 150th Anniversary Sunday

The United First Parish Church of Quincy Sq., widely known as the Church of the Presidents, will celebrate its 150th anniversary on Sunday at 10:45 a.m. with special services in the main auditorium.

The crypt of the church contains the remains of John Adams, second president of the United States, and his wife, Abigail (Smith) Adams. Also the tombs of his son, John Quincy Adams, sixth president, and his wife, Louisa Catherine (Johnson) Adams.

At the service of commemoration and rededication historian Thomas Boylston Adams, a direct descendant, will speak on Quincy as it was a century and a half ago. Dr. Robert E. Senghas, vice president of the Unitarian Universalist Association, will bring congratulatory remarks from the denomination.

Rev. Keith Munson, minister of the church, will read excerpts from the diary of Charles Francis Adams written on the day the church was dedicated, Nov. 12, 1828.

The North Quincy Concert Chorus, under the direction of Maurice Carbonneau, will provide music for the service.

A model of the edifice in its original form will be unveiled and presented to the church by John Hemphel, manual arts instructor at Broad Meadows Junior High School.

Following the service a reception will be held in the parish house. Ernest Montilio of Montilio's Bakery will present a cake in replica of the church. The cake will be cut and distributed to those present.

The church, also known as the Stone Temple, is the fourth to house the parish which was founded in 1636. In 1971 the building was declared a National Historic Landmark.

In addition to its close association with the Adams family the church has also been the parish of other patriots of the American Revolution. Rev. John Hancock was pastor of the church in the early part of the 18th century. He was the father of Quincy-born John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

New Flight Testings At Logan Expected

Reps. James A. Sheets and Michael W. Morrissey report that the FAA environmental study of departure procedures at Logan Airport is moving ahead according to plan.

The contract to perform the noise analysis of the study was given by Massport to the engineering firm of Bolt, Beranek and Newman.

"Massport decided to award the contract to BBN," said Morrissey, "for approximately $8,700 after community representatives agreed that the firm would be a good choice."

Sheets said it is anticipated that flight testing of the procedures will be conducted next week under the supervision of the consulting firm. They include four alternative departure procedures.

Sheets warned that some communities may experience different patterns of aircraft noise for brief periods during the day as a result of the flight evaluation.

The affected communities, he added, will be notified when an evaluation is being conducted.

$7,704 Pipe Cutter Reflects Inflation

The rate of inflation and its effect on city finances was graphically displayed at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

A ductile iron pipe cutter for the Water Department that was estimated to cost $4,800 when the budget was prepared in 1977 actually cost $7,704.50 when the low bids were opened in 1978.

That was why, explained Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, the Water Department was asking for another $6,024.64 to make up the difference.

Mathematically minded councillors questioned that equation that $4,800 from $7,704.50 equals $6,024.64, so Ricciuti went on to explain further.

"When the capital outlay sheet was approved it included some trucks with the pipe cutter and the trucks also went over the original estimate, leaving the shortage for the pipe cutter," he said.

There was, he said, $1,679.86 left for the cutter.

The Council approved the transfer after Auditor Charles L. Shea assured them that there was $8,458.44 in the Water Reserve despite the fact that nothing had been added to it since 1975.

Barry's Deli License Transferred

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday approved the request of Michael E. McFarland for transfer of the common victualer-wine and malt license from the former owner Danma, Inc., to his MEM, Inc., doing business as Barry's Deli, 21-23 Beale St., Wollaston.

Atty. Robert Langlois, representing McFarland, said his client had worked for Barry's Deli for the better part of nine years and had been assistant manager when the food shop closed several weeks ago. McFarland, he said also has experience in restaurant accounting, gained from employment with Howard Johnson's.

City Councillor Stephen McGrath told the board he has known McFarland for many years and was pleased to recommend him. He said Barry's was an institution in Wollaston and he felt McFarland would carry on the tradition.

City Councillor John J. Lydon added his recommendation and asked the board to approve the transfer.

The request was granted on a voice vote.

Elvera DeYoung Retires

3.5 Million Safe Crossings At Quincy School Credited To Traffic Supervisor

By PETER BARNICLE

Over the past 26 years pupils attending the Quincy School have crossed Newbury Ave., North Quincy an estimated 3.5 million times safely under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Elvera B. DeYoung, the safety patrol supervisor.

The estimate was made by School Principal Daniel Malvesta, as the entire student body turned out to pay tribute to Mrs. DeYoung on her retirement Nov. 1. On the same day she also celebrated her 65th birthday.

Mrs. DeYoung was one of the original group of safety patrol officers who went on duty in September, 1952. She is the only one of the group to complete more than a quarter of a century of service.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, assistant superintendent William L. Phinney, City Councillor Joanne Condon, Police Lt. William Knowles and Patrolman Anthony Pollara, the police department's safety officer, joined other school safety patrol officers and a host of friends in honoring Mrs. DeYoung.

"I crossed under her guidance 21 years ago," Mrs. Cathy (McCloskey) Waterman, 15 Clive St., recalled. Now her children, Robert, 13, Mark, 12, John, 10, and Peggy, 8, have been crossing under the same watchful eyes.

Mrs. Waterman, Mrs. Kathy Conway, 72 Kendall St., North Quincy, and other members of the Quincy School Parents Association presented Mrs. DeYoung with a dry-flower arrangement. The students made up an album of letters and cards expressing their appreciation.

Councillor Condon gave her a framed copy of a resolve passed by the City Council commending her for her long years of faithful service in looking after the safety of the children.

Mrs. DeYoung's daughter, Barbara E. Mock, 23 Young St., with whom she now makes her home, attended the Quincy School. Barbara's children, Kevin, 15, Brian, 14, and Deirdre, 11, have crossed Newbury Ave., at Young St., under grandma's guidance and were present for the ceremonies. Deirdre is a Quincy Sun carrier.

There has never been an accident at the intersection while Mrs. DeYoung was on duty. Some motorists go a little fast, she said, but everybody obeys her signals.

"On a job like this you worry about every single thing the kids are doing. Things you know they shouldn't be doing," she said. "Sometimes I would take them aside and talk to them. I hope I was able to straighten them out.

She also had a good word for today's children.

"In the last few years I have found the children to be quieter and better behaved," she said. "I don't know if I have become mellower and realize children are going to do certain things anyway. Maybe I'm not as critical as I used to be," she smiled.

She has no plans for her retirement but has told some friends she might go back to school. "But I'm just kidding," she added.

"If I did travel I'd love to go to Alaska. That's the one place I want to see."

What Is A Chiropractor...

He's a Doctor.

State licensed and regulated, he's a valuable member of the health care profession. Six years of college study and internship (more if he's a specialist) go into the making of a Doctor of Chiropractic (D.C.). His areas of study include some of the most advanced fields in science . . . anatomy, bacteriology, pathology, physiology, biochemistry, pediatrics, geriatrics, spinal manipulation. He has many hours of study in such vital subjects as x-ray, nutrition and physical therapy.

He's trained in a special area.

Your chiropractic doctor is primarily concerned with the spine and how its interplay with the nervous system affects many important body functions. He knows that a misaligned vertebra can cause excruciating pain in the immediate back area — but it can also interfere with the nerves leading from the spine, thereby affecting distant portions of the body. He is especially skilled in treating neuro-musculo-skeletal problems, such as disc and other back disorders, neck problems, whiplash and conditions of the knee, shoulder, elbow, hand and foot joints.

But he can treat much more. Just ask the 40,000,000 Americans who are chiropractic patients.

How he can help.

Your Doctor of Chiropractic has at his disposal advanced techniques and equipment in modern x-ray, laboratory and diagnostic instruments. Thoroughly trained and skilled in orthopedic and neurological procedures, he will examine and diagnose you to determine what may be causing your body not to function properly. If the problem is one for which recognized chiropractic methods of treatment are applicable, he likely will recommend a course of treatment.

How he won't help.

We believe that no one type of doctor can — or should — treat everything. The competent doctor knows when to refer to a surgeon. Or to a heart specialist. Or to an optometrist, podiatrist, dentist, psychologist or other specialist. The chiropractic doctor is himself a specialist in treating many conditions . . . and he does it without surgical cutting or using potentially harmful drugs.

The door to the office of your Doctor of Chiropractic may be the door to a more healthful, invigorating life. If you need help in the area of health care in which he is most knowledgeable, knock on his door.

Seminar For Christmas Parade Float Entrants

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee will hold a seminar at 8 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at Civil Defense headquarters, 55 Sea St., Quincy, for all float entrants in the Christmas Parade to be held Sunday, Nov. 26.

The parade which annually attracts more than 250,000 spectators, will step off at 12:30 p.m. from Veterans Memorial Stadium for the march along Hancock St., through downtown Quincy.

Purpose of the seminar, according to Richard Venna, coordinator of the floats division, is to acquaint all entrants with the rules and regulations and the judging procedures. Any group still considering entering a float in the parade will be welcome.

Hugh Sloane, art coordinator of the Weymouth public schools, a parade judge, will outline the points the judges will be considering in choosing winners in each class.

Other judges who have been invited to participate are: Thomas Folen, past president of the Milton Art Association; Harold Hawkes, president of the Braintree Art Association, and Robert A. LeNormand, vice president of the Braintree Art Association.

Theme of this year's parade is "Happiness Is" and entrants will be judged on adherence to the theme, originality, use of materials and color, and the overall appearance of the float. Movement and sound will be encouraged.

The floats will be divided into four categories for judging. These include: youth, adult, commercial and individual, and special entries.

Venna reports that civic and fraternal organizations, schools, clubs, commercial enterprises and individuals have already signed up for the parade which promises to be the most spectacular in the history of the colorful annual event.

He urges that anyone wishing to participate attend the seminar for a briefing.

North Runners Hold 5-Year Jinx Over Quincy

Lou Tozzi has never lost a track (winter or spring) or cross country meet to Quincy since he took over as North Quincy coach five years ago and his streak continued last week when the Raiders defeated the Presidents, 22-34, in the final cross-country meet of the season for both teams.

The win gave North a 6-6 record and, while Quincy, under first year coach Hank Conroy, failed to win a meet, the Presidents did have some fine individual performances, especially from John Furey, one of the best in Eastern Mass.

The Quincy-North meet featured a stirring race, as expected, between North's John McGuiggan and Furey. The two matched strides coming down the final stretch but in the final 50 yards McGuiggan pulled away to take the win by one second over Furey.

North Quincy's other finishers were Jim Coughlin, third; Mike Ricciuti, fourth; John Barrett, sixth; Bill Timmons, eighth; and Gary Morin, 10th.

Quincy's Mike Connolly was fifth, Joe Irvine seventh and Martin Doyle, ninth.

In the state divisional championships McGuiggan finished 11th among 194 runners in Division 4 and Furey was 11th in Division 1. North finished 10th among 28 teams.

"I was particularly pleased with McGuiggan's showings in the states and against Quincy because he had been hounded by injuries and hadn't done much running during October," Tozzi said.

Joe Amorosino's Quincy girls defeated North, coached by Jeff Strungis, 15-42, last week, placing six in the top 10, including the first five for the shutout. Quincy finished 3-5 and North was 1-7.

Quincy's Donna Reardon was the winner, followed by teammates Paula Church, Francie Maloney, Anne McCarron and Chris Fitzpatrick. Other finishers for the First Ladies were Donna Larsen, 10th, and Marie Lydon, 11th.

For North Karen Lindenfelzer was sixth, Mary Crehan seventh, Linda Morash eighth, Marie Boilkel ninth and Elaine Roisenson 12th.

GARY QUINN of Quincy, former Boston College High player, is having an outstanding season with the University of Michigan. Quinn, a 6-3, 235-pound offensive tackle, won the Ted Lyons Award as the outstanding lineman in the Boston area while playing in high school. He is the son of City Council President and Mrs. John J. Quinn of Wollaston.

Raiders Face Undefeated Catholic Memorial

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's football team was caught by surprise early but rebounded with one of its best offensive shows of the year last Saturday to defeat Weymouth South, 35-20, at fog-shrouded Veterans Memorial Stadium for its second straight win and third of the season.

However, if the Raiders hope to take a three-game win streak into the Quincy game Thanksgiving, they will have to pull one of the year's big upsets Saturday when they go to West Roxbury to face unbeaten Catholic Memorial in a 1:30 p.m. non-league game.

Memorial, a new opponent for North, although the teams have had several scrimmages, is 8-0 and sitting on top of the Catholic Conference and Division II with a Super Bowl bid almost certain. Last week the Knights clobbered West Springfield, 47-0.

Weymouth South, winless this fall, scored an early touchdown but Tom Quinn, one of the top running backs in the area, led the Raiders (3-5) back with 145 yards rushing and four touchdowns, giving him 12 for the season.

All Quinn has done this year is score 12 touchdowns, throw three touchdown passes and pass for five two-point conversions.

NORTH QUINCY SCORING

	TD	PAT	FG	Total
Quinn	12	0	0	72
Holleran	4	4	0	28
Spinale	0	7	1	10
Conley	1	0	0	6
Cobban	0	6	0	6
McIntyre	0	2	0	2

Last Saturday he rushed for 142 yards, his fourth 100-plus yard game this fall.

"We stuck to the basics and didn't try anything new," Coach Dave Burke said. "They caught us by surprise early but I liked the way we bounced right back. The offense clicked well today and the defense played another strong game."

In addition to his 145 yards rushing, Quinn threw two passes good for 14 yards and caught one for 13.

Jim Holleran had a fine day with 51 yards rushing and two pass receptions for 79 yards including a 63-yard scoring pass.

The offensive line played well with Pat McKenna, Mike Spinale, Brian McGilvray, Paul and John White, Dan McIntyre, Larry Baker and John O'Leary doing their jobs. Burke also had praise for several boys who hadn't played much in the past, including John Mullen, Jim Flaherty, Tim O'Neil, Bob Pimental and Jim Dodd. Co-Capt. Paul McNamara, who had been sidelined with an injury most of the season, also looked good.

In the backfield Joe Crifo, Bill Dailey and quarterbacks Dave Cavanaugh and Rick Anderson got a chance and took advantage of it.

McIntyre was especially effective on punts, giving great coverage on Pat Ennis' kicks.

The entire defense did its part but coaches Ken McPhee and Jack Raymer had special words for a number of boys whose playing time had been limited.

Singled out were Larry Chretian, Frank Strauss, Steve Pike, Jim Kenney, Chris Petrillo, Dave Howley, Glen Healy, Dave King and Tony Camillo.

North ground out 210 net yards rushing to 121 for Weymouth, added 128 yards passing with seven for 10 to 88 yards on four for 12 for Weymouth (One 20-yarder came on pass interference) and had 15 first downs to seven for Weymouth.

North was held on its first series of downs and Ennis kicked to Weymouth's 40 from where the Wildcats drove to their first touchdown and one of their few leads of the season. Jim Hatfield's pass to Tom Dagley for 29 yards was good for the TD.

The Raiders drove right back after the kickoff with passes from Kevin Cobban to Baker for 13 yards and Cobban to Holleran for 16 setting up Quinn's 10-yard touchdown run around left end. Spinale's kick was blocked.

King intercepted a pass on North's 37 to set up Cobban's pass up the middle to Holleran, who took the ball on Weymouth's 40 and went all the way for a 63-yard play. On a fake kick Cobban passed to McIntyre for the two points.

In the second quarter North drove 78 yards in 10 plays to increase its margin. Quinn led the way and he scored from the one with Spinale kicking the point to make it 21-6.

Weymouth came right back with Hatfield hitting Mike Hall for 30 yards and pass interference giving the Wildcats the ball on North's 14. Ken DiGravio scored from the four and Hatfield passed to Bob Fitzgerald for the two points.

In the third period Quinn scored on a 37-yard run which was the most exciting play of the game. He was hemmed in at the line of scrimmage, broke loose and just managed to stay inside the sideline as he outraced several Wildcats. Spinale kicked the point and it was 28-14.

North held Weymouth on the Wildcats' 36 with fourth down and inches. Quinn went for 22 yards and four plays later scored from the nine. Spinale kicked the Raiders' final point of the game.

With North's subs in action, Weymouth scored again on DiGravio's 37-yard run around left end.

Ted Sadowski's North Quincy sophomores were defeated for the first time Friday after six wins in a row as they bowed to Scituate, 20-8.

Peeved Presidents Host To So-So Brookline

Tom Fitzgerald has been coaching schoolboy football for 27 years and has seldom complained about the officials.

However, the first-year Quincy coach was incensed following last week's game at Brockton in which the Boxers came from behind to topple the Presidents, 26-15, and remain unbeaten in the Suburban League.

"This was the worst officiated game I have ever seen in my long coaching career and I want to be quoted on that," Fitzgerald said. "The officials took the game away from the kids and I honestly feel our boys were jobbed. Many times the Brockton center and quarterback were in motion but were never called for it. After we took a 7-0 lead, Brockton scored its only first half touchdown thanks to 55 yards in penalties against us. And the calls were highly questionable.

"I am not the first coach to criticize the officiating in Brockton, many others have told me the same thing. It is just too bad our boys, after playing such a fine game, had to be treated like that."

Quincy hopes to bounce back Saturday when it hosts Brookline in a 1:30 p.m. league game at Veterans Memorial Stadium in the last game before the North Quincy game. Brookline is only 2-6 with both wins over the Weymouth teams. Quincy is now 3-5.

"I was very proud of the way we played," Fitzgerald said. "Our offense clicked well on occasions and Dave Austin, our junior quarterback, had a good passing day with several completions. However, one interception did stop a long drive in which he passed well. Tommy Brennan had another fine day running as did Ralph Pickering. George McCarron, Paul Bandera and Tom Rand were outstanding in the offensive line."

QUINCY SCORING

	TD	PAT	Total
Brennan	8	4	52
Austin	2	2	14
O'Neil	1	0	6
Pickering	1	0	6
Harte	0	2	2
Donovan	0	2	2
Giordani	0	1	1

Fitzgerald had good words for Pickering, Mark Giordani, Steve Cacciatore, John Cahill and John Murray on defense.

"We completely outplayed them in the first half and had some good chances, while they were handed their touchdown," the Quincy coach said.

Brennan put the Presidents on the scoreboard first with a 17-yard run early in the second period for his eighth touchdown. Giordani kicked the point.

Brockton scored later in the period on the first of Chuck Colombo's three touchdown passes to Matt Walsh.

In the third quarter Colombo again passed to Walsh to put Brockton ahead, 12-7.

Greg Dunn scored from the one and Colombo hit Walsh with a 40-yard scoring pass to complete Brockton's scoring before reserve back Darrell O'Neil scored on a five-yard run for Quincy late in the game. Brennan rushed for the two points.

Colombo and Walsh this fall have combined for 12 touchdown passes.

At this time of year the Crafts Department at Old Colony Landscape Service in Weymouth is busiest. Maurene Golden, Old Colony's Staff Designer, will share her ideas and advice with those who wish to select from the thousands of dried and silk flowers, ribbons, wreaths, cones and Thanksgiving centerpiece bases. If you don't care to take the time to do the designing yourself, Maurene has dozens of arrangements ready to go or will be glad to custom-design to your home decor. For your own holiday party, or as a gift, why not a dried or fresh floral arrangement from Old Colony Landscape Service, which is located at 151 Main Street [Routes 18 and 53], Weymouth. They're open seven days a week and, of course, they have other handy seasonal merchandise like house plants, pottery, bird seed and feeders. 335-6600

Urges Parents Involvement In Education

[Cont'd from Page 2]

"Many mothers are working, not out of choice but necessity," she said, "and that brings about changes in the temperament of the children."

Today's children, she finds, are more restless. This may be the influence of television "where you have instant entertainment.

"I think the availability of more toys, bicycles, games and the money to replace them is reflected in the attitude the children bring to school. The younger children almost wait for you to entertain them. It's not a case of we're here to learn, but rather 'We're here to see what you're going to do next'."

Teachers today have a much more difficult task in trying to motivate the pupils.

At present society is questioning the schools and asking if they are functioning well, are the teachers doing their jobs, is the school committee overseeing what's happening, she said.

The Quincy schools she said are keeping abreast of the changes of attitude and the innovative factors being introduced into education.

Mrs. Curtin said the media often jump on stories concerning low scores in SAT scores, but fail to note that Quincy's students are scoring higher, or at least as high, as the national averages.

She pointed out that the Alternative Learning Environment (ALE) program in Quincy has been 'extremely successful' in reachout to potential 10th grade dropouts.

"The school department periodically reaches out to students who have left school and encourages them to come back. They can re-enter day school, or, if not, they have the options of attending night school or adult classes," she said.

Although American Education Week points up many of these factors and seeks the cooperation of parents, the job, Mrs. Curtin said, must go on throughout the school year.

THAT BEAUTIFUL LEVERAGE

One of the great advantages in real estate investment is that wonderful word called leverage. In its simplest terms, it means using someone else's money to vastly increase your profit potential.

Real estate has traditionally been very good security for loans. This means that real estate can be acquired with a smaller percentage of cash outlay than most other investments.

Leverage arises because ALL of the income and ALL of the appreciation in property value belongs to the property holder regardless of the amount of the loan.

To illustrate, assume a $100,000 property was purchased for only $10,000 cash and a $90,000 mortgage loan. Five years later, the same property is sold for $150,000 [a 50% gain in value]. After paying off the $90,000 mortgage, the investor would realize, not a 50% gain, but rather a 500% gain on his actual cash investment because he only invested $10,000 not $100,000 for the property.

Whether buying or selling, turn to Realty World - President Real Estate for all your real estate needs.

McGrath, Condon Want Lid On School Spending

The City Council has been asked to seek the help of the State Legislature in putting a lid on spending by the Quincy School Department.

Councillors Stephen J. McGrath and Joanne Condon filed a resolve Monday night asking the Legislature to prohibit the Council from appropriating more money for schools than it did in the previous year.

"The resolution does not call for a cut in school spending," said McGrath. "It merely asks that present spending levels be adhered to. I don't think that's an outrageous request."

The resolve was sent to the Council's Ordinance Committee.

"There is one message that has come through loud and clear in recent months," said McGrath. "The taxpayers want a stop to increased government spending. The Council must make an attempt to control it.

"The School Department has enjoyed budget increases over the years while the number of students has steadily decreased. A message must be sent to the School Department that these increases must be brought under control.

"We must put the School Department on notice that a more serious attempt is needed to hold the line on spending."

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Diamonds, as the song goes, are a girl's best friend. They are also the best friend of Pierre Arpels, chief designer for Van Cleef and Arpels, the international jewelry establishment, owned with his brothers Jacques and Claude. The Pierre Arpel's watch is currently in vogue among European elite. The standard lapuz lazuli version sells for around $2,350, but Pierre's favorite, since it is the favorite of many oil wealthy Arabs, sells for $8,000 is encrusted with diamonds and features a visible mechanism. Diamonds are indeed a good friend to M. Arpels.

When you're looking for diamonds see us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. We have a fine selection of diamond stock, loose and mounted. You are welcome to come in and choose both a diamond and setting you prefer, and we will handle the mounting in our own workshop. We can also custom design a piece to your specifications. If you want a piece custom designed for Christmas, now is the time to see us. Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

150-Room Hotel Also Seen

City Council To Get 'Firm' Plans For $10 Million Downtown Building

By TOM HENSHAW

Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, says he plans to go before the City Council in six weeks with "definite, firm plans" for a $10 million, 10-story office building on the site of the Della Chiesa Parking Lot.

He said the city is also ready to "start selling to one of the big chains" a plan to build a 150-room hotel, complete with function rooms, in another downtown location.

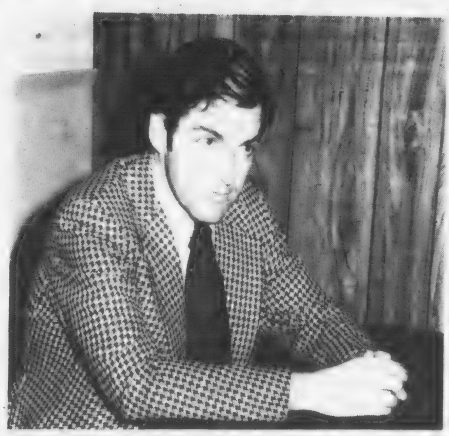
Mayor Tobin said the office building on the Della Chiesa lot, with its some 200,000 square feet of office space, would serve as a "catalyst" that will spark a revival of business in downtown Quincy.

"Downtown Quincy has been studied to death through the years," he said. "We've had reports, all sorts of brochures. Now we are getting down to the nuts and bolts of making things happen."

Baharian said the planned office building will bring 1,000 people to Quincy every business day, turning them loose for lunch hour shopping excursions in the downtown area.

"They will be relatively high income employees," he said. "It will be a very strong catalyst for downtown Quincy."

Baharian said there has been talk of a hotel in downtown Quincy for the past 50 years but only recently has a study by a leading hotel accounting firm indicated that a 150-room hotel would be able to pay for itself.



"We are now starting to sell the idea to one of the big hotel chains," he said.

Tobin said that additional people on Quincy streets "will be good for the downtown merchants.

"We have talked to several other developers and landowners in downtown Quincy who say that if this happens they are very sure other mercantile people will locate in the vicinity of Quincy Center."

Baharian's disclosure came on the heels of City Council approval of the multi-million dollar National Fire Prevention Association headquarters in West Quincy as a planned unit development [HUD].

At the same time the state promised that it would put up $250,000 to repair and widen Willard St. to accommodate the traffic expected to be generated by the new NFPA building.

Considered Mayoral Bid

Harold Gives Priority To Downtown Areas

Among the first pieces of legislation that Sen.-elect Paul D. Harold plans to file is a bill that would make it easier to obtain state funds to rebuild non-blighted areas like Quincy Center.

"I want it more flexible so we can give tax concessions to an area like Quincy Square, which is not blighted but needs help before it becomes blighted," he told The Quincy Sun in an indepth interview.

"There are too many incentives that cannot be used until a city's downtown is dead and gone."

During the interview, Harold also made these points:

● He is in favor of a cap on all taxes, not just property levies. "We have to have a formula to cut the amount of money the state is going to levy and have the cities and towns set their own priorities."

● He feels that he upset the incumbent, Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, with the vote but without much help from supporters of Joseph J. LaRaia as such. "We started from scratch and we continued that."

● He gave serious thought to running for mayor in the LaRaia-Tobin contest of 1977 but decided against it when he figured it would have cost

Condon, McGrath Deny 'Cap' Resolve Attack On School Committee

City Councillors Joanne Condon and Stephen J. McGrath has denied that their resolution calling for a cap on school spending is an attack on the perogatives of the School Committee.

"The resolve is meant to support the School Committee's intent to do something about spending," said Mrs. Condon and McGrath in a joint statement.

They said a School Committee resolution, passed in apparent retaliation asking the State Legislature to freeze the Business, Civic Groups Oppose Sewerage Sludge Dumping At Squantum Point

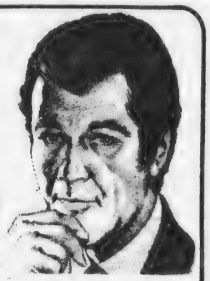
The Quincy Citizens Association, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and other civic organizations are combining efforts to defeat an Environmental Protection Agency proposal for the dumping of sewerage sludge and fly-ash in a 70-acre Squantum Point area.

Officials of the civic groups are requesting residents of Quincy attend a public hearing at Faneuil Hall Monday, Nov. 20 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. and a second session 7 to 10 p.m. to voice their objections to the proposal.

City Councillor Leo J. Kelly will present a resolve to the City Council the same night requesting that the Council be "recorded as opposed to the use of any Quincy land or water sites for the location or expansion of waste water treatment facilities or for the disposal of sludge or incinerted ash."



The EPA, according to Kelly's resolution, has recommended that the Deer Island treatment plant be expanded and upgraded to provide primary and secondary treatment for the waste water from the entire metropolitan sewerage district.

Deputy Collector To Be Hired

$26,600 Appropriated To Help Collect $10 Million In Back Taxes

"It's not exactly what I wanted, said Mayor Tobin, but I've been around government long enough to know that you don't always get everything you want.

"I don't know how helpful it is going to be but I'm glad some action was taken."

The action Tobin got was City Council approval of a $26,600 appropriation to hire a deputy collector and three clerk-typists to help collect some $10 million in back taxes owed to the city.

Tobin had asked for a $34,325 appropriation to hire an administrative assistant and five deputy collectors through next June but the Council thought that was a little steep.

City Treasurer Robert Foy, who had discussed the change in the mayor's request with councillors before the meeting, said he "deemed it the quickest and best way to get the money in."

The three clerk-typists, he said, would generate the warrants for the deputy collectors already working for the city to serve. Deputy collectors are paid through fees, not city salary.

"We need the new deputy collector to contact people who have problems," he said, "We feel there are people out there who would pay if we could get to them when their problem arises.

"We don't have the personnel now to make contact with these people."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley attempted to have the deputy collector deleted from the order but the move was defeated, 6-2, with only Councillor Paul D. Harold voting with him.

Foy said that on June 30, 1979, when the city's budget year closes "this program will be evaluated and, if the collections are there, I'm sure it will be renewed. There is a lot of money out there to collect."

Councillor James A. Sheets, one of those who was opposed to the original order, said he had changed his mind about the amended order for two reasons.

"One," he said, "is that we have millions of dollars out there in uncollected tax money. It is immoral for so many of our citizens to pay taxes while there are these people out there who should be but are not.

"Secondly, it is wrong to allow certain people to go on the books as owing taxes to the city when they don't. In my ward, a young lady got a strong letter from the sheriff when she in fact did not owe."

But Sheets added a cautionary note to Foy.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "this program ends June 30 and the four people who are hired should be told that.

"I'm not going to vote for an additional dollar unless it is proven to me that the positions are merited. The burden of proof rests with you that the amount of money we invested in this program was worth while and will be in the future."

City To Zero In On 48,000 Parking Scofflaws

Quincy is mounting a new attack on some 48,000 parking scofflaws.

The City Council Monday night approved the transfer of $12,172 out of parking meter receipts in a new effort to recover about $240,000 in unpaid parking fines.

The plan, advanced by Planning Director Walter J. Hannon, would employ the data processing center at the Quincy School Department to trace down the owners of the unlucky tickets.

Hannon conceded that the job was really a county function "but the county is not doing the job; it doesn't have the people; and the backlog of summonses is too large."

He said it is possible that county will reimburse the city for doing its work.

DOVE Seeking Volunteers To Staff Shelter For Women

DOVE (Domestic Violence ended) is still seeking volunteers to help staff a shelter for battered women in the Quincy area.

DOVE, a newly created non-profit agency comprised of representatives from the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, the District Attorney's Office, Quincy Community Action, Survival, Quincy Police Department, South Shore Mental Health and interested citizens' opened the first shelter for battered women on the South Shore early this fall.

According to a DOVE spokesman, the shelter has been "very busy" and the number of staff and volunteer personnel is limited. Volunteers are needed for the evening hours as well as early morning hours. Persons who can work either the 4 p.m. to midnight shift or the midnight to 8 a.m. shift are urged to contact DOVE. If people can not work the full shift, volunteers are also needed to relieve personnel for a few hours.

DOVE is particularly concerned about the holidays because experience has shown that the demand for shelter is great during the holiday seasons.

"We want to have enough volunteers so that no person has to spend an inordinate amount of time working at the shelter during the holidays," a spokesman said. "We also want to make the holidays as pleasant as possible for the women and children who are staying at the shelter," she said.

Volunteers should call 471-5087.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

MEN WILL OUTLIVE WOMEN

In general, women now live longer than men, but it is estimated that by the year 2000, they will be dying 2-4 years earlier - all because of cigarette smoking. The reason - a woman's lung capacity is smaller than a man's and, consequently, get more concentrated doses of the toxic materials.

The death rate among women from lung cancer has doubled in the past 10 years. Lung has replaced uterine cancer as the 3rd major cancer killer of women. Deaths among women from emphysema have increased 2½ times in the last 20 years. For men, the increase is only 1½ times. Women smokers aged 45-54 run TWICE the risk of dying from heart disease or stroke than non-smoking women do.

Now the good news. Health authorities say that no matter how long a woman has smoked, if she stops, the lungs usually repair themselves, or at least further damage is prevented. Death from heart disease also declines among those who stop smoking.

New Vaccine

Pneumonia Clinics To Start Nov. 27

The Health Department is offering Quincy residents the protection of a new vaccine that is effective against 14 strains of pneumonia for a period of three years with one injection.

Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon cautioned that the vaccine is not advised during pregnancy.

The program, with a below cost charge of $3 per inoculation, is scheduled to begin Monday, Nov. 27, from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the JFK Health Center, 1120 Hancock St.

Dr. Solomon said the vaccine usually is given, after consultation with personal physicians, to the following people of high risk:

- Persons over the age of two who have chronic physical conditions, such as heart disease, lung disease and kidney failure.
- Diabetes mellitus.
- Persons in nursing homes and hospitals.
- Sickle cell anemia or persons who have had their spleens removed.
- Persons over age 50 who are prone to pneumonia.

Dr. Solomon said there may be some adverse reactions to the vaccine, including local redness and soreness at the injection site which may not remain more than 48 hours.

"A little swelling may occur at the injection site, accompanied by some soreness, generally within two days after the vaccination," he said. "There are no clinically relevant reactions and oral temperatures do not exceed 99.9 degrees."

Locations and dates for the program include:

Monday, Nov. 27, JFK Health Center.

Tuesday, Nov. 28, Sacred Heart Auditorium.

Wednesday, Nov. 29, Ocean View-Bicknell St.

Thursday, Nov. 30, Lincoln-Hancock School.

Friday, Dec. 1, Fore River Clubhouse.

Monday, Dec. 4, St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

Thursday, Dec. 7, 1000 Southern Artery.

All times are from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Raymondi Wants Stricter Control Over Kennel Licenses

Barking dogs are annoying City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi's constituents and he wants something done about it.

Raymondi filed for an ordinance change that would require the City Clerk to check with the Zoning Enforcement Officer before issuing a kennel license.

"The past summer," he said, "there have been three occasions where the dog officer has issued a kennel license to people who live in a residential area and it has caused an awful lot of problems.

"Once the authority was given to move in the dogs they started barking and people started asking how they got there. It's annoying and it causes health problems.

"Apparently it is in the sole jurisdiction of the Dog Officer to issue kennel license and he was not checking with the zoning department to make sure the zoning was appropriate."

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Women of the seventies, and men as well, are more concerned than ever with being comfortable in their clothes and with their jewelry. It is a result of a decade of effort. Many women have gone back to work, and both men and women have become more interested in physical fitness. The result is clothes that are easy to move in and comfortable. Jewelry must also be easy to wear, and must not interfere with the functions of work or leisure. Simple, clean, and elegant is the fashion today.

You'll find a complete selection of the latest jewelry fashions on display at our store, GRQNO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. A Lay-Away plan is available for Christmas, and in addition to fine jewelry including gold chains [all sizes and types], we have pewter, Waterford crystal, Beleek china and Cornwall clocks. Gift certificates are always available, in any amount. Open: Mon. thru Sat., 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
